HOME FROM THE SEA — The carrier Coral Sea passes beneath the Golden Gate Bridge and into San Francisco Bay on her way to her home port, the Alameda Naval Air Station. Coral Sea Arrives Back In Bay

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Helicopters beat at the air overhead as the Coral Sea, its crewmen lined up in dress blues on the Navy carrier's expansive deck, steamed under the Golden Gate Bridge this morning after eight months in the Western Pacific.

Sailors in formation on the foredeck formed a graceful outline of the bridge and plumes of yellow smoke rose from the ship as it passed under the span, symbolizing honorary gold for the carrier's outstanding reenlistment rate, the Navy said.

Escorted by a San Francisco fire boat sending streams of gray water in skies that promised to break into bright sunshine but never quite did, the 63,000-ton vessel displayed two golden anchors, also in honor of its reenlistment ratings.

Israelis Agree To Compromise Peace Pact With Egyptians

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli officials said today Israel has accepted a compromise proposal worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat providing for an exchange of prisoners, a corridor to the trapped Egyptian 3rd army and an end to the Arab sea blockade.

Beyond that it was understood that there will be direct negotiations between Egypt and Israel for the first real peace since Israel was established in the first Middle East war 25 years ago.

Govermment sources in Israel reported the acceptance of the compromise peace plan as Kissinger left Cairo, flew to neighboring Jordan for talks with King Hussein and then flew on to Saudi Arabia for talks there with King Feisal.

While Kissinger conferred in Amman with King Hussein of Jordan, assistant Secretary of State for Middle East Affairs, Joseph Sisco, met in Jeruslaem with Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel. Sisco carried the latest proposals to Israel last night after a meeting in Cairo between Kissinger and Sadat.

Before Mrs. Meir met Sisco for a second time today, the Israeli cabinet met for two hours. Sisco emerged from the 90-minute session with the Prime Minister saying the talks had been "useful and constructive... I'm optimistic." He said

An Arrest Made In Lodi Murders

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Police armed with sawed-off shotguns arrested a suspect in a downtown hotel today in the "execution" style murders of nine persons and surrounded an apartment building where a second suspect may be holding a hostage. (See earlier story, page 43.)

One of the men, Douglas E. Fretzler, 22, was led handcuffed from the hotel. Then police converged on an apartment house two miles away where the second suspect, Willie Luther Steelman, 28, was believed to have fled.

Marin, S. Sonoma Taking Action To Check Energy

Many Holiday Lights Will Go This Season

By MARY LEYDECKER

Christmas lights will be dimmer this year, and warm sweaters and little cars may be the most popular presents under the tree.

Evidence that Marin and Southern Sonoma public officials, employers and merchants are taking the energy crisis seriously was mounting today.

In the wake of President Nixon's request yesterday that Americans voluntarily reduce consumption of gasoline, oil, electricity and other fuels, many local leaders said they already had plans to do so.

First luxury to go, apparently, will be traditional outdoor holiday lighting displays at commercial establishments. Even more drastic reduction of public lighting, some of which is considered important for safety or prevention of vandalism, is also being considered.

Northgate merchants had decided even before the President's talk to light their Mall Christmas display only on the opening day of the season and again on Christmas Eve, according to David Muir, president of the Northgate Mall Merchants Association.

"Lighting the Mall display only two days instead of 32 (as in past years) will save enough power to light and heat 5,000 five-room homes for 24 hours," Muir said.

Additionally, Muir said, Northgate Merchants are being asked to turn off their window and sign lights after business hours.

The town and Country Shopping Village in Strawberry also will light outdoor Christmas displays only one night.

San Rafael's downtown merchants will have no lights this year in connection with their street decorations, according to Robert Nelson, Chamber of Commerce manager.

Downtown merchants also will be asked soon to turn out their lights after business, Muir said.

In Petaluma, directors of the chamber of commerce have decided to drop the usual holiday lighting displays, Burdette A. Shannon, chamber manager said. The Novato Chamber of Commerce also has agreed to eliminate lighting of downtown Christmas decorations and a plan to have a lighted tree at Diablo Avenue and Redwood Highway has been abandoned.

Live swags of greenery will decorate Mill Valley for the Christmas season, and Belvedere and Tiburon also plan darker holiday seasons than usual.

Costs Soar On Terminal In Larkspur

The cost of the Larkspur ferry terminal has almost doubled to $8.8 million, it was disclosed today.

The unexpected increase was revealed during a meeting of Golden Gate Bridge District directors by director Lowell Edington of Napa County. He and several other directors said they learned a week ago of the unannounced new price tag.

The district's federal grant for the ferry system had put the price of the terminal at $4.3 million. The district's consulting naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding, estimated the cost as $3.5 million three years ago.

Another district consultant planning the terminal, Anthony A. Braccia, told the Independent-Journal two weeks ago that it would cost $4.5 million.

The $1,250,000 cost of the 25-acre site is in addition to the $8.8 million estimate by Kaiser Engineers. The cost includes the terminal and dredging.

Bridge board president Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco told newsmen the increased price of steel accounted for most of the price rise. "The price of everything is absolutely exploding," he said.

He said roughly $3 million may be cut from the estimate by eliminating parts of the project. He said the district's staff was reviewing the Kaiser plans to see where cuts could be made.

Leonoudakis also said the cost of the floats had been estimated originally at $250,000, but now were going to cost $1,250,000.

The district's ferry transit manager, Stanley M. Kowleski, said the Kaiser plans were "over designed in many respects."

Critics Outnumber Those In Favor Of Tiburon Plan

By REBECCA LARSEN

Most of a standing-room-only crowd in Tiburon last night fired criticism at a proposed development plan for the city's downtown, although a handful urged residents to work with the developer.

Almost 200 people crammed a planning commission meeting at the Reed School gym to give the first public response to the massive building plan unveiled two weeks ago by Sequoia Pacific Realco, a Santa Ana firm and partner of Southern Pacific Railroad, the landowner.

The firm's plan for the 36 acres of railroad land is for a highly developed waterfront, a parking garage topped with tennis courts, an inn-conference center, office buildings and several small apartment and condominium complexes. There would also be a large village green and two small waterfront parks.

The audience clapped loudly at the remarks of the first speaker, Brewster Morris, organizer of opponents to the plan, the Committee for a Downtown Plan Review.

The proposed plan is "excessively visitor-oriented, and will in fact not otherwise be economically feasible," he said. Land areas to be paved for driving and parking will total one-third of the development, he said. The proposed open village green, according to Morris, would benefit only those living near it.

Strongest jabs were aimed at the proposed waterfront area, which would include retail shops, a large marina, a marine museum and condominiums. Alice Dransfield of Vistazo East Street said she wanted the waterfront kept non-commercial and open. "As citizens we are hypocrites if we with one hand buy our hilltops for open space and with the other commercialize the natu-

Ross Psychiatric Clinic Will Close Because Of Fund Changes

By BILL ROBERTS

A change in county administration of state funds and a resulting transfer of emphasis to short term psychiatric care is forcing the Ross Psychiatric Clinic to close its doors.

Michael F. Silberstein, president of the Marin Mental Health Foundation, made that claim today in announcing the foundation-run clinic no longer takes patients and will close the end of this month.

The foundation had an $84,192 budget for 1973-74 and to meet that budget, Silberstein said, more than 75 per cent would have had to come from state Short-Doyle funds administered by the county.

He said the psychiatric clinic used to receive a block grant which it administered in making up deficits created because patients were charged on a sliding scale based on income. Patients often didn't pay full cost of treatment, Silberstein said.

But under contracts signed Sept. 17 for county funds, the clinic had to apply for individual grants for each patient and establish each patient's need for financial assistance. Moreover, the county limited any one patient's grant to a maximum of 10 visits, he said.

"The later change required a shift in emphasis from long-term to short-term care in providing psychiatric treatment at the clinic," Silberstein said.

This hit the clinic hard since about 80 per cent of its patients needed more than 10 visits.

"It's clear the new county program and approach was the primary force in our decision to close," he said.

Silberstein said it is clear the clinic cannot provide the same kind of care it has in the past

Plan To Up Golden Gate Tolls Suffers Setback

A toll-hike on the Golden Gate Bridge will be delayed for at least several months, the bridge district attorney said today.

Thomas M. Jenkins told the Independent-Journal that the District Court of Appeals in San Francisco has refused to settle the dispute over whether San Francisco bridge directors must vote only in accord with policies set by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

The proposed increase from 50 to 75 cents is opposed by the San Francisco supervisors. The toll increase would require approval by ten of the district's 18 directors — an impossible margin if the nine San Franciscans on the board have to vote against the increase.

The impasse was based on an opinion by San Francisco City Attorney Thomas O'Connor that policies set by the supervisors were binding on city representatives to other agencies.

The stymied bridge board agreed in September to a friendly court test of O'Connor's opinion. The board expected then the issue could be settled in court within a month or two.

The toll increase originally was scheduled for July 1 and then postponed to Jan. 1. The court's refusal to hear the case will postpone action on the proposed increase until sometime next year.

Jenkins told the I-J there are three ways left to settle the problem: try it in a superior court, go to the Legislature and change the law or convince the San Francisco Board of Supervisors to drop its opposition to the toll increase.

The legislature will reconvene in early January.

The impasse over the toll hike, together with rising transit deficits, has prevented expansion of the district's already overcrowded bus fleet.

Nixon Calls On Americans To Cut Fuel Consumption

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has appealed to Americans voluntarily to spend a slightly chillier, slower-moving, more thrifty winter to stave off what he called the worst fuel shortage since World War II.

Nixon also proposed a national program comparable in scope to developing the atom bomb and putting men in space, aimed at making the country self-sufficient in energy by 1980.

Saying a long-forming shortage, plus the effect of the Middle East crisis, will leave the United States short of oil by 2 to 3 million barrels a day, Nixon asked Congress yesterday for more power and asked the people to sacrifice energy luxuries until the pinch is over.

If that does not work, he warned, Americans may have the first direct consumer rationing of gasoline since the 1940s.

Nixon told the nation in a broadcast speech, and in a separate message to Congress, he is ordering that power plants be kept from switching from coal to oil, directing that aircraft get less fuel, asking that Americans turn their home thermostats down to 68 degrees and ordering the federal bureaucracy to use less heat and light and drive government cars more slowly.

He said he is asking that nuclear power permits be expedited and is requesting governors and local officials to do at their level things similar to what Nixon is ordering at the federal level.

ADDRESSES NATION — President Nixon, at the end of a nationally televised speech on the energy crisis yesterday, said he has no intention of resigning. Regarding the energy crisis, the President said he was preparing contingency plans for rationing gasoline and home heating oil in case voluntary efforts to cut fuel consumption fail. (UPI Telephoto)

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon said.

"The fuel crisis need not mean genuine suffering for any American," he added. "But it will require some sacrifice by all Americans. We must be sure that our most vital needs are met first—and that our least important activities are the first to be cut back. And we must be sure that while the fat from our economy is being trimmed, the muscle is not seriously damaged."

Nixon asked Congress for authority to bring daylight saving time back for the whole year, to ease clean air requirements so as to allow more use of coal, to hold stores to briefer work days, to cut speed limits on federal highways and to produce more oil from federal reserves.

The new laws, presidential directives and belt-tightening could erase the oil deficit in the short run, he said; reducing highway speeds could save 600,000 barrels of oil a day; cooler homes and offices could save 640,000 barrels; cutting air flights, 170,000; converting power plants to coal, 430,000; increasing federal oil reserves' production, 160,000; and boosting production of oil from non-governmental wells, 350,000 barrels daily.

Only if those things don't work, Nixon said, will he turn to gasoline rationing on the World War II coupon-cutting level.

"Part of our current problem also stems from war—the war in the Middle East," he said. "But our deeper energy problems come not from war but from peace and abundance. We are running out of energy today because our economy has grown enormously and because, in prosperity, what were once considered luxuries are now considered necessities."

America should approach the problem with the intensity by which it built an atom bomb in wartime and put men on the moon in peace, he said.

All this could well be called "Project Independence," Nixon said. "Let us set as our national goal, in tte spirit of Apollo and with the determination of the Manhattan Project, that by the end of this decade, we will have developed the potential to meet our own energy needs without depending on any foreign energy sources."

Nixon Notes His Loss Of Popularity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has taken frank note that in a painful year since his landslide reelection he has lost the faith of "great numbers of Americans." But rather than resign he says he will struggle to remove their distrust.

The President—with his aides in court trying to defend his credibility, his impeachment discussed in Congress and his popularity at a new low in the polls—acknowledged his extraordinary situation in a brief, intense "personal note" at the end of a 20-minute televised speech from the White House on the forthcoming shortages of fuel and power.

He said his response to editorials calling for his resignation is: "I have no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do.

"As long as I am physically able, I am going to continue to work 16 to 18 hours a day for the cause of a real peace abroad, and for the cause of prosperity, without inflation, without war, at home."

Nixon said he was "confident" he would regain the people's faith.

"I would be less than candid if I were not to admit that this has not been an easy year in some respects, as all of you are quite aware," he said. "As a result of the deplorable Watergate matter, great numbers of Americans have had doubt raised as to the integrity of the President of the United States."

In the months ahead, he said, he would do "everything that I can" to remove doubts about his integrity.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was adding to his staff of lawyers working on Watergate-related matters — it now numbers a dozen — and was determined "to communicate to the Congress, the press and the American people the President's position more effectively than we have in the past."

New Presidential System Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. James O'Hara, D-Mich., says the office of vice president should be scrapped and a new system established to name a presidential successor.

O'Hara appeared yesterday before the Vice Presidential Commission of the Democratic National Committee, which held a one-day hearing on suggestions for revamping the process by which a presidential candidate chooses his running-mate.

But the Michigan congressman, who chaired efforts to prepare procedural rules for the 1972 Democratic Convention, said the best thing to do is abolish the vice presidency itself.

"Presidential candidates ... are optimists," he said. "Whether they should or not, they will not in the final analysis, choose their vice presidential candidates to succeed them," he told the panel chaired by Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

"They will choose them," he continued, "to help them succeed. That is an honorable and historically validated reason. To assume that it will change is to question the good sense of our future presidential nominees."

Should a presidential vacancy occur, he maintained, the House Speaker—without giving up his post—should assume the office of president for a maximum of 30 days. He said Congress, during the interim, should meet in joint session to select a new president, with each member having one vote.

State Schoolchildren Make Reading Gains

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — First, second and third grade students in California public schools have made "modest gains" in improving their reading skills and now rate slightly above the national level, the state Board of Education was told today.

The gains during the 1972-73 school year reversed earlier downward trends recorded when students were given the Stanford Reading Test, which was initiated in 1967.

However, that test was replaced with the Cooperative Primary Reading Test in 1970 through 1972 and reflected the improvement, a report to the board said.

The report said that in 1972 average scores for first grade students exceeded the test publisher's national level by five percentile points. "The gradual upward trend in raw scores continued in 1973 but did not change the percentile rank of the median score," it said.

For second graders, in 1972 they "continued their modest but consistent rise, and the median score exceeded the publisher's norms by three percentile points. The 1973 test results were slightly higher than in 1972 but did not change the percentile rank score," the report said.

Third graders also had higher scores in 1972 and 1973, the report said. They were up two points over the test publisher's average level.

The report concluded by saying, "Achievement in all three grades at the present time is slightly above the publisher's norms, and the 1973 test results have continued the upward trend."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Jupiter Shots

CHICAGO (UPI) — Scientists said Pioneer 10's closeup look at the planet Jupiter next month won't uncover "great green men," but will increase man's understanding of the universe.

"What we're after is knowledge," project Director Charles Hall told newsmen yesterday. "There's a phenomenon out there about which is very little known."

The 565-pound spacecraft left earth March 3, 1972, and is expected to travel within 81,000 miles of Jupiter by Dec. 3. That would place Jupiter one-half billion miles from earth.

The craft should return color photographs of Jupiter and its five inner moons and data on the planet's atmosphere, interior and surrounding magnetic, electrical and radiation environment.

Economy Scene

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economic stabilization chief John T. Dunlop indicates controls will be lifted from another industry in the next few weeks.

Dunlop emphasized, however, that the wage-price program would continue in some form for many segments of the economy until authorizing legislation expires April 30, 1974.

Noting the fertilizer industry was returned to a free market in late October, Dunlop told an informal gathering of newsmen yesterday, "We will take some further action in the course of this month."

A Hughes Move?

MIAMI (UPI) — Business associates say Howard Hughes may soon move into the Miami home he purchased from his millionaire friend George Davis — while closing a financial deal with Davis' development firm.

Rumors yesterday that Hughes was in Miami died down when clues dropped by Davis' staff pointed to a Davis-Hughes meeting sometime later.

Picture Report

PASADENA (UPI) — Mariner 10 should be able to produce good pictures of Venus and Mercury next year, scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory confidently predicted yesterday.

The reason for the optimism was relief of a problem with two heaters aboard the spacecraft.

Work On Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Engineers today begin fitting new stabilizing tail fins onto the Skylab 3 launch rocket to replace a set corroded by salty sea air. The problem caused a five-day delay in getting the space station flight underway.

A Third War

SAIGON (UPI) — The Saigon government said today the recent upsurge in fighting across the country, with three bases falling to the Communists in less than a week, marked the start of the third Vietnam War.

Bui Bao Truc, the government spokesman, told a news conference as estimated 400,000 North Vietnamese soldiers in the South were responsible for the latest battles.

"The third war has indeed started in South Vietnam," Truc said.

Denies Corruption

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former U.S. Ambassador to Laos G. McMurtrie Godley has denied there was any widespread corruption while he ran a U.S. mission in Laos from 1970 to 1973.

Godley acknowledged that he had not asked for authority from the State Department before ordering construction of a swimming pool on the grounds of his official residence, which was being rented from a Laotian landlord at the time.

COOL IS NOT ALWAYS A WAY TO SAVE FUEL

The Larkspur City Council last night gave its own interpretation to the President's request to save energy. Mayor Alfred J. Malvino announced at the start of a heavily attended meeting that the thermostat in the council chambers would be set at 66 degrees, bettering the president by a couple of degrees.

Chilly spectators soon noticed, however, that the room felt suspiciously as if an air conditioner, a notorious electricity user, was blowing cold air into the chambers.

Asked if it was possible that the air conditioning was on, a city official replied with a smile, "Well you wouldn't want all that smoke (from cigarettes) in the room, would you?"

PG&E Warns Power Cuts Possible

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SANTA ROSA — Electric power to Northern California residences may be cut up to three hours at a time by next winter unless customers conserve energy voluntarily, a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. executive warned last night.

The giant utility will have enough natural gas this winter to serve residential and small commercial customers, but cold snaps will cut off industrial and large commercial users, according to its news director, Lawrence R. McDonnell of Daly City.

These cuts, he cautioned, mean "payrolls as well as production can be affected."

The company has adequate capacity to generate electricity, but faces a growing shortage of fuel for its power plants, he said. The crunch will last at least three years before the gap can be filled by nuclear power plants and new gas supplies, McDonnell predicted.

McDonnell conceded the problem hit the utility unexpectedly, and cited four things that changed the picture abruptly. First, the National Energy Board of Canada denied all pending export permits for natural gas, a source PG&E had counted on for growth.

The second blow came, he said, when construction of new nuclear plants was delayed.

The third unexpected blow came when the Federal Power Commission curtailed PG&E's contract with El Paso Natural Gas Co., its biggest supplier.

The final blow fell when the federal commission put steam-electric generating plants in the lowest priority for use of natural gas under any curtailment plan, he said.

Because of these critical cuts in its supply of natural gas, the utility has had to switch increasingly to use of fuel oil — but it also is in severely short supply, McDonnell explained.

The company used no more than two million barrels of oil a year during the past few years, but this year will need about eight million. Next year, the need will soar to 45.5 million barrels, and the price of oil is shooting up.

The arithmetic showed the utility paid less than $725,000 for fuel oil in 1970, but next year expects its oil bill to be $318 million — plus $100 million in storage and plant conversion to burn it.

McDonnell noted air pollution controls were partly responsible for the increasing cost of oil, but added more use of oil inevitably means more air pollution because it does not burn as cleanly as natural gas.

Unless PG&E gets exemptions from air pollution limits, he declared, the public will have to "shiver in the dark."

McDonnell concluded with a prediction that "if confronted with the choice between blackouts and temporary variances from the latterday air control regulations, I believe people will opt for our burning whatever kind of boiler fuel we can get."

Population Boom

LIONS RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco now has 16 million inhabitants the Health Ministry said. It said it expects the national population to reach 22 million by 1980 and 50 million by the year 2000.

Ordinance To Control Center Is Introduced

An ordinance giving Larkspur City officials more control over the building of a proposed regional shopping center, if it comes into being, was introduced last night by the city council.

City planning director John Roberto had asked that the ordinance be passed as an emergency measure in order to give the city some teeth if the proposal comes in this month.

"You should be so lucky to get shopping center plans by Dec. 1," longtime Larkspur developer Niels J. Schultz Jr. commented from the audience.

The new shopping center is proposed for a 65-acre site between Corte Madera Creek and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, near some of Schulz's projects.

The ordinance as an emergency measure failed by a 3-to-2 vote with Councilmen William G. Fleckles and Neil Brixon voting no. (Four-to-one votes are needed to pass ordinances as emergencies.)

The council then voted 4-to-1 with councilman Robert H. Lee voting no, to introduce it as a regular ordinance. (Lee said he thought it ought to have been adopted as an emergency measure.)

At the present time, only design review would be required for such a shopping center because it is a permitted use in an area zoned commercial.

The new ordinance would give the planning commission and city council further powers of review of plans.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

ABSENCE — Fleckles was given permission by Mayor Alfred J. Malvino to miss council meetings at least through Dec. 1 for health reasons.

SETBACK — After a lengthy discussion, granted a variance to John A. Moran for a condominium building already constructed on Larkspur Plaza Road which has stairs too close to a property line. Both the city building inspector and the owner were blamed for the mistake.

MORATORIUM — Voted 4-to-1, with Brixon voting no, to extend a building moratorium for one year on all land west of Magnolia Avenue zoned R-3 with a slope of 10 per cent or more with the moratorium to be lifted when the city's general plan is finished.

CODES — Gave Land Investors Research 30 days to correct fire and building code violations in a building at 1011 Magnolia Avenue and 90 days to bring its use within zoning regulations.

FIREMAN — Authorized the hiring of an additional fireman.

CAR — Agreed to purchase a new police car at approximately $3,000.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Lee and Earl J. O'Grady to the Flood Zone No. 9 Advisory Board.

Free Diabetes Tests Are Set

Free tests for diabetes will be offered next week by the Marin County Diabetes Association.

With the cooperation of the Marin County Pharmaceutical Association, test kits will be available at all pharmacies in the county.

A person can test his urine and return the paper strip in a special envelope. The results will be returned confidentially to the person.

The Marin County Diabetes Association urges those who are over 40, overweight or related to a diabetic to take the test.

Pet Lover Must Slice Household

Helen Galantiere, Larkspur's best known dog lover, last night was told she must get rid of all but two of her pets by the end of six months.

Mrs. Galantiere, however, was assured by the Larkspur City Council that she can continue to find homes for stray pets by showing a few dogs to prospective takers on weekends.

Larkspur City Atty. Joseph A. Forest told Mrs. Galantiere's attorney, Jack I. Garvey, that such strictly weekends canine visits would not constitute "keeping and maintaining" dogs under the city ordinance.

Larkspur has a rule that no more than two dogs and two cats may be kept at a single-family residence.

For about three years, Mrs. Galantiere has made a home for orphan animals at her residence at 410 Elm Avenue. She and fellow members of the St. Francis Animal Protection Society, a nonprofit corporation "dedicated to humane education" have attempted to find new homes for pets, many of them simply dumped on Mrs. Galantiere's one-acre property.

At least one neighbor complained about the operation, citing traffic problems, "noise and smell."

In August the city council, with only four members present, split 2-to-2 over whether the foster home was a nuisance which ought to be abated.

Garvey last night said there are "mostly puppies" and "no loud barking" at Mrs. Galantiere's house, but that she had agreed to get rid of all of the dogs but two.

St. Francis members said they are looking for another location, "outside Larkspur."

FORMATIONS AND FLOWERS — The men of the Coral Sea recreate in a pattern of blue and white the symbol of their return at last from the sea: the Golden Gate Bridge. As the huge carrier passed beneath the bridge this morning, 10,000 golden flowers fluttered like confetti toward her deck, a floral tribute to the golden anchors only the Coral Sea is privileged to carry. Only one ship in the Navy is allowed such anchors, the one with the highest percentage of reenlistment.

ENERGY

light the Civic Center in the evening so that janitorial crews can do their work than to turn off the lights and clean the buildings in the daytime.

He added, though, that plans are being considered to buy smaller cars for county officials.

San Rafael City Mgr. William J. Bielser said officials of that city had "been working quietly" for some time to find ways of conserving energy. He said the city is now buying "subcompact" cars such as Pintos and Vegas for employees, who grumbled for a while "but have quit complaining" now.

San Rafael city offices, like many others in the county, have their thermostats set at 68 degrees, he said, and further plans to cut energy use include consideration of reducing street lighting power.

Bielser said the city's street lights run up a $200,000 power bill each year.

San Rafael's school children now study in classrooms where the thermometer registers 68 to 70 degrees, according to Supt. Donald A. Leisey, but consideration is being given to turning down the register further.

Leisey said school officials will face a hard choice of whether to continue lighting buildings at night to reduce vandalism and burglary or to turn the lights out and save power.

Bolinas-Stinson School District officials boasted of already being highly conscious of energy saving and said only the porch light at the school burns at night and heating is limited to the administrative offices.

In Sausalito, the energy crisis apparently was not being given as much consideration as elsewhere in the county. Christmas lighting will be put up as usual this year, but the chamber of commerce is open to suggestions as how to reduce the amount of lighting, according to president Douglas Graves.

Sausalito city officials have not planned any conservation efforts yet.

As for saving gasoline, a California Highway Patrol officer in Marin didn't think much of Nixon's plan to ask states to impose 50-mile-per-hour speed limits.

"It wouldn't work in California," the patrolman said. "If you want to have traffic backed up from San Francisco to Eureka every morning, just force everyone to go 50 miles an hour." No such problem exists in San Anselmo, however, according to City Mgr.-Controller Alfred C. Kaeppel. "There aren't many places in the city where you can go 50 miles an hour," he said.

Efforts Launched For Impeachment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The Los Angeles County Federation of Labor and the American Civil Liberties Union yesterday launched an "all-out effort to seek the resignation or impeachment of Richard Nixon as President."

The President's ability to function in office had been "permanently impaired" by his "abuse of power...and his determination to place himself above the law," according to J.J. Rodriquez, head of the labor federation which represents 750,000 union members, and ACLU Executive Director Ramona Ripston.

Former Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge said the yacht harbor should be dropped. "There's always vandalism in harbors and that means flood lights all night long. Let's have a nicely landscaped 75-foot strip all the way along the water."

The plans call for a 20-foot-wide walkway in developing sections of the waterfront.

David Dawson and architect Philip K. Buskirk of Tiburon, representatives of the development firm, said the plan could be molded to meet citizen objections before groundbreaking. They said they would soon begin a series of informal chats in the city council chambers to explain the plan to residents.

Dawson also warned the crowd that if the railroad property were condemned, the city could not afford to buy it as open space.

Three or four speakers urged residents not to torpedo the plan too soon. Most of them said they had worked on city commissions when the original Tiburon downtown plan was developed. This first plan, approved by the city in 1970, was also drawn by Buskirk. The Sequoia Pacific proposal has been designed to mirror the 1970 Buskirk plan.

"You've got to face the fact that this land is going to be developed someday," said Rampton Harvey, former city councilman and planning commissioner. "Some of us believed that one day a developer would come in who would approach the concepts of the downtown plan and this developer has. I'm delighted this plan is hanging on the wall."

Margaret Azevedo, county planning commissioner and Centro West Street resident, urged residents not to force the developer to give up so much open space that he would have to reduce the project's quality. She also said she preferred an exciting Ghirardelli Square type development on the waterfront to a "sterile" marina green. "I think we could create Ghirardelli Square on a small scale here," she said.

Sequoia Pacific has not yet formally submitted an application for its plans to the city yet. Dawson told the planning commission that if he did so and got city approval by March, groundbreaking for the project could begin at the end of 1974. The development would be finished by 1977 or 1978, he said. But he added that a fight to get water connections from the Marin Municipal Water District could hold the development up. He said he expects to spend a year in court fighting the water district's ban on new connections.

Dawson said he expects the city to help pay for building the parking garage, landscaping parks and developing a new downtown drainage system.

wake. One sailboat displayed a large American flag flying at half staff. It was not known if the gesture was in praise or protest of the Coral Sea's extensive record of service during the Vietnam War.

The bridge crowd, mostly older persons who carried cameras and plastic bags of petals, was estimated at about 75. A last-minute maneuver by the carrier forced the greeters to dash about 100 yards on the span to hit the deck with pieces of mums and carnations.

The Coral Sea was returning from its first peacetime cruise in 10 years. It participated in operation End Sweep, providing logistic support for mine sweeping forces in North Vietnamese waters in the spring.

In March, when the carrier left Alameda, Capt. Paul A. Peck received a line promotion to admiral, and the Coral Sea celebrated its 26th birthday Oct. 1. During the cruise, the vessel visited Sasebo, Japan, Hong Kong, Subic Bay in the Philippines and Manila twice.

Much of the cruise involved training operations for the 200 pilots of Air Wing 15, who logged 9,000 flights from the deck.

A welcome home celebration is planned tomorrow night at the San Francisco City Hall Rotunda. Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and other city and naval officials will honor the Coral Sea's achievements during its 26-year history, a spokesman for the Coral Sea Committee, a citizens' group, said.

he would be joining Kissinger in Riyadh.

Israeli government sources in Tel Aviv said the peace plan provided that:

Israel will allow a supply corridor, supervised by United Nations forces, into the Egyptian 3rd army, whose 20,000 men are surrounded on the southern end of the Suez Canal. Cairo will not have full control of the route and no military supplies will be allowed in.

There will be full exchange of prisoners of war with Egypt, beginning as soon as possible with the wounded. Israel holds about 8,000 Egyptian prisoners while listing about 350 of its men missing on the southern front.

The Egyptians will lift their blockade of the Bab el-Mandeb Strait at the entrance to the Red Sea. The blockade had prevented ships from arriving from or departing to Asia from the port at Eilat.

Senior Israeli and Egyptian officers will begin negotiations about "tidying up" the cease-fire line in order to make it easier for UN forces to police and in order to prevent mistaken clashes. — Both sides understand that there are to be further direct negotiations on a permanent peace settlement, as provided in the UN Security Council resolution that formed the basis for the first cease-fire Oct. 22.

He refused to give the percentage of staff which actually quit or the total staff for the clinic.

The clinic was opened Jan. 6, 1964. It has relied on grants from private foundations and other private sources for funds and had received funds from the Marin County Board of Supervisors to continue operation for which private funds were not adequate.

Silberstein said a receptionist will stay at the clinic through Nov. 30 to refer patients, and the clinic's answering service will probably give referrals through the end of the year.

He said all former patients have already been discharged or referred to psychiatrists.

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — President Idi Amin Thursday sent a telegram to President Nixon congratulating him on not resigning. He said a weaker man might have committed suicide.

OBITUARIES

Claire V. Rogers Dies At 78

Clare V. Rogers, 12-year resident of Marin County, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital following a long illness.

Mrs. Rogers, 78, was born in San Francisco. After graduating from Miss Marion's School in that city and San Francisco Normal School, now San Francisco State University, she taught grade school in Martinez.

She was married 53 years to Thomas B. Rogers. They spent most of that time ranching in Chico, where she also worked with local crippled children.

They retired to Marin County in the 1960s and Mrs. Rogers became active in the Marin Audubon Society and the Sierra Club.

Memorial service is tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley. Burial will be private.

The family has asked that memorial gifts be made to the Marin County Crippled Children's Fund or to the donor's favorite charity.

NATHAN SCHWARTZ

Schwartz was a native of New York City and came to California in 1946, settling in Petaluma. He moved to Mill Valley two years ago.

Schwartz was employed in the Office of Civil Rights for the Department of Human Resources Development.

He is survived by his wife, Sylvia; a son, Jerry Schwartz of Petaluma; a daughter, Lisa Schwartz of Berkeley, and a sister, Hannah Dorenfeld of Petaluma.

Funeral will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Burial will be at B'nai Israel Cemetery.

The family prefers contributions be made to the United Jewish Appeal.

HERMAN BROOKMAN

Private memorial service will be held for Herman Brookman of Larkspur, a retired architect who died Tuesday at a local convalescent hospital following a long illness.

Brookman, 83, was born and reared in New York City where he also studied architecture. He practiced there until 1923 when he moved to Portland, Ore.

In Portland, he designed many homes and office buildings including the Lloyd Frank Estate which has been bought by Lewis and Clark College to serve as part of its campus.

He also designed buildings for Oregon State University.

He served on the Oregon Planning Commission and was a fellow of the American Institute of Architects and a past president of the Portland Chapter of that group.

In 1966, he retired to Larkspur where he lived until his death.

He is survived by his wife, Sophie; two sons, Dr. Bernard Brookman of Santa Cruz and Emanuel Brookman of San Francisco; a daughter, Dorothy Jenck of Fresno, and seven grandchildren.

IRIS GREENLAW

Private funeral has been held for Iris S. Greenlaw, 10-year resident of Marin County and retired schoolteacher.

Mrs. Greenlaw, 70, died Tuesday at a local hospital following a long illness.

She is survived by her son, Martin, of San Rafael.

Burial was at Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MARTHA PEDERSEN

Martha J. Pedersen, 62, a former floral shop operator, was discovered dead at her Novato home yesterday, apparently from natural causes, according to Deputy Coroner Donald L. Cornish.

Mrs. Pedersen of 1733 Center Road was discovered dead by her sister, Alma Morse, at noon yesterday. She had last been seen alive Monday, according to Novato police.

She operated a floral shop on Grant Avenue in Novato and later worked as a clerk at Egger's Nursery in Novato before retiring a few years ago.

Mrs. Pedersen was a native of Red Bluff and had been a resident of Novato for 17 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Linda Pedersen of Mill Valley, and three sisters, Mrs. Morse of Novato, and Ann Wyatt and Clara Hiebert, both of Salem, Ore.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato. Burial will be at Salem, Ore.

M. J. DELUCCHI

Mass of the resurrection for Melvin Julius Delucchi of Tiburon, a retired pharmacist, will be said Monday at 10 a.m. at St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon.

Delucchi, 61, was taken to Marin General Hospital by ambulance Tuesday and pronounced dead. Relatives said he had a history of heart trouble.

A native of Oakland, Delucchi lived most of his life in San Francisco. He has been in Tiburon 16 years, residing at 550 Tenaya Drive.

He received his degree in pharmacy from the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco and then worked 40 years at Reliable Drugs in the Sunset District of that city.

He served as a pharmacist during World War II in North Africa.

He belonged to the Sierra Club, the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society, the National Audubon Society, the Point Reyes Bird Observatory and the Nature Conservancy.

Survivors include his wife of 20 years, Julia Delucchi; a sister, Mrs. Eleanor DeMartini of San Anselmo; two nieces and a nephew.

Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery in Colma.

CONSTANCE NICHOLS

Funeral for Constance D. Nichols, technician for the Pacific Telephone Co. in Sausalito, will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Riverwood Chapel, Garberville.

Miss Nichols, 23, died Monday at her home at 1533 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

She was born in Ferndale, Humbolt County, and graduated from South Fork High School there. She attended Chico State College for two years. For the past three years she had worked for the telephone company in Marin County.

She is survived by her parents, Wally and Ruth Nichols; a sister, Marlene McGrath, all of Garberville; a brother, Floyd Nichols of Seattle, Wash., and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnes of South Sioux City, Neb.

Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park, Eureka.

Memorial contributions to the Grace Lutheran Church Building Fund at Redway, Humboldt County, are preferred by the family.

CARMELITA KELLY

Carmelita Kelly, mother of Stanley Kelly of San Rafael, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, Mrs. Kelly, 90, had spent most of her life in that city until she became ill about six years ago and was hospitalized.

She was the widow of the late Charles Kelly, a San Francisco policeman who died in 1932.

Survivors include two other sons, Cas Rogers of San Francisco and Lloyd Kelly of Santa Rosa, eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. She was also the mother of the late Charles R. Kelly.

Private funeral will be held tomorrow at Russell and Gooch Funeral Home in Mill Valley followed by burial at Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

SARAH BUSH

Sarah E. Bush of Santa Venetia, a homemaker for more than 70 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a brief illness. She was 89.

A native of Cedar, S.D., she lived most of her life in Wyoming where her late husband, Joseph, was a cattle rancher. She moved to California and Marin County two years ago and lived here with her daughter, Helen B. Fisher.

In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Bush is survived by two other daughters, Ruby B. Hughes of El Segundo, Los Angeles County, and Esthermarie Kephart of Fontana, San Bernardino County; a son, Roche D. Bush of Davis; 15 grandchildren; 28 great-grandchildren, and three great-great-grandchildren. Three other children, Pearl E. Chase, Guy N. Bush and Joe H. Bush, preceded her in death.

Burial will be in Jakcson, Wyo.

Farm Planning Session Reset

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department officials have decided to move their annual Outlook Conference up from February to mid-December in an effort to help farmers and farm suppliers make early advance plans for an all-out production drive next year, the agency announced today.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said the conference would be held Dec. 17-19.

"Farmers will be making more complex production and marketing decisions than usual in 1974," Butz said.

"We want to give (them) all the help we can with up-to-date outlook information and last-minute reports on the probable avilability of fuel, pesticides, fertilizer, farm equipment and related supplies," the farm official added.

Other spokesmen said the decision to shift the conference to December probably would mean a deemphasis of consumer-oriented sessions at the meeting. An official of the Department's Economic Research Service said conference planners earlier had been discussing potential consumer panel sessions with Butz's consumer aide, Mrs. Nancy Steorts.

"But with the meeting being held in December instead of February, I'm not sure now there'll be time to arrange these," the official said. However, the program will include some standard panels on home and food economics and consumer-oriented groups will be invited to attend, the spokesman added.

Pressure Mounts On Moving Industry

LONG BEACH (UPI) —Virginia Knauer, consumer adviser to President Nixon, said Wednesday pressure for increased government regulation of the moving industry is growing in the wake of alleged poor treatment of customers.

"All too often the household goods moving industry lets the customer down—with a thud. The complaints that pour into government offices show that time and time again the consumer's household goods are treated more like trash than treasures," Mrs. Knauer said in a speech prepared for the Bekins Co. convention.

Missing Woman Is Found Dead

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The partially-clothed body of a young woman with her hands tied behind her back was found yesterday in bushes behind the boathouse at Stowe Lake in Golden Gate Park.

Coroner's deputies identified her as Laura A. Odell, 21, San Francisco. Investigators said Miss Odell had been missing since Sunday.

Police said she had head injuries and might have been strangled. The coroner's office said the cause of death was not immediately known.

Miss Odell was clothed only in a blouse. The rest of her clothing was scattered in the bushes.

US Steel Cited For Air Pollution

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — The federal Environmental Protection Agency today cited US Steel Corp. for 63 violations under the state's air pollution control plan for alleged emissions at the steelmaker's massive Clairton coke works.

The charges were filed one day after President Nixon asked the Congress to consider easing pollution standards as one means of combating the nation's fuel crisis.

The firm has 30 days in which to remedy the violations or face an EPA federal court suit for civil or criminal penalties.

A Solution Offered To Hunger Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Growing productivity in agriculture can stave off massive world hunger problems for the next 20 years or so, an Agriculture Department expert says.

The longer-range outlook is grim, however, unless the world adopts more effective population control programs, added Don Paarlberg, direct of economics for the department.

"While it seems possible, indeed likely, that agriculture can keep up with population growth or even a half-step ahead for the next couple of decades, in the long ran there must be a reduction in the birthrate if disaster is to be avoided," Paarlberg said in a speech made available here.

"Present rates of population growth worldwide, if projected into the 21st Century, simply run off the page. In the long run, unless population growth is checked, there is no solution to the world food problem," the official said.

Paarlberg said steps needed for the future included "research and action on family planning," plus research on food production and technical agricultural aid to developing nations.

"To those who fear that an effort of this kind might plunge us into a surplus problem, we should remind ourselves... that where hunger and human lives are involved, if we are to err it is better to err on the side of abundance rather than of scarcity, " he said.

Paarlberg said he expects world farm production over the next few years to continue the recovery which began in 1973. As a result, he said, although farm prices are likely to remain comparatively high, American farmers might find themselves again in a cost-price squeeze with inflated costs narrowing their profits.

Two Sextuplets Are Doing Well

DENVER (AP) — Doctors say Catherine and Nathan, the only two of the surviving Stanek sextuplets to remain hospitalized eight weeks after their birth, may go home next week.

Their three brothers, Steven and John, who went home 10 days ago, and Jeffrey, who went home yesterday, are all reported doing well at the Stanek home in suburban Lakewood.

Their father, Eugene Stanek, 31, an accountant, said he and his wife, Edna, 34, are starting to get used to taking care of the babies, who were born Sept. 16 about six weeks premature.

Flowers Say It

BERLIN (UPI) — Swedes say it with flowers more than any other Europeans according to the Interflora organization. Of every 1,000 Swedes 219 sent a bouquet of flowers to someone at home or abroad during 1972. West Germans were next with 75 bouquet-givers out of each 1,000 population.

Future Could See Only Children As Meat Eaters

CHICAGO (UPI) —Children may be the only eaters of scarce meat, and adults will survive on soybeans, agricultural scientist Dr. George L. Sutherland predicted for the future yesterday.

Sutherland, director of research and development for the agricultural division of American Cyanamoid Co., also suggested Americans may be eating more buffalo, deer and elk steaks and less fried chicken and pork chops.

Reporting in The American Farmer magazine for November and December, Sutherland said, "The conversion of vegetables to animal protein is a wasteful process which becomes more unacceptable as the need, and effective demand, for protein for human consumption increases."

According to Sutherland, "The ultimate outcome of this competition for protein ... is that adults, who actually need little animal protein, will be eating vegetable protein, probably from oil seeds. The more precious meat will be reserved for children to whose proper development it is essential."

The magazine continues:

"The competition of animals versus humans for proteins will also lead to a radical change in the type of animals constituting our meat supply. More meat will be coming from ruminants, cattle and sheep, because these animals have the unique ability to produce protein from nonprotein nitrogen.

"Because of this, it's logical to expect that ruminants now considered game animals, such as bison, deer and elk, could become domesticated as meat animals. Poultry and swine, nonruminants, may eventually become scarcer in our diets.

IT'S A LONG WAY DOWN

Stunt man Dar Robinson, 26, made a world record fall of 126 feet during the filming yesterday of an ABC-TV movie, "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead," in Hollywood. Robinson made a complete flip during the fall and then appeared almost buried as he hit the air bag, then walked away after the 10-story leap. "It's just a day's work," said Robinson, whose pay is about $40,000 a year.

Aerosol Products Said Dangerous

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A private research group said today that aerosol products are dangerous to safety and health. It urged the government to clamp tight controls on them and consumers not to buy them for home use.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest said its yearlong study of aerosol sprays show they are dangerous because they can be misused or otherwise handled improperly and cause a new kind of air pollution in the home itself.

"We strongly recommend that aerosol spray products not be used in the home. Furthermore, we recommend that a public education program on the dangers of aerosol sprays used in the home should be launched by the Consumer Product Safety Commission," the research center said in a petition to the commission.

The commission said it would give the petition "very serious consideration," as it would any other petition. It said that its continuing study of the aerosol question has so far produced no conclusions.

"All toxic and unsafe aerosol products should be banned and removed from store shelves. Ingredients used in all aerosol spray products should be tested for carcinogenic, mutagenic and teratogenic effects before marketing, and at the manufacturer's expense," the group said.

The center specifically said the commission should study the amount of toxic substances used in aerosols, the safety of the containers, the usefulness and accuracy of the labels, the chance for misuse and the honesty and promotion of the products.

The industry could be able to child-proof containers and to make them less susceptible to explosion, but has not chosen to do so.

Training In Disaster Field Set

Marin County Disaster Council members last night unanimously approved plans for city, county and school districts' employees to participate in a disaster training exercise on Dec. 13.

The exercise will involve a simulated earthquake of 6.5 magnitude, and will concentrate on how school personnel and heavy rescue forces would react.

The council at its quarterly meeting also approved plans for publication and mass distribution of a brochure telling the public where public shelters and other emergency services are available throughout Marin. The council asked the board of supervisors to share half the estimated $6,500 cost; the balance will come from state and federal funds, coordinator Frank E. Kirby explained.

The council also asked the county animal health and control advisory committee to draft a proposed program for care of domestic animals or wildlife during emergencies such as oil slicks, earthquakes or major fires, for possible inclusion in the countywide disaster plan.

Marlene Falls After Her Show

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI) — Singer Marlene Dietrich fell from the stage after a performance here last night, witnesses said, but she was apparently not hurt.

She was performing at the Shady Grove Music Fair near Washington when she walked over to shake hands with her conductor and fell into the orchestra pit, apparently ripping her dress.

Supervisors Give Petaluma Little Support On Water Wells

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma got little support for new water wells yesterday from the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors despite warnings of water rationing next summer.

Petaluma has asked the Sonoma County Water Agency to drill two new wells at Rohnert Park to supply an additional one million gallons of water per day to Petaluma for use during peak periods in summer months.

With the exception of Supervisor Philip L. Joerger of Petaluma, the special committee of three supervisors indicated little support for the plan.

Supervisors Robert Theiller and Charles Hinkle said a complete report must be prepared first on how the new wells would affect the water table in the area. They said rural residents who depend completely on well water could be adversely affected.

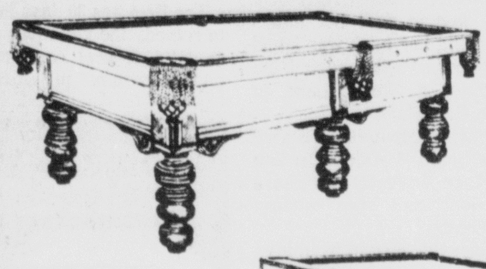

Petaluma City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer complained that such a study would take years to complete and force Petalumans to ration water. He said the extra supply is needed only on an interim basis until the new aqueduct system is completed in 1976.

Meyer told the board the extra water would supply only current residents and would not be designed to bring more growth. He said that previous tests made show the water table only slightly reduced despite heavy use of well water by Rohnert Park.

Meyer also told the board committee that well water used in the summer would be replentished during the winters.

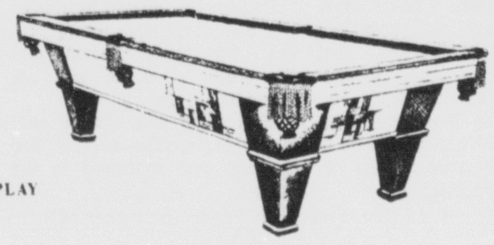

The request for wells will be repeated at a meeting of the board of supervisors Nov. 19.

Water Bond Loss To Affect Taxes

Tuesday's defeat of the Marin Municipal Water District's water supply bond issue could mean higher taxes for some county property owners and lower taxes for others, Marin's assistant assessor said today.

Herschel Johnson said a continuation of the district's moratorium on new water connections — which appears certain — will probably result in some changes in assessed valuation of land in the county next year.

"There's no question that we are going to have to lower the assessed valuation of vacant land that doesn't have water available to it," Johnson told the Independent-Journal.

And this will, in turn, mean lower property taxes for owners of that land, he said.

Barring any tax cuts, the deficit will have to be made up by higher taxes for persons who own improved properties, according to the assistant assessor.

He predicted that a continuation of the moratorium will push up the value of improved property "higher than it normally would go."

Johnson said there is simply no way to tell at this time what the effect of a long-term ban on connections will be. During the next four months, the assessor's office will have to find out how many of the 11,048 unimproved parcels in the water district do not have water.

"Then we'll have to decide how long these parcels will be without water and go from there," he said. Exactly what his office will do or how much assessments will be lowered is still impossible to tell, he said.

"We'll have a much better idea when it comes time to revalue the property, around March 1," Johnson said.

Dan Deedy, executive director of the Marin County Board of Realtors, echoed Johnson's words and warned the bond issue defeat will turn Marin real estate into a "seller's market."

If no new water connections are granted and no new homes are built, it will become harder and harder to buy a home in the county, he said.

"Homes are going to be terribly overpriced as long as there are no new houses to compete with those already on the market," he said.

"Unfortunately, an owner is going to be able to ask for — and get — any price he wants. It scares the hell out of guys in our business."

Both Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste and Jordan L. Martinelli Jr., president of the Marin Municipal Water board, are thinking of working for a countywide water district in the wake of voter rejection of the bond issue.

"I believe a countywide water district would be good government and end up saving the people money," said Martinelli. "Besides, the North Marin County Water District has the water and we have the storage facilities, so we could both benefit."

Martinelli said he would also urge construction of the North Marin intertie, which would bring 4,000 acre feet of water into the water district annually. The intertie was approved by voters in 1970, but has never been built.

It is still uncertain how the continued lack of water will affect large projects which require large amounts of water. For example, will the San Rafael and Tiburon redevelopment projects and the Larkspur ferry terminal be able to obtain the water they need?

"We're in a little bit of an uproar now and don't really know which way to go," said J. Dietrich Stroeh, water district manager of engineering. "But we're certainly going to have to start thinking about these things."

Lagunitas Board Defeats Resolution In Nixon Ouster

The Lagunitas School District board by a split vote last night defeated a resolution asking the House of Representatives to impeach President Richard M. Nixon.

The vote was only 3-2 with trustees Richard Sloan and Marilyn Marioni voting for the resolution.

Sloan introduced the resolution. He said that Nixon has violated enough laws to be impeached three times over. His administration has so damaged government that it has damaged the ability of people to govern in any level of office, including school boards, Sloan said.

The Lagunitas School District Board Also:

CONTRACT — Approved a four-year contract with Supt. Harry F. Roche retroactive to last July 1 when his original two-year contract expired. The new contract does not call for any increase in salary as his salary will increase when the teachers get raises.

TEACHERS — Recognized the independent Lagunitas Teachers Association as the bargaining agent for the teachers.

FOOD STAMPS — Received a report that the district cannot accept food stamps for milk distributed at school.

CUT — Roche reported that the Elementary and Secondary Education Act Title I funds had been cut by $4,700 from $17,291 to $12,591.

FURNITURE — Appropriated $300 for new furniture for the newly refurbished teachers' room at the Lagunitas School.

SALES TAX — Adopted a resolution asking the state legislature to exempt schools from paying sales taxes.

COMMITTEE — Named trustee Lee DiVincenzo as chairman of the committee to oversee the Marietta Larsen Nature preserve a nature study area between the two schools.

ACCOUNTING — Received a report from Roche that the board should hold several workshops on the new state accounting manual before the new method goes into effect next July 1. The board did not set any specific time for the workshops.

Confidence Vote

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Prime Minister Anker Joergensen's Social Democrats lost a vote of confidence on a tax bill in Parliament today and Joergensen called for new elections Dec. 4.

Venison Haul

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas deer hunters took home almost $12 million worth of venison during 1972, according to state wildlife officials. The estimate was based on yield of 53 pounds of boneless meat per animal at a price of 85 cents per pound.

IN A MOTHER'S EYES

Welfare Is All Crumbs, No Cake

By FRANK FARRARA

Mothers on welfare live in a world where a napkin is a luxury.

It is a world of second hand clothes and plain food — where the kindness of parents and friends is the bulwark against utter bleakness.

Sitting in an office at the Novato Human Needs Center on a rainy afternoon, three mothers gave a glimpse of their struggles to exist in affluent Marin.

They reflected what Henry B. Mattimore, center director, described the most "common problem" faced by the center — finding housing and jobs for single and divorced mothers with small children.

A mother of two children, who receives a welfare payment of $235 a month for "rent, all bills and food stamps," said the cost of housing eats into the food money.

Theoretically, one-third of the payment should go to rent, one-third for food and one-third for "all the rest," she said.

"Here two-thirds goes for rent and the rest for food," she said.

She pays $170 a month rent for her apartment, about as low as rents go in Marin, $30 to purchase $96 worth of food stamps, and the rest for all other expenses.

The food stamps can't be used for personal hygiene items such as toothpaste, laundry soap or bath soap, she said.

"You eat a lot of rice and potatoes," said a second mother who has one child.

"You learn to buy in quantity and tear it down ... make three or four meals," said a third mother. "You have to plan every single meal and buy exactly what you need. You learn to read the newspapers and find the buys."

One mother, who shares a home with another welfare mother, said she had a vegetable garden this year and "the kids got to eat real corn."

The mothers, who all have pre-school children, can get supplemental food, peanut butter, powdered milk, fruit juices, etc., at the center under a federal program.

"If it wouldn't be for this place, I wouldn't be making it, one said. "I've run out of food. The price of food is going up, so they should give us more stamps."

The mothers agreed that one would have to live in a rural district where costs are lower to get by on welfare payments, but they are in a bind because they can't "get the money together to move from Marin."

As for buying clothing, "You don't," said one mother. "You have what relatives give you or second-hand clothes from the Human Needs Center."

"You rip down your own clothes to fit the children," said another.

"If it hadn't been for what my parents send my kids would be barely clothed," said another.

Preschool children don't mind wearing second-hand clothes, "but when they start going to school they start to mind," one mother said.

As for finding a job, "there aren't a whole lot" in Marin and transportation is a problem, since the women don't own cars.

"If you have a friend who has a car you can get a ride or if you don't you have to pay bus fare," and that fare would come from money needed for food and rent they explained.

Then too, if a mother is working, she has to find day care for her children, another expense, they said.

The mothers criticized the district attorney's office for not collecting child support payments from husbands and in one case, an unwed father.

One mother said she was supposed to get $101 a month from her ex-husband but she only gets $1. "He's about $2,200 behind," and the DA's office doesn't do anything."

"They want us off welfare, but they don't find the absent parent to supply the money so we can go out and support ourselves," a mother said.

A mother who works at the center said that with her salary and $150 from the unwed father, "I could make it fine."

She said the father of her child was supposed to send $150 a month and is about $7,000 to $8,000 behind in payments. "The DA has the case and knows where he's working and that's it."

She said she started attending classes at Indian Valley Colleges and tried to get $30 or $40 a semester from the welfare department for "books and things," but they wouldn't do it.

The only way the welfare department will pay for schooling is if it's short-term, not a four-year course, she said.

Mother Refused Children Back

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Without comment, California's Supreme Court refused yesterday to return two children to a woman who said a judge had taken them from her on the grounds she had entered a lesbian relationship.

Judge Lincoln Mahan in Sonoma County Superior Court denied the contention and said "the mother's conduct was having an adverse effect on the two youngsters."

The high court denied a petition from Carol Parott, 28, of El Verano.

Teamsters To Honor Farm Pacts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The jurisdictional dispute between two labor organizations which seek to represent California farm workers was rekindled yesterday when the Teamsters Union said it would honor its pacts with growers.

Teamster president Frank E. Fitzsimmons' announcement destroyed a tentative agreement to settle the dispute between his independent union and Cesar Chavez' AFL-CIO United Farm Workers.

The tentative agreement had been worked out in September by AFL-CIO president George Meany and called for the Teamsters to abandon their struggle with the UFW and to repudiate existing labor contracts with growers.

Fitzsimmons, in throwing out the agreement reached by his lieutenants, said the Teamsters would "keep our moral as well as legal obligations" to the growers.

The Teamster president implied his decision was prompted by threats of legal action by growers.

Lee C. Shaw, an attorney representing growers, had told newsmen he had threatened to "sue him (Fitzsimmons) to death if he didn't honor the contracts."

Chavez asserted "this proves what we've always told the nation —the Teamsters act in bad faith."

"Those negotiations were just a tactic to buy time and escape the moral and public pressure on them."

The UFW leader held that the decision would help him with national boycotts against grapes and lettuce produced by field hands belonging to the Teamsters.

Meany refused to comment pending a formal statement from Fitzsimmons, who did not say specifically which of the Teamster contracts with growers would be honored.

The Teamsters and the UFW first clashed after Chavez signed his first contracts with vineyards and turned his attention to crops such as lettuce in the Salinas area.

Guards Keep Vesco's Plane Closely Eyed

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — Police beefed up their vigilance of fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco yesterday, posting guards on his private plane in further moves to keep him from leaving the Bahamas.

Vesco, under indictment with former Nixon cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans on conspiracy and obstruction of justice charges, was arrested Tuesday on a US extradition request and freed on $75,000 bail. The hearing is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Police kept tabs on the 36-year-old millionaire's white plane at Nassau Airport yesterday. That measure was in addition to what officials called "intensive surveillance" placed on his plush Nassau villa following his arrest.

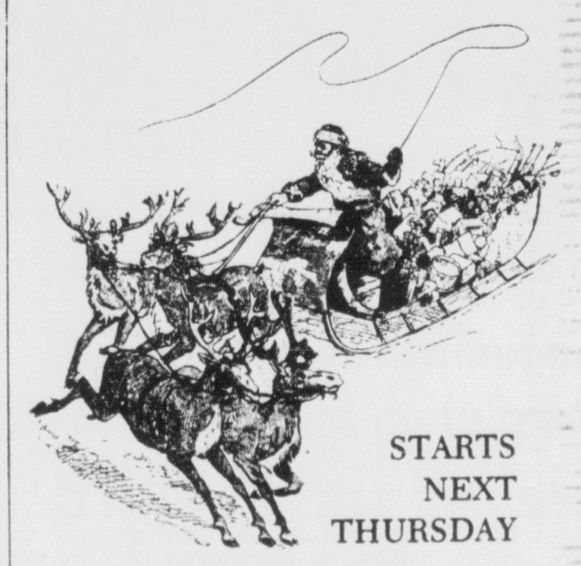

All Vesco's documents, including his passport, have been confiscated in further moves designed to keep him in the Bahamas.

Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling, questioned in Parliament yesterday about Vesco's status in the Bahamas before the arrest, said the wealthy American had legitimate work permits to conduct business here.

Vesco, who left the United States in February, was arrested on a fraud charge not connected with the Mitchell-Stans case. Fraud is an extraditable offense, while the conspiracy charges facing him in the Watergate-related matter are not.

Vesco, former Attorney General Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Stans are charged with conspiracy and obstruction of justice in connecton with alleged attempts to tamper with a federal probe of Vesco's financial affairs in return for a secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

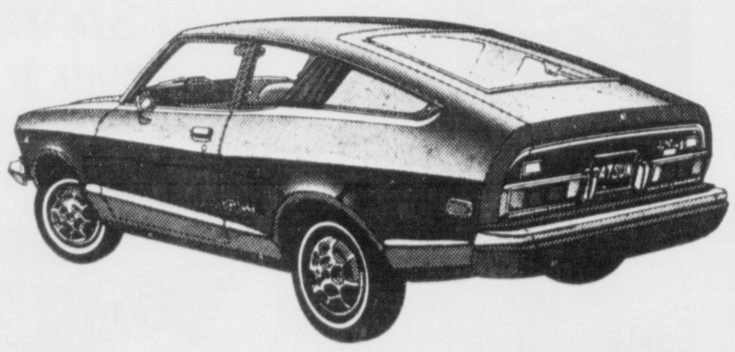

U.S. Attorney's Office officials in New York said Vesco, if extradited, could be tried only on the fraud charge.

BEATS A PROBLEM

Never Too Late To Start New Career

A Ross man under a doctor's care for more than seven years for bronchitis, asthma and emphysema has patented a device he invented to relieve his suffering.

Charles J. Bradley, former Ross clerk and treasurer, developed the "Bradley Theraputic Emphysema Retardation Apparatus" to help clear his bronchial tubes and facilitate breathing.

Bradley's device is a straight board on a rotating axis. The patient lies on the board, secures his feet in a stirrup and elevates his feet above his head with a lever attached to the board and axis.

The position of head lower than buttocks was suggested to Bradley by his physician, Dr. John C. Siemens of Kentfield, as the best position for clearing the bronchial tubes.

Dr. Siemens noted that Bradley had difficulty breathing while walking only a short distance on level ground before beginning treatment with the device. He now walks on the level and around hills near his home with undue shortness of breath, according to his doctor.

Bradley's "vital capacity" has increased by 20 per cent as measured by his pulmonary function, the physician said.

Dr. Siemens said the use of the apparatus not only has stopped the usual progression of emphysema but actually has improved Bradley's condition.

Bradley said he has embarked on a new career in inventing at age 78.

He is presently attempting to have the device manufactured and distributed.

House Debt Ceiling Bill Is Less Than Requested

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has approved a $475.7 billion federal debt ceiling, $4.3 billion below the amount the White House requested and $2.3 billion under the Ways and Means Committee recommendation.

The House approved the debt ceiling bill and sent it to the Senate yesterday after accepting an amendment by Rep. Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho, to cut the Ways and Means Committee ceiling of $478 billion.

Symms said it was time to "send a message to the White House and to the appropriations committees that we want budget control."

The administration has projected that the national debt will reach the $475 billion mark by next May 31, and the ceiling would not allow at that time the $3 billion margin for contingencies the Treasury likes to have available for emergencies.

Edward P. Snyder, director of Treasury's office of debt analysis, said: "It really has the effect of making it doubtful whether we could get through this fiscal year without the need for further congressional action."

The Senate could increase the House-passed limit, and is likely to attach amendments increasing the minimum tax paid on preferential income and possibly a social security benefits increase.

British Drivers

LONDON (UPI) — Keith Speed of Britain's Department of the Environment told the House of Commons recently that of people who take Britain's driving license test, 53 per cent fail.

Paper Sued For Libel By Rebozo

MIAMI (UPI) —Presidential confidante Charles G. Rebozo has filed a $10 million suit against the Washington Post Co., charging the newspaper libeled him in a story about a stock transaction.

Rebozo, in a suit filed in Miami federal court yesterday, said the Post libeled him Oct. 25 when it ran a front page article alleging he cashed $91,500 in stolen stocks in 1968 after being told they were stolen.

The second paragraph of the same story carried a denial of the charges by a lawyer speaking for Rebozo.

The investigator, George H. Riley Jr., said he told Rebozo in 1968 that 900 shares of IBM stock accepted as collateral for a loan by Rebozo's Key Biscayne bank were stolen.

Rebozo charged that Riley's statements are "patently false."

U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King ruled in favor of the bank in the case in 1970 and reaffirmed the ruling last week.

Gulf May Close Many Stations

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. says it may have to close some of its 144 service stations in this area because of the gasoline shortage.

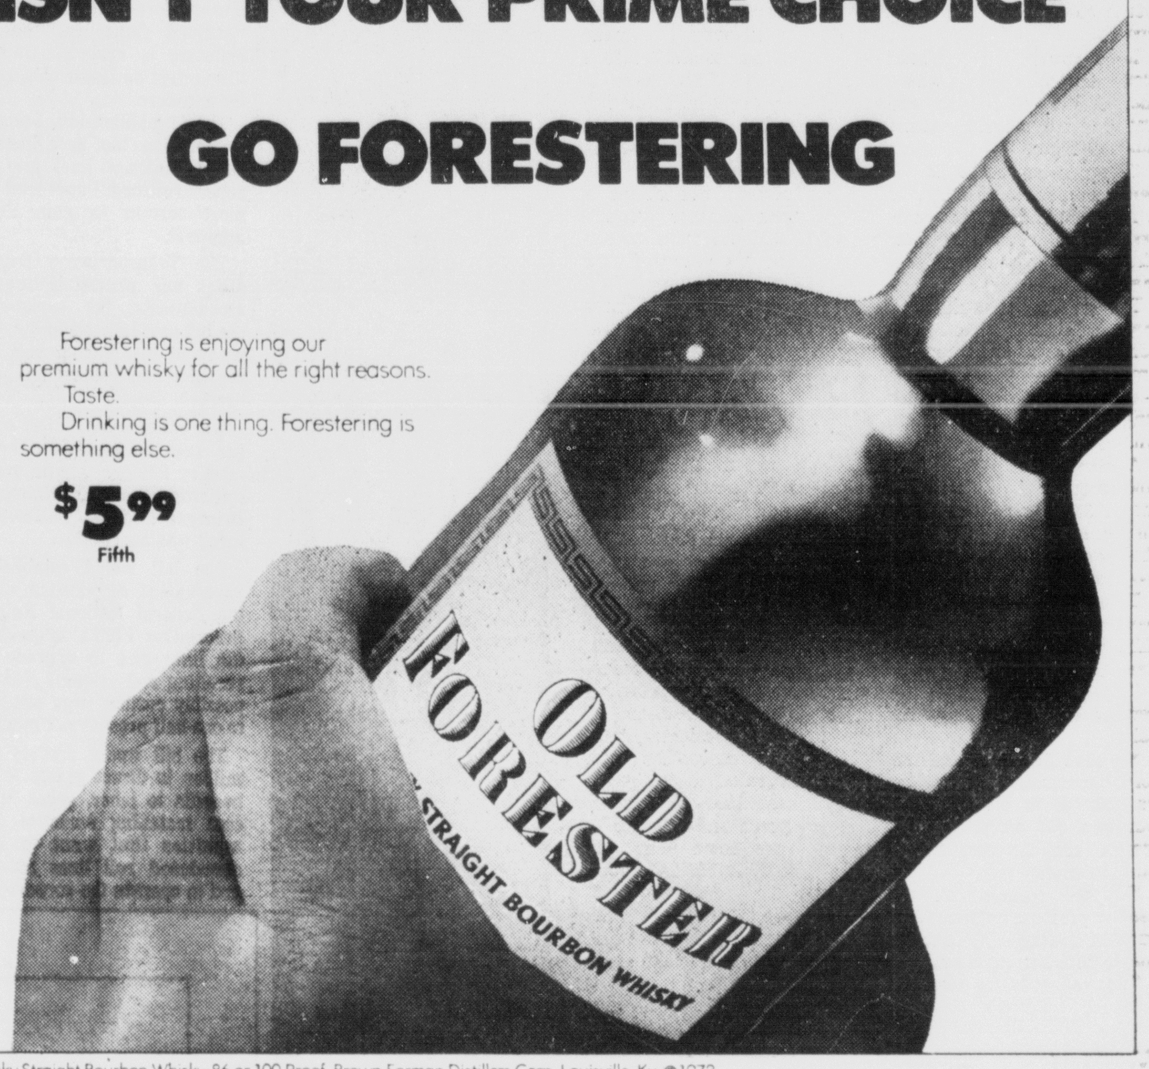

Richard L. Heaton, director of public relations for Gulf, said yesterday that as many as 17 stations could be closed initially.

HE HAS THE SOLUTION

Firing up his potbelly stove in his bedroom, Del Bennett of East Lansing, Mich., shows how he will keep warm on cold nights — energy crisis or no energy crisis. Bennett has been keeping warm the same way during the winter ever since he can remember and doesn't have to worry about running out of fuel. He says he's got enough firewood stockpiled to keep his small frame farmhouse heated for many years to come.

Marin Residents Will Receive Housing Authority Preference

Local residents should be given first chance at available public housing before offering units to low-income families from outside the county, the Marin County Housing Authority board agreed last night.

However, the board said, if Marin residents decline the available dwellings — primarily in Marin City — it may consider seeking to fill them with families from outside the county.

The board's policy statement came as Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd and his staff reported that there are currently 26 vacant apartments in the housing project in Marin City.

Ten of those units, Shepherd said, are being left vacant "as a resource" for possible relocation of Hilarita residents in Tiburon and leased housing tenants being forced to move.

Three units will be ready for occupancy at the end of the week, three are judged to be too damaged to repair at this time and three are being left vacant for contractors to use in estimating costs of remodeling more than 100 other units.

One unit is occupied by a tenant undergoing eviction proceedings, another has foundation damage from sinkage and the remaining five are awaiting refurbishing.

The vacancy problem is compounded, Shepherd said, by a reluctance of housing authority tenants elsewhere in the county to move into Marin City.

The authority has lost 20 to 30 of its leased housing homes in the last few months, he said, explaining rents have increased above the maximum amount the authority can pay.

Tenants occupying these homes have been offered Marin City apartments but have turned them down, Shepherd added.

Hilarita residents, meanwhile, are fighting relocation, saying they prefer to remain in their vintage apartments until new units are built on another portion of the Hilarita site. They have been promised first choice for the new unit.

Bill To Save Railroads Said Costly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar says legislation to restructure bankrupt northeastern railroads will be "damned expensive," but his criticism is expected to have little effect on House passage of the measure.

The $1.4 billion bill, designed to combine the best lines of seven bankrupt lines into one super railroad, appeared almost certain to gain House approval.

The Transportation Department has prepared several amendments, but backers of the bill said they could live with many of the amendments and probably could defeat the unacceptable ones.

One congressional staff member said backers were heartened by Brinegar's mild tone in criticizing the bill, pointing out Brinegar said its "basic structure" was acceptable.

The bill would establish a government corporation called the Federal National Railway Association (FNRA) to purchase the lines and to upgrade the resulting rail system, although possibly cutting from one-third to one-half present rail mileage.

The bill would provide $400 million in direct grants to pay benefits to labor, grant 70 per cent matching funds to communities that want to keep abandoned rail lines running, and to operate the corporation.

Bused Students Learning Less

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The average youngster who is bused to public school in San Francisco doesn't achieve as much academically as those who walk, tests showed yesterday.

But Harold Weeks, the system's director of research, warned that the testing has not been extensive enough and doesn't necessarily mean the district's integration program is failing.

In the district, both minority and white pupils who were bused were a month behind walkers in reading at the first grade level and two months behind by grade three.

In one zone, however, bused students did better than walkers in first grade reading.

GREENING OF THE LIMBS

Christmas Tree Harvest Begins

By TOM DAMMANN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PELLSTON, Mich. — Christmas is close at hand.

Workmen have been painting trees green on the vast Christmas tree plantations near here and that means harvesting and shipping is due to begin.

In September the largest grower-shipper in the area, Walter Romanik of Cheboygan, with 5,000 acres leased or owned outright, tagged the 120,000 to 130,000 trees he starts shipping from here next week.

Romanik's trees are destined for Texas, Florida, Oklahoma and California.

The trees were sprayed in October with a substance containing a green dye and a needle preservative to maintain their natural characteristics as long as possible in the hot, dry climates to which they are shipped. The spray also acts as a fire deterrent.

Growing and selling Christmas trees is one of Michigan's important businesses. The state has become the largest exporter of plantation trees in the nation, said Lester E. Bell, forestry extension specialist at Michigan State University.

Michigan ranks third in total shipment, behind Washington and Oregon, which ship mainly "wild" trees, he says.

Last year's cutting of 4,750,000 trees was worth $14.25 million wholesale and $26.25 million retail. Wholesale prices ranged from $1.10 to $7.10 FOB (free on board) the plantation. Three out of five trees were exported, with the domestic demand met by small growers and by imports from Wisconsin, Minnesota and Canada.

However, the situation may change drastically.

Bell said, "We aren't planting enough trees. Only 3 million trees were planted last year."

Ninety per cent of the crop is Scotch pine, and is grown in the sandy soil in a band extending north along the shore of Lake Michigan from Saugatuck to Cross Village. More than 20,000 acres are involved, Bell said.

Romanik plants about 1,000 trees per acre and begins harvesting when they are eight to 10 years old. In the first year of cutting he expects to take 25 per cent of crop.

Crash Victim's Condition Good

A Burlingame man, injured Tuesday in a two-car crash on Shoreline Highway near Bolinas, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with bruises and possible head injuries.

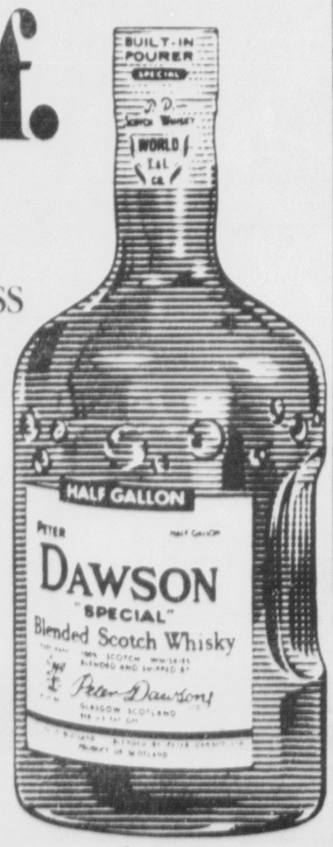

Orlo B. Hanson, 34, was hurt when his car and an auto driven by Alva Siedler, 68, of 106 Buena Vista, Stinson Beach, collided at the intersection of Bolinas Road, the California Highway Patrol reported.

According to the highway patrol, Seidler's northbound auto was making a left turn from Shoreline Highway onto Bolinas Road when the collision with Hanson's auto, traveling south, occurred in the intersection.

Nixon Signs Bill For Lunch Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has signed into law a bill authorizing about $220 million in additional subsidies to help hold down the cost of school lunches, it was disclosed today.

Congress passed the bill after some lawmakers warned that hundreds of thousands of children might be forced to quit buying school lunches because of cost increases made necessary by rising food prices.

Under the legislation, which the administration had opposed, the federal cash contribution to regular school lunches will rise from the present 8 cents per meal to 10 cents.

In addition to this step, anticipated to cost $85 million, there will be increases in federal subsidies on free and cut-price lunches served to needy children, and for school breakfasts.

Nearly 25 million children take part in the programs.

Jaworski Tells Of Assurances Watergate Probe Not Limited

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Leon Jaworski testified today President Nixon had given him "the most solemn and substantial assurances" of freedom in investigating Watergate, including the go-ahead if he thought necessary to sue in court for presidential documents.

"I think I have the right to go after things that Mr. Cox might not have gone after," he asserted.

Jaworski testified before Congress for the first time since he was sworn in Monday as the successor to Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor. He told a House Judiciary subcommittee he was satisified he would be able to operate without White House interference.

"I would not have accepted appointment as special prosecutor ... had I not received what I consider the most solemn and substantial assurances of my absolute independence," Jaworski said.

He said the assurances from the President were conveyed by White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig. Jaworski said Haig told him "I would have the right to sue the President ... Gen. Haig discussed this with the President and came back and gave me that assurance."

Nixon said in an Oct. 26 news conference, "we will not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor.

Jaworski said he met with Haig and told him "unless the assurances are beyond those received by Cox I would not be available."

Asked if the discussion with Haig led him to believe the President had changed his mind about his Oct. 26 statement, Jaworski replied, "Yes."

Jaworski said none of the administration officials with whom he talked before accepting the appointment had asked him for assurances the President would be protected in his investigations.

Jaworski told the committee he already had sent "two communications to the White House asking for information on matters of significance." He added, "some of the information called for has not yet been furnished." He would not identify the information sought.

"Mr. (J. Fred) Buzhardt said they are having difficulty locating it," Jaworski said. "In asking for what we seek we try not to impose too much of a burden on them. I'm trying to be reasonable but I pointed out in my letters to them that we have a grand jury sitting and we must move along."

Jaworski, a Houston attorney, told the subcommittee he doubted the desirability of congressional proposals to set up a new special prosecutor's office under jurisdiction of the courts.

Immediately after listening to Jaworski, the House panel planned to begin what could be a several-day process to write a bill to satisfy congressmen who want a court-appointed special prosecutor and those demanding he be kept under the jurisdiction of the executive branch with congressional safeguards against dismissal.

Roger C. Cramton, Nixon's constitutional adviser as assistant attorney general until he was fired last March, told the subcommittee yesterday he believes Nixon's recent actions were "irrational."

"I view them as irrational, successively getting advice one day from Rose Mary Woods, the next from (Ronald) Ziegler and the next day from (Charles G.) (Bebe) Rebozo," Cramton said, referring to Nixon's personal secretary, press secretary and best friend.

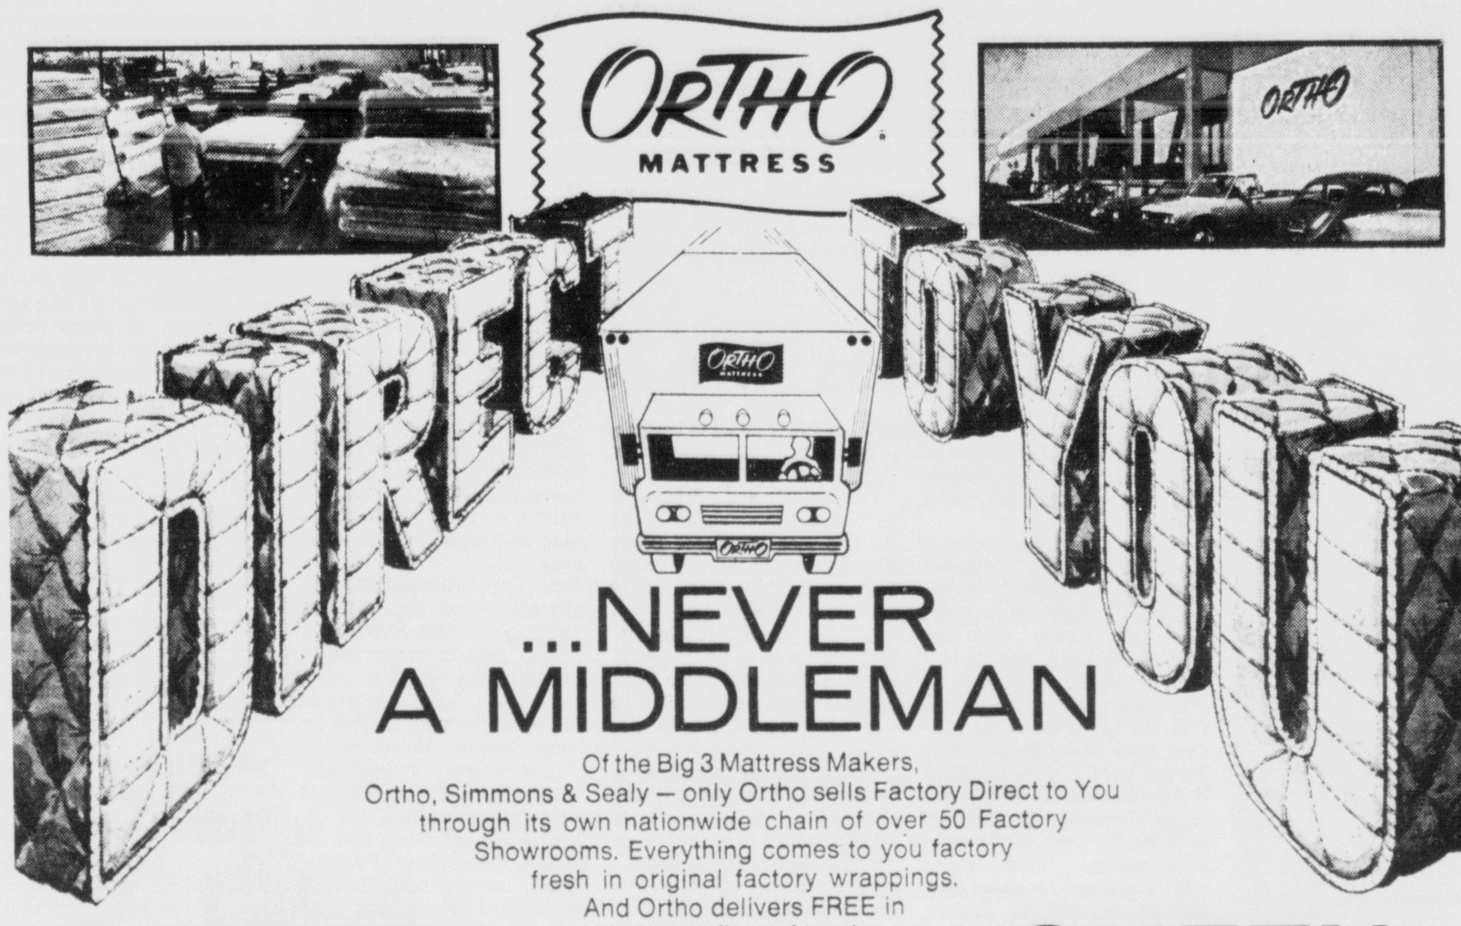

"The people who can bring bad news and the facts of life to him are all gone," he told reporters later.

Cramton, now dean of the Cornell Law School, advised the subcommittee to forget about writing a bill recreating an independent special prosecutor.

PRISONER ESCAPE — A car abandoned in a ditch a few hundred feet from where two escaped prisoners held three hostages was examined yesterday by a member of the Minnesota Highway Patrol. The prisoners were captured today after they fell asleep from exhaustion and their hostages escaped. (UPI Telephoto)

Two Prison Escapees Are Taken

WADENA, Minn. (UPI) — Two fugitives who shot their way out of jail, held a farm family hostage for two days and demanded a plane to freedom, were captured today after they fell asleep from exhaustion and their hostages escaped.

FBI special agent Joseph Trimbach said the hostages Elmer Wegscheid, his wife Joyce and their oldest son Ed, 15 — fled from their farmhouse at 4:15 a.m. when they noticed that the gunmen had fallen asleep.

Trimbach said the two fugitives, John Morgan, 37, charged with murder, and William Winans, 18, a burglary suspect, were not aware that the Wegscheids had escaped until two hours later.

Trimbach said police did not rush the house while the fugitives were asleep because they did not want a shootout. When it became light enough, and police observed the fugitives were awake, they ordered them to surrender.

Trimbach said he picked up a bullhorn and told the gunmen they had one minute to put on the shoes and walk out. The two men promptly surrendered without a struggle. He said they left their guns in the house.

Morgan and Winans shot their way out of the Wadena County jail Monday, wounding a jailer. They burst into the Wegscheid farmhouse on Tuesday and held Wegscheid, his wife, and four children hostage, demanding a light plane to fly them to safety.

Law officers and a Minneapolis Tribune newsman persuaded the two men to release Becky Wegscheid, 18, and her brothers, Ricky, 12, and Joel, 10, at midafternoon yesterday.

Morgan, who occasionally spoke to newsmen by telephone, admitted to United Press International late last night that he was suffering from a lack of sleep.

During similar telephone interviews with hostages during the ordeal, Wegscheid told newsmen the fugitives were "gentlemen" and "well-mannered" and they often had long talks over cups of coffee.

The fugitives were only a few hours away from what was supposed to be a final bargaining meeting with law officers when they surrendered. At the meeting, they were to give their decision on whether they would use an airplane to make a bid for freedom or surrender in exchange for reduced charges against them.

Police had kept a plane standing by at a nearby airport for the gunmen, and last night flew another to the airport as a standby measure in case something went wrong with the first plane.

During the conversation with UPI, Morgan was apologetic for involving the Wegscheid family.

"This type of ordeal should not happen to anybody, especially people like this (Wegscheids). I've the most respect for them. They're brave people. It's unfortunate," Morgan said.

Morgan and Winans had held two previous meetings with authorities, during which they demanded the airplane, two parachutes, two pup tents, football helmets and first aid gear to be used in their getaway but a snow storm grounded the plane. They also presented a list of five demands to authorities as conditions for surrender.

The demands sought reduced charges for themselves and a guarantee that no major charges would be filed against a teen-age girl accused of smuggling a gun to them in jail.

Computer Aiding Digs In Arizona

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Arizona State University archeologists have begun using a computer to store, analyze and retrieve field archeology data.

Teams of researchers recently fed data into a computer as it was collected at an ancient Hokoham civilization site near here. Scientists said the material would be catalogued and stored until staff and funds are available to completely excavate the huge site, believed to have been occupied from about 500 A.D., until 1400 A.D.

AFL-CIO Urges Members To Demand Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The AFL-CIO today asked its 13.5 million members to urge their congressmen to impeach President Nixon immediately.

The labor federation, launching a nationwide campaign, released a bill of particulars giving what it considers grounds for impeachment.

Among the reasons listed were charges that Nixon has "consistently lied" to the American people, that he has "used the office of the presidency for personal enrichment," brought dishonor on the office, violated the Constitution and caused "an erosion of public confidence in our democratic system of government."

"Until Richard Nixon is removed from office, we will not be able to get Watergate behind us," the AFL-CIO statement said. "We will not be able to proceed with sober and constructive solutions to our economic and social problems at home or to the dangers of war in the world."

The impeachment campaign among union members was an extension of the demand, voted by the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach Oct. 22, that Nixon either resign or be removed from office.

"Since then, Mr. Nixon has given clear evidence he does not intend to resign (and) the AFL-CIO therefore calls for his immediate impeachment," the labor federation said.

The call came in a full-page statement in the AFL-CIO's weekly newspaper. It was designed to be used as a leaflet for mass distribution among workers at plant gates, union meetings and membership mailings, officials said.

The statement explained the impeachment procedure and urged union members to write their congressmen and Chairman Peter Rodino of the House Judiciary Committee, which is considering several resolutions calling for impeachment.

Other items in the AFL-CIO bill of particulars were charges Nixon had violated civil liberties of government surveillance targets, created a personal secret police and interfered with freedom of the press by means of wiretaps, FBI investigations and threats of punitive action.

Others included charges Nixon secretly recorded conversations in his office, failed to keep promises for full disclosure of facts in the Watergate affair, secretly curtailed the FBI investigation of Watergate, involved the CIA in the Watergate coverup, and sought to keep from a federal court facts on the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

New Chief Of Secret Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) —H. Stuart Knight, 52, who headed the Secret Service squad guarding Richard M. Nixon during his tumultuous vice-presidential tour of Latin America in 1958, has been named chief of the service.

Knight, born in Canada and raised in Detroit, won the Treasury Department's highest award for his work on the 1958 trip, during which an anti-American mob rocked and stoned Nixon's car in Caracas.

He was named yesterday to succeed James J. Rowley, who reached the mandatory retirement age of 65 last month. His appointment to the $38,000 a year post is not subject to Senate confirmation.

Losing Capacities

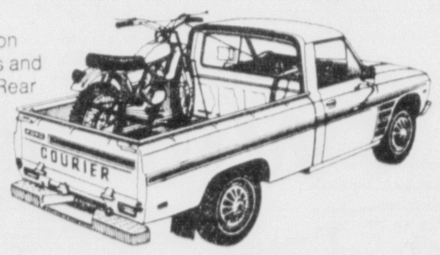

AUSTIN, Tex (UPI) — The vast subterranean fields of crude oil in Texas are losing their capacities to produce by 26,000 barrels per day according to Texas Railroad Commission chairman Jim C. Langdon. "This is distressing," he said. "This nation cannot afford for us to run short."

Nixon's Secretary Says Quality Of Tapes 'Very Bad'

She Doubts Possibility Of Verbatim Transcript

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, said today the quality of some of the conversations on the President's Watergate tapes is "very bad" although the equipment was sensitive enough to pick up some outside band music.

Miss Woods, testifying in Federal Judge John J. Sirica's court about the tapes which Nixon has agreed to turn over to the judge, said she had transcribed some of the conversations for Nixon. But she said a verbatim transcript was impossible.

"I could not get every word and I don't believe anyone else could," she said.

She said she was asked by the President to go to Camp David Sept. 29 to listen to the controversial tapes —which former Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox insisted on having before he was fired — and had worked many hours on them. But she said her job was far from finished.

Miss Woods said the quality was "very bad on some" of them, partly because of extraneous noises they picked up — from music apparently emanating from a formal ceremony on the White House lawn, to the loud noise of a coffee cup being banged on a desk.

Miss Woods, sometimes showing irritation at insistent questioning by special assistant prosecutor Jill Vollner, also testified that she made sure she didn't accidentally erase any portions of the tapes given her.

"I was very careful not to touch that side of the machine (including an erasure button)," she said. "...I think I used every precaution possible."

What specific precautions did she take? Miss Vollner asked.

"I used my head —it's the only one I've got."

She said she was unable to tell at times what some of the persons on the tapes were saying because the conversations overlapped.

Miss Woods said she still has 14 tapes in her possession and that they were protected carefully —locked in a safe in her office.

"They're in your safe?"

"Unless someone has stolen them since I left at a quarter to 10 this morning," Miss Woods snapped.

Miss Woods said she had worked more than a month on the tapes and provided the President the partial transcripts she had been able to make. She said Nixon recognized quickly her problems, after listening to some of the portions that were hard to make out.

"He listened a little bit and he said, 'I'm sorry it's such a terrible job'."

"The quality is very bad on some, depending on the room (in which they were recorded)," Miss Woods testified. "There are lots of funny things on it. If the President put his feet up on the desk —as he sometimes does —it sounds like a bomb in your ear. Or if someone brings a cup of coffee in and puts it down on the desk ... it's difficult.

ROSE MARY WOODS
Arrives for testimony

"Sometimes I could hear the President whistling. Other times, there were four people talking at once and I couldn't even get one voice."

Miss Woods, wearing a scarlet wool dress and a double strand of pearls, said she did not know anything about the White House recording system until its existence was disclosed in testimony before the Senate Watergate committee July 16.

She said she never heard any of the tapes until the weekend of Sept. 29, when she was asked to go to Camp David to help transcribe them.

She said she worked from that Saturday morning until 3 a.m. Sunday, got three hours sleep and worked through until Sunday evening.

"I had gone up there thinking I could finish it in one weekend and came back without finishing one," she said. "And I don't mean one tape, I mean just one conversation."

H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff who like Miss Woods has listened to some of the tapes, also was summoned by Sirica to testify at the hearings on the recordings and White House claims that tapes were not made, as previously believed, of two key Watergate conversations by the President.

A White House official, who asked not to be identified, also told UPI that some of the taped conversations were "hardly audible."

He made the comment after a witness testified yesterday that Miss Woods had complained that, while listening to one of them, she discovered "a gap in what she expected to be a recorded conversation."

The official said that from the portions of tapes he had listened to, the recording system in the White House was "not nearly as sensitive" as a former White House assistant who disclosed its existence had suggested.

The testimony that Nixon's conversations on some telephones and certain offices were recorded automatically was given by Alexander P. Butterfield, who said he had a major hand in installing the system. He now is new administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration.

Miss Woods was asked about the testimony by a White House official Wednesday about the "gap" in one tape she was listening to this week.

She said she discovered this morning she had been listening to the wrong tape and another was discovered for the same time period involving a conversation between the President and ex-White House counsel John W. Dean III last April 16.

"Are you satisfied, Miss Woods, there is no gap?" asked White House legal consultant Samuel J. Powers.

"I am perfectly satisfied," she replied.

Miss Woods, 55, who since June also has carried the title of executive assistant to the President, said she worked on the tapes after office hours through the last week in September and through the following weekend at the Florida White House in Key Biscayne.

She said the tapes were kept in a safe in a villa at the presidential compound under 24-hour guard.

She said she made single copies only of the partial transcript and that it was "given, directly, personally, by me to the President" with no copies being made. She said her typewriter ribbons were burned.

Miss Woods described her task of reviewing the tapes as a "very difficult job —not one you'd like for your life work." The testimony about the "gap" which Miss Woods said today she was no longer concerned about was given by John C. Bennett, deputy to White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig.

"Frankly, I'm baffled," said assistant special prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste when asked about the significance of the alleged "gap."

But by his questioning of Bennett and other witnesses about how the tapes were stored and handled, BenVeniste seemed to show concern that perhaps a third conversation may be missing and that tapes may have been tampered with.

"Does it have a 'record' button on it?" he asked Bennett about the machine Miss Woods was using to listen to the tapes.

"I don't know," Bennett replied.

"Does it have a capability to erase tape?"

"I do not know."

Well, Ben-Veniste asked, "if through some mistake or inadvertance a portion of tape Miss Woods is working with has been erased, mutilated or destroyed," are there any copies of the tapes available?

"So far as I know, no copy of any tape is in existence," Bennett replied.

Sirica admonished everyone, particularly members of the press "who act as the eyes and ears of the public" to "withhold final judgment and avoid reaching conclusions" about the validity and integrity of the tapes until expert technical witnesses are heard, beginning next week.

The inquiry began a week ago when White House lawyers, after first announcing Nixon would "comply in every respect" with two court orders compelling him to surrender nine of his Watergate tapes, told Sirica two of them could not be found and apparently never existed.

The White House said there was no tape of a four-minute Nixon conversation with John N. Mitchell June 20, 1972—three days after the Watergate bugging—because it was made from a phone not plugged into the White House recording system; and no tape of a 55-minute meeting Nixon had with Dean April 15 this year because the tape ran out before it began.

VANDALISM INVESTIGATED

A butane tank car was derailed under a footbridge in Ventura yesterday after it collided with a diesel engine. The car was one of five apparently cut loose by vandals from a Shell Oil Co. siding. The cars rolled down a slight incline, picking up speed as they went, and finally collided with a Southern Pacific engine. The lead tank car burst open and spilled a fog-like cloud of liquefied petroleum gas for about 100 feet. Two train crewmen were injured and the Ventura County sheriff's office is looking for two men in their mid-20s in connection with the incident.

Smog Patrolmen Get Police Aid

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Thanks to the San Francisco Police Department, smog inspectors this week launched a highway patrol to catch smoking cars.

The patrol, originally due to have started rolling in the Bay Area four months ago, was ready to go two weeks ago but then ran into a refusal by state officials to allow it to tie into data systems that help identify vehicles that have been stolen or used in crimes.

An indirect tie, however, was arranged this week with the San Francisco police, and the patrol begun by the Air Pollution Control District. Its administrator, D.J. Callaghan, had refused to allow the patrol without access to the systems.

Without the data, the unarmed inspectors could face dangerous persons, he argued.

Under the indirect system arranged with the police, the roving inspectors radio license plate information to the district's dispatcher. He then dials the police, who make the check of the statewide data systems.

A direct line from the dispatcher to the police will be installed to speed the checks, which now take about two minutes.

A spokesman for the district said it still will seek to have Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger overrule state Justice Department refusals to allow the district to use the data systems.

The department said the district was not a law enforcement agency, and to allow one such district to use the systems would open them to a flood of similar requests.

The patrolling smog inspectors, riding in a dozen orange and white cars, will issue $5 citations to drivers of smoking vehicles. Failure to clean up the smoke will result in higher fines.

Lost Passenger Search Is Ended

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) —State police have called off the search for a Texas machinist sucked from the cabin of a National Airlines DC10 during a flight from Houston to Las Vegas.

"As far as we're concerned, we've done all we can do," Police Chief Martin Vigil said yesterday. "Unless they come up with some information or physical evidence that would prompt a continuation of the search, we're going to phase it out little by little."

G. F. Gardner, 45, of Beaumont, Tex., was sitting next to a window that was broken by flying debris from one of the jetliner's engines that exploded during the Saturday night flight. The cabin depressurized and Gardner, although strapped to his seat, was pulled from the plane.

Bridge District Plan Endorsed To Seek Funds For More Buses

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

BERKELEY — An application for a federal grant to pay for most of the cost of up to 62 more buses for Marin and Sonoma commuters was endorsed yesterday by a Metropolitan Transportation Commission committee.

The application by the Golden Gate Bridge District calls for purchase of 32 more $50,000 coaches and an option to buy an additional 30.

It also includes accessories such as fare boxes and radios and automatic pop-up tubes for the exclusive bus lane on the Richardson Bay Bridge.

Citing the lack of an environmental impact report, however, the grant review and allocations committee recommended denial of a grant toward the $402,000 cost of a bus parking base in Petaluma.

The bridge district's coordinator for federal grants, John Shellenberger, said no report was possible because a site has not yet been selected.

Deletion of the Petaluma grant left the total cost at $3,731,525. The application, prepared before federal grant levels were raised to cover 80 per cent of the capital cost, called for a two-thirds grant totaling $2,487,684.

Shellenberger told the committee, meeting in the Hotel Claremont, the district will seek 80 per cent instead, or an additional $497,536.

The commission's staff said an 80 per cent grant would permit the district to get the buses without dipping into its own funds. Its 20 per cent share, $746,305, would come out of gas tax revenue allocated the district by MTC, the staff said.

Operating costs, however, would be met by revenues from fares and district reserves. The annual operating deficit for just the first 32 buses would be more than $700,000.

The district has 188 buses now, so the full purchase would bring its fleet to 250 coaches. The new buses — which will take up to a year to get from the factory after competitive bidding — will be used to improve service, especially in the Petaluma area.

The existing fleet is filled to capacity at peak hours, and irate commuters have been complaining in rising numbers that they must stand in line for up to a half hour to get aboard a bus.

The committee at first tabled the matter one month when the commission's staff said the district had failed to supply an environmental impact report — even for the buses and pop-up tubes. Shellenberger, saying the commission's staff told him only two weeks ago the report was needed, revived the application for action.

The commission's staff rebutted it had told the district's consultant for federal grants, Richard Smart, on July 27 that the environmental report had to accompany the application. Shellenberger, asserting Smart never mentioned this to either him or the district's attorney, said it was "simply a problem of communication."

He assured the committee the bridge board will adopt a statement tomorrow declaring the bus purchase and tubes would not have enough impact to warrant an environmental report.

The committee's recommendation will go to the full commission on Nov. 28. Its approval is required for federal or state grants.

200 Sheep Killed As Truck Crashes

ALTA (UPI) — A truck-trailer transporting sheep to a slaughter house in San Francisco overturned on Interstate 80 near this small Placer County town yesterday, killing 200 of the animals.

Patrolmen said the brakes on the truck apparently failed. The driver, Kenneth Rood, 29, of Jerome, Idaho, and relief driver Jim Lockridge, 27, of Tolma, Idaho, suffered minor injuries.

A Profile Of Holiday Dinner '73

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Profile of a holiday dinner in the United States this year: turkey up to 85.5 from 54.6 cents a pound; hams up to $1.26 from 87.6 cents a pound, potatoes up to $1.29 from 98 cents for a 10-pound bag.

Putting a Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner on the table this year is going to cost you more. Exactly how much more depends on what you serve. One bright note: Onions are cheaper this year.

Christmas presents also will be more expensive — though on the average, prices have not skyrocketed like the cost of food.

Does this mean Americans will cut back on the festive meals, the trimmings, the gifts? No, experts say. Even if gifts cost more, people will make a special effort to buy them just the same.

THERE SHOULD be enough turkeys for Thanksgiving and Christmas feasting, says the National Turkey Federation. "Quantities of both fresh and frozen turkeys will be about the same as they were last year," said a spokesman.

That adds up to about 870 million pounds for the last quarter of the year.

The only possibility of real shortage, they say, is that if traditional ham and beef eaters find the prices are too high, they might change their habits and buy turkeys instead.

An alternative to turkey could be chicken, which is expected to be in good supply for the holidays.

According to the National Broiler Council, consumers traditionally buy fewer chickens for Thanksgiving and Christmas, so production is usually cut for the last quarter of the year. But earlier this year, high chicken prices encouraged farmers to increase production by about 9 per cent for October, November and December. They felt the market could absorb the extra production. Chicken prices have since fallen. Average chicken prices, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which checks retail prices in 56 U.S. cities, were 72.8 cents a pound in September 1973, compared with 42.5 cents a pound in September, 1972.

COMPARING SEPTEMBER to September prices, this is the way the department says other items look: Apples up 5.5 cents a pound. Milk by the half-gallon is 66.3 cents — last year it was 59.4 cents. Eggs, grade A Large, are up 36.4 cents a dozen.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, its consumer price index for food dropped by 0.7 percent in September, the first time this year food prices declined. Government officials see this as an indication that the worst inflationary lunge of food prices might be over. But they still expect prices to increase over the next several months. Earlier this month, Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said he expected there would be about a 10 per cent increase in food prices over the next six months.

The consumer price index shows food was up 18.8 per cent in September 1973, when compared with September 1972.

Ecological Play For Youngsters

"If We Care," a one-act ecology play for children, is being performed in preschools and elementary schools in Marin County.

Written and acted by members of the Council of Jewish Women of Marin, the play has basically the same plot as one done by the members last year, but the dialogue has been rewritten. The women found in performing to first through third graders last year that the play was not sophisticated enough.

To be available every Friday the women have two casts for the play. Most have small children, and last year, when they did not have substitutes, were forced to cancel when their children were ill.

The play's message is "keep the world clean." The children learn along with the protagonist, Sloppy Joe, how the fish feels when people throw garbage in his water and the bird feels when trees are cut down and he has nowhere to live.

The play is directed by Emily Davoren, who wrote it with Barbara Baumgarten. Costumes are by Harriett Michael and Susan Bellach, music by Shirley Becker and Janie Teitelbaum. Other performers are Beverly Rosenberg, Janie Krantz, Joan Gosliner, Barbara Levine, Sheila Rosenthal, Toby Fleischmann, Kay Leeb and Kathee Samuel.

Schools interested in having the play presented can contact Mrs. John D. Michael or Mrs. Dan Baumgarten, both of San Rafael.

Engagement Of Novatan Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Morton of Novato are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Ann, to Maj. Robert E. Flowers, son of Cmdr. (ret.) and Mrs. Hulbert E. Flowers of White Stone, Va.

The future bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. F. Harry Fovargue of Painesville, Ohio. She attended College of Marin, the University of Puget Sound and was graduated from California State College, Sonoma.

She is a teacher at Rancho School in Novato.

The future bridegroom is the brother of Cmdr. Walter R. Flowers of Washington, D.C. He was graduated from Bullis Prep School in Silver Springs, Md., attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute and was graduated from the University of Nebraska in Omaha. He is serving with the Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Clean Fixtures

The best way to keep porcelain plumbing fixtures looking new is to treat them regularly to sudsy sponging. Then, powdered cleansers can be used more sparingly.

Vows Exchanged At Novato Baptist Church

Vivian Marie Fitzgerald and Carl Randall Nelson were married at the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato on Oct. 27.

Vivian is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fitzgerald of Novato, and Carl is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nelson of Limestone, Tenn.

The bride chose Janet Cox of Novato as her bridesmaid and best man was Kenneth Clark of Petaluma.

The reception was held at the bride's parents' home. The couple are now touring the United States. They will live in Seoul, Korea, where the bridegroom is serving with the U.S. Army.

The bride is a graduate of Novato High School. She is the sister of Harry Fitzgerald Jr. and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Browning of Watsonville.

The bridegroom was graduated from Sulphur Springs High School and Diesel College in Nashville, Tenn.

Treatment For Marble

Marble, although durable, can be marred by contact with certain foods and liquids. To clean, wash with clear water, according to the Marble Institute of America.

If stain remains apply a poultice of white blotting paper, white paper napkin or a white cleansing tissue soaked in an appropriate solution.

For organic stains caused by tea, coffee or bleached colors from paper or textiles, use hydrogen peroxide, (20 volume) or household ammonia (full commercial strength). For oil stains caused by butter, milk, cream and salad oil use acetate or acetone. For rust stains, use commercial iron rust remover.

Sweet Tooths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today Americans consume an average of 19 pounds of candy annually from a selection of over 2,000 varieties.

ON THE AGENDA

Variety Of Foods To Be Served At Lamplighters Progressive Feast

A variety of international foods will be served Saturday at the Lamplighters Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers second annual progressive dinner.

Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Keenan in San Rafael. The next stop will be at the home of Mrs. Bob DeGraff in Kentfield where winter tomato and vichyssoise soups, curried artichoke and coconut fruit bowl salad will be served.

A Polynesian entree will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doug McGeorge in San Rafael, who spent five weeks this summer in Tahiti.

Dessert, the final course will be served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Cole, also in San Rafael.

Recipes will be in booklet form and sold to the guests with proceeds going to the Volunteers' Scholarship Fund.

NEW MEMBERS of the Marin Charitable Foundation will be honored Monday at 4 p.m. at a tea at the home of Mrs. Wallace Scott in Belvedere.

The new members are Mmes. Kirk Beales, James Bowler, Benton Coit, Charles Daniels Jr., Robert B. Lashly and Leland Sweeney of San Rafael; Robert Bittner, Mervyn Burke, George Herrero and Charles H. Raven III of Kentfield; A. Michael Casey of Ross; Betty Jane Magill of Belvedere, and Bruce Shafer of Sausalito.

AN INITIATION meeting will be held Saturday at 1 p.m. for new members of San Rafael Assembly 195, International Order of the Rainbow for Girls, at the Masonic Hall in San Rafael.

Jeannie Atkins, Terri Edwards and Jackie Baltzer will be initiated.

Chairmen of the meeting are Jessica Masterson, set-up; Cindy Newbold, decorations, and Jenny Stirling, serving and clean-up.

THE FOLK Dance Federation of California is having the annual treasurer's ball Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at the Town and Country Fairgrounds Pavilion in Napa.

Folk dancers from Marin are invited.

SUNNY HILLS Guild II of Novato will present its seventh annual Boutique Noel at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Church in Ignacio. The guild will present a preview of its work tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. David Price Jones is chairman. Other chairmen are Mmes. Dickson Buxton and Vance Terry, coordinators; Robert Dougherty, John Mani, Paul Scheller and John Ahlers, ticket chairmen; Fielder Nordstrom, felt products; Nicholas Truog, wreaths, and James Studley, Spiros Halika and Terry, international dolls for Christmas tree ornaments.

THE CHILDBIRTH Educators of Sonoma County will present a fall film festival tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the rotunda of the Santa Rosa Public Library, Central Branch in Santa Rosa.

Films are "Newborn," "Kirsa Nicholine," "Mothering Through Breastfeeding" and "Childbirth for the Joy of It."

Instructors in the Bradley method of husband-coached childbirth will answer questions following the films.

ST. JAMES Church Ladies Guild is having a Christmas bazaar Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Herzog Hall, Sonoma-Marin Fairgrounds.

Items will include toys, decorations, white elephant, baked goods, candy, arts and crafts and needlepoint.

THE SINGLES Club of the Young Men's Christian Association of Sonoma County will sponsor a bike ride through Windsor Sunday beginning at noon at Windsor Winery.

The ride will cover approximately 15 miles and will terminate at the winery. Riders may bring their lunch or purchase it along the route.

JINI LAMA, director of Single Mothers of Marin, will discuss problems of single mothers at 8 o'clock tonight at the Novato Human Needs Center, 1523 South Novato Boulevard, Novato.

Child care will be available at the center, according to director Henry B. Mattimore.

Beauty Aids Help In Dry Skin Cases

Even dry skin needs the benefits of toners and mild astringents, according to Elizabeth Arden beauty consultants.

The newest type are formulated with moisturizers and special emollients to add to the skin's natural oils instead of excessively stripping them away.

NOVATANS

A Golden Wedding Observed

"She's The Best," Clifford Jackson of Novato said about his wife, Lela, with whom he is celebrating 50 years of marriage. "She's a great mother, grandmother, cook and partner," he continued.

The Jacksons were married at the Episcopal Church in Redwood City on Oct. 20, 1923.

They have one son, Clifford, who lives at their home in Novato. Their two grandsons, who were reared in the Jackson home, are Richard Michael Jackson, a senior at the University of California, and Randal Clifford Jackson, a sophomore at Menlo College.

The Jacksons' daughter, Jacqueline, died five years ago. They also have a granddaughter, Cathy Rhodes and a great granddaughter, Alison Rhodes.

Now retired, Mr. Jackson, who was born in Glen Ellen, was a general masonry contractor for 55 years. His father helped build Sonoma State Hospital in 1888.

The couple lived in San Anselmo before moving to Novato 18 years ago. Mr. Jackson built their present home 10 years ago.

During World War II the couple traveled throughout the Southwest where Mr. Jackson helped construct 14 airfields. Prior to coming to Marin County the couple lived in Berkeley.

Mrs. Jackson was born in Point Arena. Iversen's Landing in Mendocino County was named for her paternal grandfather. This active mother and grandmother, who still continues to do the gardening, just retired in August from her job as statistical clerk in administrative services and analysis section for the 84th Fighter Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The couple both agreed they have had a wonderful life and having a sense of humor helps to keep the family together.

"We are a very close family," Mrs. Jackson said, and continued, "Young people need to think more of families today."

The couple were honored at a surpirse party on Oct. 20 when their son hosted a party for them at the home of Mrs. Jackson's brother and sister-in law Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wood in Oakland.

Nursery School President Named

Mrs. Peter Hollenbeck has been elected president of the Ross Valley Nursery School board of trustees for the school year.

Others serving with her will be Mmes. John Sutro, first vice president; Peter Brekhus, second vice president; David King, secretary; James Staats, treasurer; Jeff Skov, registrar; Richard Chicca, scholarship chairman; Charles Leslie, supply chairman; and Frank Card, maintenance chairman.

The co-op school in Kentfield has a few openings in the prekindergarten class for older 4-year-old children.

Clean Out Water From Refrigerator

Extra water in a self-defrosting refrigerator-freezer collects in a pan located behind the toe plate. Be sure to occasionally remove and wash this pan in warm suds. Otherwise an odor may develop.

When replacing, take care to insert the pan in the proper position to avoid vibration and possible interference with the performance of the refrigerator-freezer.

Holiday Foods Program Is Set

A program on holiday specialty foods will be given Nov. 15 at 1 p.m. by the Marin Young Women's Christian Association. The program will cover decorating a Yule log, making plum cake and special whole wheat raisin bread.

The Nov. 29 program, "Christmas Cookies Galore," will include directions and demonstrations of decorated cookies. It also is scheduled at 1 p.m. at the Marin YWCA, 1618 Mission Avenue, San Rafael.

Child care will be available on request.

Gingham Brings Country Home

Checks, calicos and patchworks beautifully countrify any room in the house. They are used in everything — from tablecloths to bedspreads, long hostess gowns to pillows and accessories.

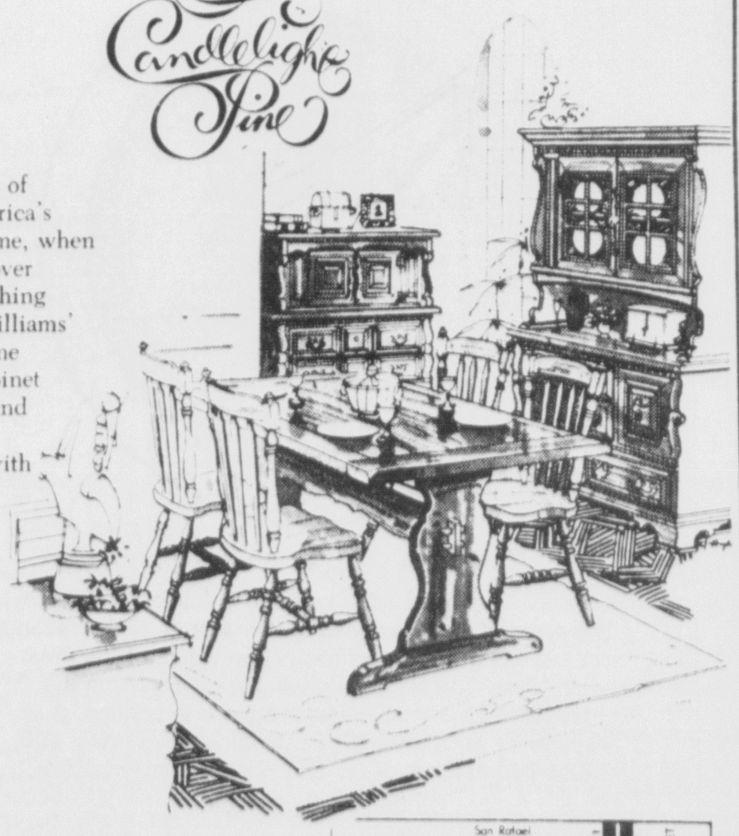

The spritely checks — white with black, red, maize, orchid — plus the prints in important earthy colors and the upcoming deep hearty colors are all handily washable — a real plus to any decorating scheme.

GENERATION RAP

Nevada Bill Sounds A Swinger With Somebody Else's Money

RAP:

I met Bill on a trip to Nevada. We went out twice, in September, and have been writing to each other ever since.He can't seem to find the right job, so he isn't working now. I have a good job, with money saved. We're both in our early 20s, and I'm hung up on him. He does all the exciting things I only dream about, like traveling around the world with practically no money, etc. Also, he's gorgeous.

He called me the other night (reversed charges, but he'll pay me back) and said he wanted to visit me and meet my parents. I take this to mean he's thinking about marriage. Since a good legal secretary can always find work, I don't worry about giving up my job — and he says he has a line on something big out west.

But he needs money to get back here — about $200. As soon as he gets his job, he'll repay it. My Dad says I'm crazy. He'll just take the money and run. He doesn't know Bill. What's wrong with trusting someone you love? — B.G.

B.:

What's wrong with getting to know someone better before you trust him too far — like $200 too far. If Bill can "travel around the world on practically no money" he can make it to your home without your help. Tell him you're broke, and don't be surprised if he stops writing. — SUE

DEAR B.:

Could be Bill travels around the world etc. on gullible women's money. Two dates and a few letters aren't a good basis for marriage, especially to a gorgeous fast talker who can't keep a job.

(And if you don't believe us, ask your lawyer boss who knows a lot about human nature — the devious kind.) — HELEN

RAP:

I just went into junior high where all the cute guys are, and have been asked out at least once a week, which is pretty good because I'm not beautiful though I'm not ugly.

Here's the problem: Avery is the guy I like best, but he asked my best girlfriend out today. She doesn't know I like him. I made up a story to her about how he isn't safe around girls, so she's turning him down.

If he asks me out now, I'll feel rotten, but I really want to go. Why do I feel so guilty when "all's fair in love and war"? — CONFUSED ME

CON ME:

"All isn't fair in love and war"! Geneva Convention rules govern war, and (as you've discovered) conscience often keeps love fair. Tell your girlfriend you heard the story wrong, and let Avery make the decision. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR SUE:

Your comment on the difficulty of students getting gasoline credit cards reminds me of 20 years ago when I was in college; working; a good credit risk, but considered ineligible by a certain gas company. Luckily a kinder one accepted me.

If it's any consolation, Sue, you have the rest of your life to get even with that company who ignored your four requests for a card, in spite of your excellent recommendations. Even now I will not patronize the company that refused me years ago.

You'll find that in two years (when you're 21) you'll be deluged with requests for your patronage, even to the point of receiving unrequested cards. So cut them up, return them to the sender with a note explaining why. It may not get past a computer, but you'll still have the last word! — EARL

Four Riding Clubs Will Join In Fall Cleanup Trail Ride Sunday

Four of Marin's riding clubs will join in the Fall Trail Cleanup Ride on Sunday to keep the riding and hiking trails on Marin Water District lands cleared and clean.

Dee Rodarte of Los Vaqueros de Tamalpa said the clubs have had cleanup rides before but this is the first time all four clubs, Los Vaqueros, Tamalpais Trail Riders, Southern Marin Horsemen's Association and Sleepy Hollow Horsemen's Association, will join in one large trail cleaning operation.

"Anyone who wants to help may come too," Mrs. Rodarte stressed. "About 80 per cent of us are women," she added.

The cleanup ride will begin at 9:30 a.m., leaving from various points in Marin to converge for a lunch stop at Lake Lagunitas about 1:30 p.m., she explained.

Departure points for the trails will be Marin Stables in Fairfax, the Meadow Club, Sky Oaks Girl Scout Camp, Phoenix Lake near Ross and Sky Ranch in Mill Valley.

"Come and join on foot or horseback, have lunch and see what we're about," suggested Mrs. Rodarte, who is both a rider and hiker.

"Last time we found a car door and tire and wheel," among the trash along the trails, she said. "We drag those things out by rope behind a horse," she explained.

The clubs will offer prizes for what the cleanup volunteers have in their gunny sacks — "The most," "the canniest," "the soggiest," the "most unusual" and the "trimmingest" for the riders trim away branches that cross the trails as they go.

Those who don't want to keep jumping down from the saddle bring clippers and do the trimming, Mrs. Rodarte explained. Equipment needed is gunny sack, clippers and a saddlebag lunch, she said.

In case of rain, the group will clean up Nov. 18 instead.

This is the fifth cleanup this year by the Los Vaqueros, Mrs. Rodarte said. "It's in our bylaws that we must maintain the trails. Horsemen and hikers have traditionally been at each other's throats over the trails. This year we did a couple of rides and people hiking hollered 'horses are causing erosion.' We need to work together to keep up the trails," she said.

Others in on the planning are Maxine Ernst, Charlie Ouellet, Karen Ferdinand, Maryann Healy and Connie Berto.

PARENT AND CHILD

Problems Concerning School Lunches

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

I sat with a group of third graders last week eating a school lunch — I'll describe the menu a little later on — while all but one of the children ate a home-packed lunch. The little girl with a tray like mine turned out to be eating a "free" lunch — she came from a home too poor to provide her with lunch.

All the rest of the children at the table had cups of chocolate pudding, thermos jugs full of cold apple juice or hot soup, cookies, sandwiches made with lettuce and tomatoes to keep them fresh, candy bars and even potato chips.

The welfare child and I had one scoop of made-with-powder mashed potatoes (not quite lukewarm), something green which looked like the stalk ends of broccoli cooked to a sort of mush (warmer than the potatoes due to the hot water they were in), two pieces of bun with something in the middle which had been breaded and deep-fried and now was covered with a thin layer of congealed fat and quite cold, and a piece of cake with a sort of waxy flavorless frosting. A half pint of reconstituted milk completed the meal.

I TRIED to trade off my scoop of potatoes for three bites of chocolate pudding, but learned from my seat companion that "no trading" was one of the 47 rules governing lunchroom conduct.

Not eating your school lunch is also a nonallowable option. I broke that rule. I ate a little of everything, though, and nearly finished my stump ends.

A quick spot survey of several lunchroom companions revealed that while this was not one of the better school lunches there weren't many that were much better and that kids who could afford it always brought their own.

It just may not be possible for schools to provide a good, child-beloved, well-prepared hot lunch. I've seldom ever eaten a good school lunch, and I must eat 50 to 75 school lunches a year.

Concurrently, I've never seen children eating school lunches with any sense of enjoyment. I could understand a school providing food which would delight and please a child and not an adult. But it's been my experience that very few schools provide food which is relished by any age.

WHAT'S THE answer? Perhaps we can do two things at once: Provide much better noon meals and at the same time save hundreds of thousands of dollars on school kitchens and lunchroom personnel. We could determine a family-income level at which a family would be subsidized $1 a day for every school-age child in the family.

A poor family with three school-age children might receive three times $180, or $540 a year. The purpose of this subsidy would be for the family to provide each child with both a midmorning snack and a good midday lunch.

At a higher income level, a family might receive 75 cents a day for each child; at a yet higher level, some 50 cents; and for those families almost up to the approved income level, the subsidy might be 25 cents a day.

Many school systems might find that paying these amounts

A Call Made To Cut Meat Diets

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — A nutritionist urged Americans to reduce meat consumption as "the single most important measure to take" to cope with the rising cost of food and the threat of shortages.

Dr. Jean Mayer of Harvard University, writing in the November issue of "Family Health," asserted we could "considerably" reduce meat consumption "at no risk whatsoever to our health." He called meat "an extravagantly expensive commodity when, as in the U.S., grain-fed animals (rather than grass-fed) are consumed. The conversion ratio of grain to beef is only ten per cent," he stated, "which means only one-tenth of the calories fed to the steer are recovered as meat."

According to Dr. Mayer, the "protein intake of adult Americans is at least twice as high as it needs to be. While the requirements of children are proportionately higher, they can be met quite adequately by a combination of cereals and milk, cheese or eggs."

The nutritionist believes "we can considerably reduce our intake of beef, pork, and lamb (simply by eating smaller portions) at no risk whatsoever to our health. In fact, he asserted, "the resultant decrease in total fat and saturated fat should decrease the risk of myocardial infarction (the dread 'coronary')."

"To cope with the food crisis, we "must find ways to increase the yield of soybeans, a major protein source and our leading export . . . We must also develop palatable high-protein substitutes for meat based on soybeans and cereals," he said.

Engagement news

Engagement Of Belvedere Girl Is Told

The engagement of Anne Claire Fagley of Belvedere to Larry John Ginesi of San Francisco has been announced by her parents, Mrs. Nancy Fagley of Belvedere and W. Robert Fagley of Marina del Ray.

The prospective bride is the sister of Mark Fagley of Belvedere and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Fagley, all of Houston, Tex.

Anne is a graduate of Redwood High School and is attending Callison College of the University of the Pacific in Stockton, where she is majoring in international relations.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan B. Ginesi of San Francisco. His brother is Steven Ginesi and his grandparents are Mrs. Carlo Bertoli and Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Ginesi, all of San Francisco.

Larry is a graduate of Lowell High School in San Francisco and attends University of the Pacific, where he is affiliated with Alpha Kappa Lambda.

Peanut Brittle Was Accidental

NEW YORK (UPI) — According to legend, a New England woman around 1890 was making peanut taffy in her kitchen.

Surrounded by rows of unlabeled bottles and jars, she added baking soda instead of cream of tartar to the syrup bubbling on her stove. The result, peanut brittle, a purely American accident.

Cashing In On A Royal Wedding

By JOHN ALLAN MAY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LONDON — It's sort of a nationwide wedding shower.

Portraits of the prospective bride and bridegroom are emblazoned on everything from 1-pound ($2.50) T-shirts, to 14-pound ($35) Wedgewood goblets, to the country's postage stamps.

The objects of this outpouring of national sentimentality are, of course, Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips of the Queen's Dragoon Guards.

Queen Elizabeth's only daughter and the darkly handsome Olympic horseman will be married Wednesday at Westminister Abbey.

And before it is over, much of the world will share in the occasion.

The British Broadcasting Corp. will televise the event — eight hours of it in regal color — to some 500 million tube-side wedding "guests" in 16 nations from Japan to Morocco (including all three major American networks).

Special royal-wedding package tours of Britain are advertised in the United States, West Germany, and South Africa. And a pasta company in Spain is conducting a nationwide competition for a free trip to the nuptials.

The wedding guests will not, however, include any of President Nixon's family. None was invited.

BEFORE THIS worldwide congregation — and 1,500 crammed inside the church — the 22-year-old princess will become Westminister Abbey's 11th royal bride. Her predecessors down the aisle, in a process stretching back to 1243, include her mother and grandmother —the Queen and the Queen Mother.

All, however, is not smiles and proudly flapping Union Jacks. The 1,544-man ceremonial military guard (including 200 to be airlifted from Captain Phillips's regiment in West Germany) and passing the hat among British soldiers for a 10,000-pound ($25,000) wedding gift are criticized as extravagant.

"To ask a serviceman in Ulster to contribute to this woman's wedding present," complains William Hamilton, Parliament's most outspoken antiroyalist, is a "scandal." Most of the money will be donated to charity.

The cost of the newlyweds' three-week honeymoon in the Caribbean aboard the royal yacht Britannia —reportedly 100,000 pounds ($250,000) —also raises a few eyebrows.

The memento makers, meanwhile, are merrily cashing in. Some reckon Princess Anne's wedding their biggest bonanza since the coronation of her mother in 1953.

THE REGALIA of souvenirs includes posters, medallions, plates, loving-cups, tea towels (imprinted "good luck Anne and Mark"), busts of the princess, copies of the wedding dress, two biographies, a "royal wedding ale," a specially bred rose, and a stereophonic record of the ceremony (complete with trumpet fanfares) to be rush-released five days later.

Even the British government is hopping aboard the wedding bandwagon. Shattering its staid tradition, the post office is issuing glamorous stamps of the bridal couple in a Hollywood-style close-up pose.

But one group of Britons, London's 15,000 taxi drivers, are capitalizing on the royal marriage in quite a different way. They will strike on Nov. 14 over a fares claim, leaving wedding-day throngs cab-less.

Parliamentarian Papers Are Received

Mrs. Conrad T. Kett of Sausalito has qualified as a Professional Registered Parliamentarian after having passed the examination given by the National Association of Parliamentarians.

Mrs. Kett is a past president of the Sausalito Woman's Club and the President's Assembly of Marin County. She was the first president of the California Lamda Unit of Marin County of the National Association of Parliamentarians when the unit was organized in 1966 by Mrs. G. Frederick Norman, registered parliamentarian of San Francisco. Mrs. Norman is the newly elected president of the national organization.

The national association was founded in 1930, with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. It now has an international membership of 4,500. Its purpose is education in the philosophy and principles of the rules governing deliberative assemblies.

Mrs. Kett will conduct classes in parliamentary procedures beginning in January.

Tastes Change With The Area

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the North Woods they like hot toddies and down south it's mint juleps. Like drinks, candy preferences also vary from region to region, depending on climate and culture.

Westerners choose milk chocolates, mainly in jumbo sizes. And Midwesterners go for a mixture of lights and darks.

to the low-income families is an immense saving over attempting to provide nutritious school lunches.

And while town officials are working out the details of such a program, the Parent-Teacher Association might consider some program for higher-income families to provide home-packed school lunches for the children from lower-income homes.

Moving Experience Subject Of Story

Judy Zauner was 15 when business caused her family to move from Los Angeles to San Rafael in March of 1972. Moving to a new city frightened her and she has written about her experiences in an article, "The Joys and Sorrows of Moving Away," in the November issue of Seventeen magazine.

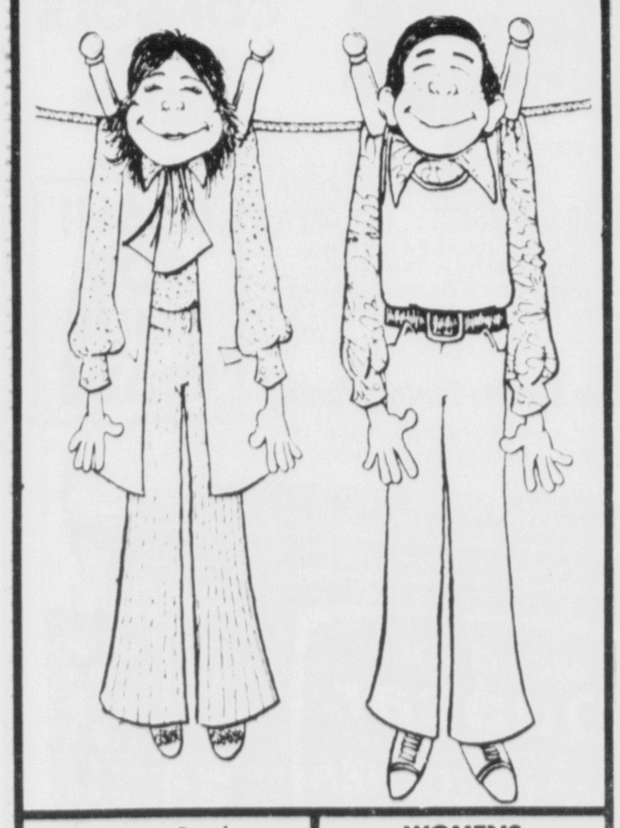

Getting out and meeting people, joining clubs and participating in local activities was the way to meet people. A year and a half later she is a senior at San Rafael High School, where she is on the newspaper staff and the tennis team. She also works part-time for the San Rafael Pointer.

Skin Cleaning

Oily skin should not be cleansed with soap, according to Elizabeth Arden beauty consultants. Use cleansing lotions formulated for your specific skin type, and if skin is especially oily, cleanse several times a day.

Students To Have Teeth Examined

Approximately 1,300 Marin County students next week will have dental examinations in order that statistics can be compile for the Marin County Health Department and the division of dental health of the state Department of Health.

The examinations wil be given Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 20 schools throughout the county, according to Dr. William Loran, chairman of the dental survey committee. Students will be selected by school officials, he said. Members of the Marin County Dental Society will make the examinations.

The examinations should help toward finding improving dental health. The statistics should be ready by the time Marin Municipal Water District starts fluoridation on Dec. 1, Dr. Loran said.

Marin Holiday Cards Available

Holiday greeting cards showing Marin County scenes created by local artists are being sold by the American Cancer Society in San Rafael.

The cards have scenes by artists Frank Kane, Ann Bernauer, Victor DeBeck and Bruce Mallon, and are suitable for framing, according to the association.

ART REVIEW

Unusual Print Offering

By ADA GARFINKEL

Marin printmakers Joyce Livingston and Phyllis Thelen present unique personal worlds of reality in a two-artist exhibit at the Corte Madera Regional Library.

Both artists share a deep affinity for nature and a fascination with the endless possibilities for creativity in the printmaking process.

In her muted, closely toned serigraphs, Mrs. Thelen creates her own geology of elemental forms and manifestations of natural phenomena. Their essence is suggested in "Ebb and Flow" and "Moon and Tides."

"Earth Cradle," "Sea Cradle," "Sun Cradle," and "Moon Cradle" are the artist's private cosmogonies. Their imagery is comprised of single or layered floating orbs suspended above cradle-like structures of imprinted woodgrain, faceted rock, or smooth, stone-like shapes resting in bubbly water amidst kelp or marsh grass.

"Buttermilk Sky" — the only work with a "message" — is a visualization of air turbulence and pollution and their dizzying effects on sun, clouds, and atmosphere.

"Shore Upon Shore" is Mrs. Thelen's most ambitious and glowing serigraph. Brilliant moonlight baths a vertically cascading sea and coastline flanked by glistening rocky promontories emerging from foamy white spray and a phosphorescent bluish-green beach.

The realistic trompe-l'oeil textures and forms are produced by silkscreen stencils of shell, leaf, woodgrain, and stone imprints. They lend substance and a unifying containment to the floating shapes.

Mrs. Livingston creates form and space in a variety of ways. Most of her prints are in black and white; a few are in color. They range from the extremely simple "Winter of '73" to the complex "Magic Day" — a schematic vision of the process of germination.

In "The Pitcher" (an aquatint etching) a lemon and a pitcher appear as flat shapes high on the format. Their cast-shadows sweeping diagonally toward the lower edge create the illustion of towering skyscrapers of monolithic proportions.

There is an underlying animism in the sharp, bristly crispness of the barren trees which are the basic imagery in a half-dozen or more works. Frequently the trees are emblematically encircled as if to contain their energy.

In "Final Flight" there are three overlapping discs. In the mystery-laden "Night Thoughts" a swarm of moth-like figures hover about an oval "spotlight" framing a cluster of slender thrusting tree forms.

Another innovative work is the Xerox-print drawing "Tourist Season" which repeats a grove of tall trees as if seen through a film, dwarfing a huddled three-some of silhouetted visitors.

This show will continue through Nov. 30 and may be viewed from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The library is located at 707 Meadowsweet Drive.

Coward Songs, Sketches Highlight ACT Offering

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

The American Conservatory Theater of San Francisco will bring a cavalcade of songs and sketches by the late Sir Noel Coward to the Marines' Memorial Theater Tuesday night in a limited engagement.

Entitled "Oh Coward!", the revue features Roderick Cook, who devised and directed the show, Charlotte Fairchild and David Holliday.

For opening night, the theater lobby will reflect the era with potted palms, candelabra and other Art Deco trimmings to the show in which a national magazine called "the most marvelous party in town" when it played in New York.

OPERA

"Don Carlo," the third Verdi opera of the San Francisco season, will make its first appearance tonight at the Opera House with Martti Talvela, the Finnish basso as King Philip II of Spain. Talvela just recently starred in the company's production of "Boris Godunov." Others in the cast will be soprano Gwyneth Jones as Elisabetta and tenor Alberto Remedios as Don Carlo. The opera will be repeated again Sunday afternoon and Wednesday night.

The season's first "LaBoheme" by Puccini will be presented Tuesday night with Spanish tenor Jose Carreras as Rodolfo — his debut with the company.

Other operas through next Wednesday: "Peter Grimes," tomorrow night and "LaTraviata" with Beverly Sills on Saturday night.

David Montagu, American violinist, will make his initial San Francisco concert appearance Saturday and Sunday afternoons at the Palace of the Legion of Honor. His program will include works by Beethoven, Hindemith and Brahms.

Pianist Andre Watts, who performed with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra during its European tour last spring, will make his Oakland Symphony debut Saturday morning — in the first of the symphony's Saturday "shopper" series at the Paramount Theater of the Arts. Watts will also appear with the symphony in its Zellerbach series Wednesday night on the University of California campus in Berkeley. In both concerts he will perform the Tchaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1.

Other events:

Curran Theater — "Gone With The Wind," Monday through Saturday, 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Saturday, 2:30 p.m.

Geary Theater — "Hot 1 Baltimore," today, Friday and Wednesday, 8:30 p.m.; "Taming of the Shrew," Saturday, 2:30 p.m. and Tuesday, 8:30 p.m.; "You Can't Take It With You," Saturday, Monday, 8:30 p.m.

California Palace of the Legion of Honor — Prints of Italian Renaissance, through Jan. 13 and bookbindings by Florence Walter, through Jan. 26; three centuries of French art from the Norton Simon collection.

Off Broadway Theater — "Norman Is That You?" Tuesday through Friday, 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, 7:30 and 10:30 p.m.; Sunday, 7:30 p.m.

Son Follows Father As Bar Pilot

Michael A. Simenstad of San Rafael today followed in his father's footsteps and was sworn in as a San Francisco Bay bar pilot.

His father, Capt. Archibald M. Simenstad, also of San Rafael, has been a bar pilot 13 years and is currently president of the San Francisco Bar Pilots Association.

The younger Simenstad, who is 31, is a graduate of the California Maritime Academy and worked himself up through the ranks in the shipping industry, to become a captain for Sealand Co. He most recently has served as captain of the Rose City.

His home is at 366 Forbes Avenue.

The bar pilots, who skipper ships through the Golden Gate and into ports, carry on a tradition began in 1849.

Play Is Set In Petaluma

The one-act opera "Tale for a Deaf Ear" by Mark Bucci will be presented at 8 p.m. tomorrow, Saturday, Nov. 16 and 17 at the Cinnabar Theater, Petaluma.

Performers will include theater owner Marvin Klebe, Carol Caywood, a recent Sonoma State College graduate, Tommie Sue Anderson of Larkspur and Jim Tevenon of San Francisco.

In addition to the opera, three pieces by Don Walker will premiere. Reservations may be made by calling the theater at 3333 Petaluma Boulevard North.

New Facts Surrounding An Ulcer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The man most likely to develop an ulcer isn't necessarily the hard driving type who drinks too much, a researcher said today.

Dr. Ralph Paffenbarger, an epidemiologist with the University of California public health school said neither personality traits nor alcohol consumption indicates ulcer occurance.

Paffenbarger told the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, "The most likely candidate for an ulcer may be an inveterate coffee drinker and cigarette smoker.

"But he isn't necessarily a person who reacts poorly to stress, or is fearful of failure, or is given to relieving tensions with alcohol."

Paffenbarger's findings came from a recent survey of more than 25,000 men who attended either Harvard University or the University of Pennsylvania between 1916 and 1950.

He said he also found that:

Students who drank two or more cups of coffee per day had a 72 per cent greater chance of getting an ulcer than abstainers, and cola drinkers a 48 per cent greater chance.

Students who came from large families were more apt to develop ulcers, with the rate 38 per cent higher for those who had five or more siblings than for those from small families.

Those with systolic blood pressure at or above 130 had a 20 per cent lower ulcer incidence.

Milk drinking had a beneficial effect, with 42 per cent fewer of the milk drinkers developing ulcers, but no additional effect was seen with increasing amounts of milk consumed.

None of the socioeconomic factors measured during college years made any difference, he said. These included occupation of the father, family income and the amount of precollege academic training.

A Perjury Question About Ford Witness

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A former lobbyist who claimed he loaned $15,000 of his own funds to vice presidential nominee Gerald R. Ford and was never repaid was under investigation today by the Senate Rules Committee as to his credibility.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., committee chairman, said after testimony behind closed doors yesterday by Robert N. Winter-Berger that the panel will decide by early next week whether to refer the transcript of the session to the Justice Department with a possible recommendation for perjury action.

Winter-Berger, now an author living in New York, claimed after the hearing he did not contradict any of his earlier sworn testimony and that he planned to consult with his attorney, Maurice Krivit of Jersey City, N.J.

Winter-Berger swore in an affidavit filed with the committee last month that between 1966 and September of 1969 he loaned Ford the money in amounts of $50 to $250 at a time from his own funds on which he paid income taxes.

Cannon confronted Winter-Berger at yesterday's hearing with income tax returns for the years in question showing Winter-Berger grossed $14,076 in 1966, $7,615 in 1967, $1,643 in 1968 and $4,912 in 1969.

Cannon said Winter-Berger then changed his testimony and said 90 per cent of the money he allegedly loaned Ford came from Nathan Voloshen, who died in August, 1971.

Cannon said because the panel considered that Winter-Berger "is not a credible witness," it would not put him on the witness stand in a public hearing, but will make public a transcript of the session.

GO TO HEALTH, FDA!

(ALL THE WAY)

DON'T RESTRICT OUR FOOD SUPPLEMENTS

Go to health, FDA! is the theme of a GIANT RALLY, Sunday, November 11, from 1 to 4:30 p.m. at San Francisco's COW PALACE.

The public is invited. Join top entertainers, political leaders, health authorities and athletes, demonstrating that they want to continue making their own nutritional decisions, without government intervention.

The Food and Drug Administration has published restrictions which would make most items you may be taking no longer available as they are now, including herbs! Vitamin-mineral supplements would be classified as presciption drugs! Over a million letters have flooded Washington, D.C. in protest. At least that many more are expected as the people discover the facts.

Learn full details of this crisis and what must be done about it at the November 11 Cow Palace Rally. Tickets available at local health food stores and at the door on SUNDAY.

Donations and volunteers are needed.

Today is Thursday, Nov. 8, the 312th day of 1973 with 53 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

British astronomer Edmond Halley was born Nov. 8, 1656.

On this day in history:

In 1837, Mount Holyoke Seminary in Massachusetts became the first American college founded exclusively for women.

In 1889, Montana was admitted to the Union as the 41st state.

In 1960, Democrat John Kennedy defeated Republican Richard Nixon to become the 35th president of the United States.

A thought for the da: English novelist Samuel Butler said, "To live is like love . . . all reason is against it and all healthy instinct is for it."

Case Sent To Superior Court

Two partners in a San Rafael auto dealership have been bound over to Marin Superior Court on four courts of grand theft.

The men, partners in G and M Wholesale Autos, are to appear Dec. 3 in superior court.

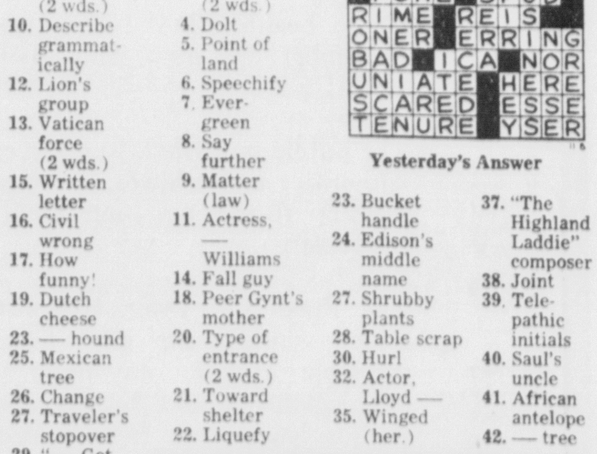

Weapon Case To Superior Court

A Sausalito man has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of being a convicted felon in possession of a weapon.

But Municipal Court Judge Gary W. Thomas dismissed a second felony count against Oscar Stapleton Jr., 24, concealing stolen property.

Following a preliminary hearing, Thomas ruled there is enough evidence to try Stapleton and ordered him to appear Nov. 19.

The Lead To High Cards Produces The Best Results

Your contract sometimes depends on your play of a single suit. Are you always sure of the best way to manage a routine holding in a single suit? Test yourself on the spades in today's hand.

SPADE TRICKS

West opened the jack of hearts, and South saw that he could take six easy tricks outside of spades. The contract might well depend on getting three spade tricks.

What is the best way of tackling the spades?

USE AN HONOR

It doesn't matter what you do if each opponent has three spades. You can use an honor to force out the ace, can follow up with the other two honors and then the last spade will be good.

The trouble is that the spades will break 3-3 only about one-third of the time. The odds are almost 2-to-1 against such good luck.

How do you provide for the more likely 4-2 break in spades?

You can do nothing if either opponent has four spades to the ace. You will get only two spade tricks in that case, no matter which opponent has the length.

ANOTHER POSSIBILITY

You can, however, provide for a doubleton ace of spades.

The best plan is to win the opening lead with dummy's king of hearts and lead a low spade. East plays low, and you win with the king.

Now you get back to dummy with one of the other kings and lead dummy's remaining low spade. East is obliged to play his ace, and you have the chance to play low. This makes it easy for you to take spade tricks later with the jack and queen. The hand is safe.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one no-trump.

You have:
♠ - A 4 2
♡ - K 6 2
◇ - K Q 5 4
♣ - K Q 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid six no-trump.

Since partner has 16 to 18 points and you have 17 points, the combined total is 33 to 35 points. This should provide a reasonable play for slam.

Performances Of 'Li'l Abner' Set

The musical comedy "Li'l Abner" will be presented Saturday, Sunday and Nov. 17 and 18 at the Petaluma High School multi-use room by the Harmoneers and Harmonettes, singing groups organized by the Petaluma Adult Education Department.

Performances on Saturday and Nov. 17 will begin at 8:15 p.m. and on Sunday and Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m.

Heading the cast are Ron Walters as Li'l Abner and Jarene Thiel as Daisy Mae. Others in major roles are Barbara Weber, Herbert Legge, Daniel Heinrichs, Jeff Angel and Joe Hennessy.

Dan Phillips and Laila Schoelein will direct the play and Marie Boylan is choreographer.

Napa Voters Prefer To Grow Slowly

NAPA (UPI) — Voters here expressed strong objection Tuesday against rapid municipal growth.

Voters marked 12 multiple choice questions on the subject which were put on the ballot by the city council. The results were not binding, but council members said they would guide their future decisions.

Asked whether Napa's size by the year 2000 should approximate that of Concord, Fresno, Stockton or Santa Rosa at present, the voters overwhelmingly chose Santa Rosa.

In effect, this would mean a rate of growth for Napa, now population 45,000, of 2 per cent. In the last three years the rate has been 7.1 per cent.

On another multiple choice question, about half the voters favored slowing growth, one quarter wished to stop all growth, and one quarter approved of the present growth rate.

Reason Behind Replacing Auto

A 1971 Oldsmobile provided by the City of San Rafael for use by City Mgr. William J. Bielser is being replaced by a newer model since it has a damaged frame, Mayor C. Paul Bettini reported today.

Bettini said several residents have complained to city leaders over an Independent-Journal report yesterday that the car would be replaced due to complaints of an "awful squeak".

The car, used by former City Mgr. James H. McCown and involved in several accidents, squeaks, smells and leaks, he said.

Cost Of Special Election Argued

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The cost of Tuesdays special election on Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax ceiling measure could range as high as $25 million, according to some estimates.

Reagan has sharply challenged the estimates, made by Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. among others. The governor put the cost of the election at about $6 million.

It was the first ever statewide special election called solely for an initiative. The last statewide special election was in 1949 and 12 measures were on the ballot.

Reagan's View Of Tax Defeat

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, whose plan to clamp a lid on state taxes was overwhelmingly rejected by California voters, yesterday dismissed the notion he suffered a personal political defeat.

"How can trying to reduce people's taxes be a political defeat?" asked Reagan, the frontrunning candidate in the Gallup Poll for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination.

Democrats hailed the overwhelming defeat of his tax plan by voters as a "repudiation" of Reagan and what one official called the "Watergate-riddled Republican party."

Republican State Chairman Gordon Luce, a strong supporter of Reagan, told newsmen the outcome of Tuesday's election "isn't as damaging as one might have thought. This is a dent in the armor, but a small dent."

With semifinal returns in, Reagan's proposed constitutional amendment failed 54.01 per cent to 45.9 per cent — or 2.28 million votes to 1.94 million.

The bitterly contested ballot initiative, whose campaign Reagan led virtually nonstop for months, would have fixed a ceiling on the total taxes state government could extract from its citizens tied to a declining percentage of personal income.

Among the populous Southern California counties where Reagan traditionally draws his support, only conservative Orange and San Diego counties sided with him.

One conservative Republican, state Sen. H. L. Richardson, denounced the initiative campaign as "grossly mismanaged" by Reagan's "top pygmies" whose "only good characteristics were mixing a drink.

"If the governor tries to use the same people to run for president, he'll be lucky to find a plane ticket to where the convention is," Richardson said.

While Reagan's presidential armor appeared tarnished, the gubernatorial prospects of Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, 37, clearly ascended.

"If I have anybody to thank for helping my gubernatorial chances it is Gov. Reagan," jubilantly declared Moretti, who led the fight against Prop. 1. He was supported by state employees, teachers and organized labor.

Reagan, clearly fatigued after the strenuous campaign in which he crisscrossed the state for months, flatly denied that the Watergate scandal had any spillover effect on his tax plan or that Californians voted against him personally.

But Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., son of the former California chief executive and a contender for governor next year, insisted the results added up to a "massive repudiation of both Gov. Reagan and the Watergate-riddled Republican party."

State Democratic chairman John Burton, a San Francisco assemblyman, said Reagan "made the issue Reagan. He was the issue and if you believed him and agreed with him, you would vote with him. The people rejected him. This takes a lot of wind out of his presidential sails."

Reagan rejected the idea of leading another such initiative drive as governor but said he considered the campaign "a first step in alerting the people to the incredible rate of government growth and the speed with which the tax burden is increasing.

"I am, of course disappointed," Reagan told reporters. "I wish the basic philosophical issues could have been more clearly drawn without the distracting, irrelevant and confusing play on human fears and the basic emotions of the people.

Virus In Chickens Termed A Possible Cancer Cause

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An independent researcher said yesterday he believes a virus present in most chickens is a possible cause of cancer in humans.

Dr. Jack G. Malari, president of Makari Research Laboratories, Englewood, N.J., reported his findings at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association.

"There is a high probability that live Marek's disease virus is introduced into the body during the consumption of meat obtained from infected chickens," the research physician said.

"This virus is present in more than 90 per cent of chickens raised in commercial flocks today."

Makari's study, "The Herpesvirus of Marek's Disease and Human Cancer: an Immunological Investigation," was published recently in Oncology, an international cancer research journal.

Makari said widespread innoculation of chickens doubles the dangers.

"The introduction of Herpesvirus of turkey as a vaccine in chickens makes the problem even worse," he said, "and a public health problem of the greatest magnitude is at issue. More studies in this area are urgently needed."

He said his conclusions are based on the similarity between antigens found in the tumors of both humans and chickens.

Makari told a news conference he had alerted federal officials of his findings more than 18 months ago. He said he hopes to get other scientists to verify his findings.

He said the Marek's disease virus can be destroyed in chicken meat only by boiling it at 212 degrees, not by frying or broiling.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS: GOING, GOING, GONE

The graceful slopes of Mount Tamalpais, visible to passersby at a vantage point near Fifth Avenue and Court Street for several fleeting months after the old Courthouse annex was demolished last summer, vanish from view again as the vista is consumed by the mammoth Courthouse Square construction project. The office complex will reach its peak of eight stories before Christmas, and be joined early next spring by an adjacent office building and a parking garage, according to a construction foreman.

A Report Supplied On Projects' Environment

Sausalito planning commissioners got a first look last night at how two major developments will affect the city's environment.

Two special meetings were set next week for in-depth examinations of the 213-unit Schoonmaker development and the 101-unit Whiskey Springs project.

Coming as the items did at the end of a long agenda, promoters of the projects and representatives of the firms which prepared environmental impact reports on them only scratched the surface in their descriptions.

Jerry Yudelson, of the Burlingame firm of Environmental Science Associates, described three important effects of the Whiskey Springs project on the environment: increased sewage, water demand and traffic.

Duffel Financial and Construction Co. is proposing 85 townhouses and 12 duplexes, plus a hotel, two restaurants, two bars, a bank and offices on 13.17 acres at Bridgeway and Nevada Street.

The $6.3 million project is a scaled-down version of a 431-unit development once approved by the city. The city council last year rescinded its approval in the face of a threat by antidevelopment forces to take the matter to a referendum vote.

Turning its attention to the $40 million Schoonmaker project, the commission heard an explanation of the differences between the proposed development and an earlier plan. The commission was told these included improved traffic circulation and the shifting of several facilities to accommodate wishes of the city.

Besides 72 condominiums and 141 apartments, the plan envisions a 110-room hotel, a 271-berth marina, tennis courts, a health club, swimming pools, three restaurants, two yacht clubs and shops and offices.

Three acres of the 38.3-acre site off Bridgeway between Napa and Spring streets will be dedicated to the city as park and open space.

Harmful effects on the environment, according to the impact report prepared by the Environmental Impact Planning Corp., of San Francisco, also include increased water consumption, more sewage and traffic.

The project will need 172 acre-feet of water per year — one-half of one per cent of the total present supply of the Marin Municipal Water District.

Residents and visitors will make 4,500 auto trips per day to and from the project, and the development will disrupt the ecology and contribute to air pollution, according to the environmental report.

On the good side, the project will bring tax dollars to government agencies, increase recreational facilities and replace a group of unattractive buildings now on the site with an aesthetic development, the report says.

Commissioners set special meetings for Wednesday to review the Schoonmaker project more fully, and next Thursday for the Whiskey Springs development.

The commission also accepted an environmental impact report on an 18-condominium project, called Glen Grove, at 265 Santa Rosa Avenue. A use permit to develop the property, approved in January, was extended until July 1.

State Official Tells Bolinas To Clean Up Its Water Supply

A formal warning to clean up its water supply was served on the Bolinas Community Public Utility District last night by the state Department of Health.

M.E. Stewart, supervising sanitary engineer for the department, told directors the water system had failed to meet bacteriological standards for June, July, September and October. Samples taken during October were worse than the preceeding months and showed "excessive contamination," he said.

In view of the October tests, he said, customers must be notified that they should boil water for five minutes or treat it with chlorine according to recommended procedures before consumption.

Source of the contamination is the Arroya Honda dams, according to Stewart, although the dams lie within the boundaries of Point Reyes National Seashore.

Directors told Stewart they had already hired consulting engineers to present long-range water supply alternatives. A priority schedule for movement of water lines had also been developed they said.

Stewart said the health department will hold a series of public hearings in January with the intent of drawing up proposals for increased state aid to water districts in need of improvements but without the money to finance them.

On another matter, director Orville Shell invited Stephen A. Warkentin, a member of the audience, to either retract charges of "graft and kickbacks" which he had made privately or come forward with evidence.

Warkentin, a Bodega resident who owns property in Bolinas, replied, "I do believe there is graft, but I am not prepared to discuss it publicly."

Directors also heard from board member Paul D. Kayfetz that the public hearing on sewage plans held Nov. 2 would have to be rescheduled because a full 30 days notice by advertising had not been given. Directors noted they had cut the time interval short by several days in order to hold the hearing before the Nov. 6 election, but they set a new hearing date for Dec. 19.

Director Marguerite K. Harris, whose house was heavily damaged by fire recently, was absent.

Feast Of Music Scheduled For Thanksgiving

A four-hour Thanksgiving "Feast of Music" concert sponsored by radio station KTIM has been scheduled for 8 p.m. Nov. 23 in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

The rock concert will feature the Sons of Champlin and Doug Sahm and His Band, as well as a solo performance by pianist Mark Naftalin, a former member of the Paul Butterfield Blues Band.

The concert is the first to be produced by the station in its 26-year history, according to Clint Weyrauch, FM program director.

Apartment Plans Receive Approval

Plans for an 87-unit apartment have been approved by the Petaluma Planning Commission.

Camille Enterprises received design approval on the apartments planned on Keokuk Street between Magnolia Avenue and Cherry Street. Acting planning director Frank B. Gray said zoning and a building allotment had previously been approved for the project.

The commission also approved single-family residential zoning for 831 Madison Street as requested by Harold Wojciechowski.

Two More Hospitalized For Bad Halloween Candy

Two more Petalumans were hospitalized yesterday after eating Halloween candy that may have been spiked with drugs.

Brian Bailey, 5, and his brother, Craig, 4, of 1721 Kearney Street, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for severe stomach upsets.

Police said the boys had gathered candy in the immediate neighborhood and became ill yesterday after eating a small amount of candy known as "Fizzies." The suspect candy will be analyzed for drug content.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Baca, 12 Vallejo Street, were hospitalized Tuesday after eating candy their children had collected. Police said laboratory tests have not been completed yet to determine drug content in that candy.

Holiday Food To Be Collected

Novato Youth Commission members will collect food next week at junior and senior high schools in Novato for a Thanksgiving sharing program for needy families, according to recreation supervisor Larry Dito.

The food will be picked up at the schools next Friday and taken to the Novato Human Needs Center, 1523 South Novato Boulevard, for distribution, Dito said.

The commission will meet next Tuesday at Novato High School after attending the Novato Unified School District board meeting at 8 p.m. Commissioners will elect officers for the coming year and discuss cooperation between the Marin County Youth Commission and the city youth commissions, Dito said.

A Florida Shakedown Denied For Nixon Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Nixon reelection committee fund raiser denied today that he shook down a Florida homebuilder for a $100,000 contribution in return for helping him with a Federal Housing Authority suspension.

Benjamin Fernandez, former chairman of the National Hispanic Finance Committee for the Re-election of the President, denied the charges made before the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday by the homebuilder John Priestes.

"I never asked him for a dime," Fernandez said in a statement prepared for his opening testimony before the committee. "He told me he was going to make a contribution of $25,000. He was never promised any favors directly or indirectly in exchange for his donation."

Priestes testified he was contacted by Fernandez in Florida and told his troubles with the FHA could be solved if he made the contribution.

"To my knowledge, in no single instance was there ever offered a promise of political favoritism, coercion or other similar tactic employed in the solicitation, collection or expending of these campaign contributions," Fernandez said of his entire fund-raising effort.

Priestes told the committee Fernandez set up a meeting at which Priestes handed a check for $25,000, as a down payment on an $100,000 campaign contribution, to Maurice F. Stans. Priestes said he agreed to pay the money after Fernandez and Stans promised to have then Housing Secretary George Romney tell the FHA to lift its suspension of him.

The deal utlimately fell through, and the money was returned, Priestes said.

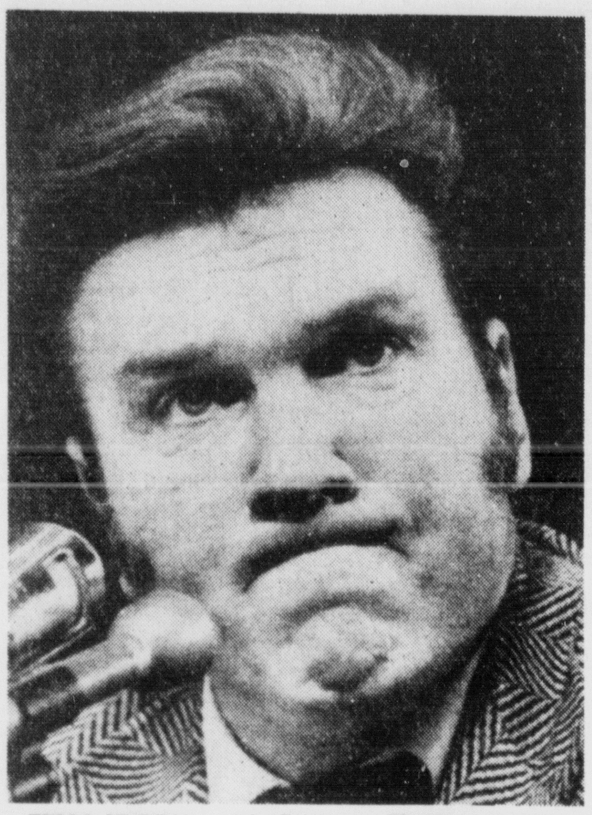

Stans, who was Nixon's campaign finance chairman, sent the committee a letter admitting receiving the check from Priestes, but denying it was in return for favorable action from Romney.

Stans said after Priestes gave him the check, he explained the trouble with the FHA and said he hoped "HUD would treat him fairly."

Stans, the former Commerce Secretary who is under indictment in New York, said he told Priestes he would check with HUD. A few days later Stans said he received a letter from a HUD official advising "any contact with Priestes at this time would be highly inappropriate."

Stans said he instructed Fernandez to end all contact with Priestes.

"If he (Priestes) had any ideas of getting favors in return for contributions, not only did he not get them, but he was soundly rebuffed," Stans said.

TELLS OF DEAL — John Priestes, a Florida contractor, told the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday that President Nixon's reelection fund raisers shook him down for $100,000 as the price to drop a Federal Housing Administration charge. The claim, however, was denied today in testimony by Benjamin Fernandez, former chairman of the National Hispanic Finance Committee for Reelection of Nixon. (UPI Telephoto)

Some Advice From Winner

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (UPI) —Rick Wood, a 19-year-old political science student at Southwestern College and the youngest candidate ever to win a major elective office in San Diego County, had some advice for politicians yesterday.

"If you spend enough time working at the grass-roots level, you can win almost any election," said Wood, who outpolled four other candidates — all in their 30s—to win election to the district board of education.

"It was an awful lot of hard work," he said. "I walked nearly all the precincts, knocking on doors. No other candidate did that. That way I got voter identification."

Air-Fern Really Tiny Sea Animal

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — The so-called "air-fern", a popular decorative item, is actually the skeletal remains of a tiny sea animal, says Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist Everett E. Janne.

After the skeletons are dredged from the sea, they are cleaned, dyed green and treated with chemicals to keep them soft and pliable. The airfern should not be watered because moisture will remove the dye and conditioning material.

College To Offer Weekend Classes To Fulltime, Parttime Students

College of Marin will offer weekend classes to both fulltime and parttime students in the spring semester, Marin Community College District trustees decided last night.

The board unanimously approved budgeting an additional $24,305 to offer 15 or 20 Friday night and Saturday morning classes for students who cannot fit them in on weekdays.

Courses will include art, biology, history, mathematics, physical education and other subjects, according to John A. Grasham, superintendent-president.

The district's Indian Valley College has been successful with five Friday night and three Saturday morning classes this semester, Grasham reported.

The Marin Community College District Board Also:

WINTON ACT — Approved formation of a certificated employees council to act as bargaining agent in future salary and work condition discussions, as required by state law. The panel will include members of the American Federation of Teachers and the California Teachers Association.

ARCHITECT — Agreed to hold closed sessions Dec. 5 and Dec. 12 to screen applicants for district architect. The board terminated the contract of Corwin Booth and Associates of San Francisco last month, after the firm had served the district 10 years, in dissatisfaction over ventilation and other problems in new buildings, according to district staff.

MEET AND CONFER — Also set a closed board session for Nov. 21 to appoint and instruct a district representative to meet and confer with the new certificated employee council under the Winton Act.

WOMEN — Approved applying for $12,000 in state and federal funds for a new "women's educational reentry" program designed to assist women who are their family's chief wage-earners, and divorcees and single women who need job training and counseling.

CHILD CARE CENTER — Approved application for $21,355 state funds toward the $38,255 budget for operating the child care center at College of Marin through June 1974. Under new state law, only children of college students will be eligible; off-campus children have been eligible during the year the center has operated, but only two are enrolled.

SOLO STUDY — Approved spending $16,930 for equipment for the Independent Study Center at College of Marin.

BID OPENINGS — Awarded contract for an auto shop boring machine to Industrial Hard Chrome Co. of San Francisco, lowest of three qualified bidders at $7,817.91; rejected all bids for an auto shop honing machine; awarded a $10,670.95 contract for 33 tape cassette systems for the audio-visual library to Educational Electronics of California, sole bidder.

INDIAN VALLEY — Heard that the new ad hoc committee on access to the Indian Valley campus will hold its formative meeting at 8 p.m. today in the multipurpose room of Pacheco School.

HAMILTON — Heard from Graham that another public agency is competing for the four air force base hangers the district would like to obtain for vocational programs, and that the county administrator's office will probably decide which applicant has priority, if the 477-acre surplus area of the base is turned over to the county.

MEETINGS — Approved a workshop session on budget procedures for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 14 at the Kentfield campus; a regular board meeting for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 21 in the Science Center; a tentative workshop session at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 28, a regular board meeting Dec. 5 and an adjourned session Dec. 12.

Added Security Devices Ordered

The Marin County Superior Court has ordered another $4,000 worth of security devices at the Marin Hall of Justice.

The order, issued to county auditor-controller Michael Mitchell, is to finance a more elaborate alarm system and other security knickknacks in the municipal court clerk's office and the restricted hallway leading to judges' chambers.

A security network involving alarms, sheriff's deputies, a glass shield in one courtroom and other devices has been built up since the Oct. 1971 courtroom bombing.

Oil Reserves Far Outstrip Pumping

CHICAGO (UPI) — For a quarter-century, the more oil they extracted from the Middle East, the more oil they found — 18 times more.

Estimates in 1944 of the reserves in that area, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, totaled 18 billion barrels. Four years later the estimates were raised to 32 billion. By 1971, the estimated reserves were put at 366.8 billion barrels —59.6 per cent of the world's total.

Hospital Worker Pay Increase Plea To Go To Living Council

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Cost of Living Council has tentatively agreed to hear New York City's urgent request that it allow striking hospital workers the 7.5 per cent pay raise they won in collective bargaining two years ago, Mayor John V. Lindsay said yesterday.

But John T. Dunlop, chairman of the council, insisted that "we have no intention of being the scapegoat in the dispute." Union officials were not available to comment on whether they would go along with the arrangement, which called for the strike to be ended in exchange for immediate consideration of the wage hike.

The council, which has insisted that the increases be limited to 5.5 per cent, has been blamed for the four-day strike that forced the city's 48 private hospitals to discharge thousands of patients. One hospital had its linen delivered by helicopter to avoid hostile pickets. There were 33 arrests for strike-related violence.

In another New York strike, advertising and editorial workers at the Daily News accepted an offer of a $13.85 a week wage increase in each year of a two-year contract, ending a strike that stopped the nation's largest circulation newspaper from publishing for two days. The current top scale for editorial employes is $330 a week. The contract also provided for improving the pension plan.

The agreement after an argument-filled two-hour meeting forestalled the possibility that the New York Times would lend its plant for the production of the News as it had offered, a situation that might have prompted picketing at the Times and prevented both papers from publishing.

In other strikes across the country:

Milwaukee Mayor Henry W. Maier held aloft at a press conference a picture of a fireman carrying a baby from a burning building and said, "The question is, where is he now? This is the job he has been doing. This is the guy that's been doing the job that we have been so proud of."

About half the city's daily complement of 300 firemen have been calling in sick since Sunday morning, when their contract with the city expired. A city council spokesman said the union has turned down an offer of a $1,900 yearly wage increase. Two hundred National Guardsmen have been nationalized to staff undermanned fire stations.

Trans World Airlines was grounded for the fourth day by a walkout of stewards and stewardesses. Management said no date has been set for contract talks to start again.

Negotiations were to resume in Los Angeles between representatives of striking stagehands and the three television networks.

THE SAFETY CAUSE

Council's Preaching Pays Off

By MONTY HOYT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHICAGO — Safety is a full-time business.

Those "life you may save may be your own" people, the National Safety Council, have been preaching safety for 60 years.

And there have been notable successes: Fatal accidents at home and at work last year were at the lowest point in U.S. history.

The council is proud that manufacturers subscribing to its safety education programs have a disabling-accident rate 70 per cent lower than nonsubscribers.

"Some people say it's un-American to be for safety. Our biggest problem," he said, drawing on 15 years as head of the world's largest private safety organization, "is that we have not persuaded the general public to believe as we believe about safety.

"There's more public awareness of safety today, but I wouldn't say there has been an appreciable increase in public participation. The public domain has hardly been touched."

The U.S. safety record is not an unblemished success story; 117,000 people were killed in accidents in 1972, the most ever. Another 11.5 million people were disabled beyond the day of the accident. The loss, in terms of economic waste, was $37 billion, according to council estimates.

The primary reason for the climbing death rate has been the increase in motor-vehicle deaths and deaths in public places (usually from recreational accidents). Last year alone, there were 56,000 deaths on the highways, more than the U.S. casualty list in 12 long years of fighting in Vietnam.

The council is perhaps best known for the projected fatality count it releases six times a year before major national holidays.

"This is instigated at the behest of the news media," Pyle said. Such projections, which become widely reported news as the holiday highway tolls begin to mount, "deserve as much time and media space" before the holiday period begins, Pyle argued.

In this way they serve as safety reminders.

No area of people's work, home, travel, or leisure activities is too insignificant to escape the council's scrutiny in searching for ways to avoid accidents.

Recently, the safety council has come out against high fashion. Platform shoes (especially in combination with baggy pants) are a hazard, it says.

The council has taken unpopular stances about weddings; don't throw rice, it may create slippery surfaces. And brides, stay away from lighted candles with that veil.

The council, headquartered here, is a nonprofit public service group. Almost completely self-sufficient, its $11-million budget comes from 15,000 members — manufacturers, industries, businesses, government agencies, schools, citizen service groups — who subscribe to its safety services.

At least half the council's thrust remains in the area of occupational safety — creating a safer work environment.

The organization was started in 1913 as the National Council for Industrial Safety. Today, NSC provides occupational safety and health training to employees around the country and has been instrumental in preparing industry to meet new federal standards required under the 1970 Occupational Safety and Health Act.

In the final analysis, "if safety is going to work, it takes people to make it work," said Vincent L. Tofany, the council's newly elected president.

Board Approves Airport Project

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The city's Airport Commission approved an environmental impact study yesterday and voted to go ahead with a $390 million expansion program for San Francisco International Airport.

The report now goes to the Board of Supervisors for an additional public hearing.

Commissioners said the report showed that expansion would have adverse effects on the environment but that they would be outweighed by social, economic and some environmental benefits.

The airport is owned by the city but is in San Mateo County where supervisors conditionally endorsed the expansion. The supervisors said certain problems could be eased by a coordinated transit system serving the airport and efforts to combat noise and pollution.

Group Elects New Officers

Other officers elected are: Mary Rabb, vice president; Mary Carpou, secretary, and Charles W. Dechent, treasurer.

The next meeting of the homeowners association will be held Dec. 10.

Coalition Will Study Money Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Four organizations today announced the formation of a coalition to monitor and study the effectiveness of the administration's revenue sharing program.

The two year project, called the National Clearinghouse on Revenue Sharing, was created by four orgaizations: The League of Women Voters Education Fund, the National Urban Coalition, the Center for Community Change and the Center for National Policy Review.

The study, financed in large part by a $475,000 grant from the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation in New York City, will attempt to follow how the $30 billion revenue sharing program affects minorities and poor people.

Under the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, $30.2 billion in federal revenues will be allocated to state and local governments over a five-year period.

"There are relatively few limits on how, or for what purpose, these funds may be spent," the group said in a statement. "Of primary interest to the project is how states and localities will respond to the needs of less advantaged citizens."

At least six states, six counties and 55 municipalities will come under scrutiny of the project.

Afghanistan is bounded on the north by the Soviet Union, on the west by Iran, on the east by China and on the south by Pakistan.

Mental Hospital Crisis Solved Without Fanfare

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's plan to "phase out" California's state mental hospitals raised a furor when it was announced last February, but now it has been quietly shelved.

In the face of raging political storms and increasing violent crime the Reagan administration, in at least a partial reversal of its earlier position, now plans to keep in operation for the foreseeable future" the 11 state institutions still in existence.

They will, however, take on vastly expanded functions in what officials envision as a "balanced treatment system" designed to care for a wide variety of patients, ranging from mentally disturbed sex offenders to retarded children.

Part of that system is a proposed independent "network" of treatment facilities for violent patients that would span the spectrum from heavy security institutions for the most dangerous to neighborhood "group homes" for those about to return to the community.

Unlike the announcement that plans were being drawn to take the state out of the hospital business by 1982, the administration's decision to continue operation of the 11 hospitals went almost unnoticed.

At a recent hearing of a special Senate investigating committee, officials submitted a draft report declaring the Department of Health will maintain the 11 state hospitals now in operation for the foreseeable future."

Plans to "phase out" state hospitals had been announced against a backdrop of increasing public alarm over a series of heinous murders and other violent crimes by persons who had been treated as mental patients.

Parents of hospitalized mentally retarded children bitterly protested the "phase out." The legislature held fact-finding hearings. Democratic gubernatorial contenders accused Reagan of "dumping" patients into communities unprepared to care for them.

Some state officials, including Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian, deny there was ever any intention of padlocking the hospitals. He contends administration plans were misunderstood and seized upon by interests such as the California State Employes Association to exploit for political advantage.

There was not enough said about it and not enough clarity to it," Brian said of the plans. "There was insufficient communication."

Other officials in sensitive positions don't agree entirely. They contend the long-range plans were modified" in part because of increased violence and political pressure.

Health administrators like anyone else are loathe to admit they were wrong," one highly placed executive source said.

During the past few years, Reagan has closed three state hospitals by eliminating them from the budget. Known widely for his "squeeze, cut and trim" fiscal policies, the governor has steadfastly denied that budget-cutting dictated their closing.

He notes a steadily declining mentally ill population in the hospitals and points to evidence demonstrating that most patients respond better in community-based facilities where they can be better integrated into a normal environment.

When Reagan took office in 1967, the 15 state hospitals had populations of 21,000 mentally ill and 13,000 mentally retarded. Currently there are about 6,800 patients in hospitals for the mentally ill and 10,000 in hospitals for the mentally retarded.

The latest announced administration plan calls for two hospitals for the mentally ill, five for the mentally retarded and four to serve both.

But the specter of released patients roaming free to commit violent crimes has aroused Californians and election conscious legislators, always sensitive to public demands for safety.

State Health Director J. M. Stubblebine, a veteran psychiatrist, told the special Senate committee chaired by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, that nationwide studies show "the incidence of violence in released mentally ill patients is less than the general population and there can be no justification for preventive detention of the mentally ill."

In California, under the 1969 Lanterman-Petris-Short Act, a patient can be held involuntarily for observation and treatment for 72 hours. He can be held longer if he volunteers to do so or a court certifies him to be a danger.

Under that circumstance, he can be held for another two weeks plus an additional 90 court-ordered days if he assaults or tries to assault someone.

"I would say there is some need to lengthen the observation time that a patient can be held involuntarily," Alquist said. But you have to balance your concern for public safety with your concern about the civil rights of the individual."

Stubblebine is proposing a separate new system for dealing with violent mental patients including those committed by criminal courts to be operated by the Department of Health.

For the most dangerous, there would be heavily secured institutions that could be either new or parts of existing institutions. For patients who demonstrated stability of behavior and assurance of non-violent behavior," there would be minimum security residential facilities close to population centers.

For those nearly able to move back into the community," Stubblebine has called for a smaller "even neighborhood kind of facility" such as a group home, which could also provide outpatient care and supervision.

Riles Wants Metrics Taught Quickly In California Schools

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Wilson Riles tilts the scales at 92 kilograms and is a strapping 190 centimeters tall.

And if Riles get his way, every school child in California will be talking in those "foreign" terms within three years.

Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, has proposed that California schools teach the metric system of measurements instead of the old English system of feet, pounds and quarters.

While most of the nation is inching toward the metric system, Riles wants California to plunge into it beginning with the 1976-77 school year.

"There is nothing sacred and there is not much logic in the present customary system of measurements in the United States," Riles contends.

"We have to act now to assure that our state's schools are well prepared to offer instruction in metric units, rather than being caught in the confusion as the country converts to the metric system," he said in an interview.

While many Americans may not have noticed it, Riles noted that many big businesses including IBM, General Motors and several large food packaging firms are converting to the metric system.

He also said it was "inevitable" that Congress would soon pass a bill, supported by the Nixon administration, calling for nationwide conversion over a 10-year span. The United States is the only major industrial nation in the world still using the old English system.

California already boasts the first state agency in the country to go metric —the geothermal unit of the state Division of Oil and Gas. Even the American wine industry is planning to convert, changing the traditional "fifth" to three-fourths of a liter.

Riles wants schools to teach primarily the metric system beginning in the fall of 1976. He said he will caution teachers against side-by-side instruction of the current system and metrics.

It would be much easier, he said, for the youngsters to learn exclusively the metric system instead of being bogged down with conversion tables.

The children may be somewhat confused learning metrics while their parents still deal in the English system, Riles acknowledged, but what little they need to know for everyday problems they can learn from adults.

It would be far worse, Riles said, if the youngsters were educated in the old English system and found the nation was operating in metrics when they entered the work world.

Other educators interviewed by UPI agreed with Riles that exclusive teaching of metrics was far more effective than trying to teach metrics and the old English system simultaneously.

But, UCLA Mathematics Professor Paul Johnson warned, California should avoid "getting ahead of Congress" and not begin putting heavy emphasis on metrics until it is clearer that the entire nation definitely will convert.

Some critics don't like Riles' plan because they think the nation should stick with the system of inches, pounds and quarts. Others contend metric teaching will make it more difficult for children to grasp ordinary arithmetic skills.

Besides the United States, the only countries still using non-metric systems are Barbados, Burma, Ghana, Jamaica, Liberia, Muscat and Oman, Naura, Sierra Leone, Southern Yemen and Tonga.

Riles' plan must be approved by the state Board of Education, which thus far has taken a "wait-and-see" attitude. It currently is being studied by the board's curriculum commission.

The full board must decide before June, 1974 if mathematics textbooks for the 1976-77 school year will contain only the metric system.

"There is no doubt in my mind," Riles said, "that the children entering school this year will be living in a metric world when they finish high school.

"Traditionally the schools are dragged up a decade or two in the rear. But if we're going to do this thing (convert to metrics) we ought to do it right. "I don't want people writing stories 10 years from now saying why Johnny can't use metrics."

"I have confidence that the children can adjust quickly to the metric system," Riles said. "But adults tend to resist change in any system, and those of us who are parents or teachers are bound to be apprehensive about the change."

Riles said he hopes his department will be able to produce videotape shows for educational television to help explain metrics to befuddled adults.

"Learning the metric system isn't really that difficult," added Bess Frank, an analyst for the Education Department. "It's not nearly as difficult as learning a new language or even math."

There are 30 centimeters to a foot, 2.2 pounds to a kilogram and 3.8 liters in a gallon.

For those not adroit in metrics, Riles weighs 202 pounds and is 6'4" tall.

Pearl Bailey Back Singing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Singer Pearl Bailey is proving once again you can't keep a good trooper down.

Miss Bailey, 55, returned to the stage at the Tropicana Hotel last night from Sunrise Hospital, where she was rushed after collapsing following the early show Monday night at the Superstar Theater at the hotel.

The veteran entertainer has a history of heart trouble, but hospital attendants said Miss Bailey had collapsed because of fatigue.

Treasure Hunt Is Very Costly

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —Two Denver, Colo., men came looking for $2 billion in lost treasure, but wound up more than $1,000 in the red.

Arthur D. Neblett, 30, and Robert F. Mikel, about 40, arrived about two weeks ago in search for the legendary "treasure of the Guadalupe," supposedly left by Jesuit priests in the Tumacacori Mountains near here 400 years ago.

Their equipment cost them more than $1,000 and the U.S. Forest Service fined them $90 for building an illegal campfire and failing to obtain a treasure hunting permit.

Supervisors Pay Boost Rescinded

NEVADA CITY (UPI) — Voters in the heart of California's gold country approved by a 7-to-1 margin a pay cut for Nevada County Supervisors.

The supervisors in June voted themselves a $2,100 pay raise, upping their $6,000 annual salary to $8,100.

Supervisor Ralph Buchanan protested the move and subsequently left a referendum campaign to bring the salaries back down to $6,000. The vote Tuesday was 7,840 to 1,237.

Highway 101 Widening Scheduled

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Highway 101 will be widened from six to eight lanes from north of the Richardson Bay Bridge to north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard interchange starting in January and be completed in 18 months, the state Division of Highways announced today.

Bids on the $2,910,000 project will be opened Dec. 19 in Sacramento.

The new lanes will be added to the outside of existing lanes from Richardson Bay Bridge to the Alto interchange. From there on the widening will be done in the median strip, according to the division announcement.

Existing climbing lanes will be extended between the Corte Madera and Alto interchanges. Concrete median barrier with metal mesh glare screen will be built. Lighting and signs will be updated. Three structures at Corte Madera creek will be improved, making them more earthquake resistant.

Hunters Point Project Halted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The federal government has decided to spend no more on San Francisco's Hunters Point redevelopment project which is only one-third completed.

Robert L. Rumsey, the city Redevelopment Agency's executive director, said yesterday the Department of Housing and Urban Development has refused to grant the $15 million needed to build 650 housing units, the project's second phase.

So far, 650 housing units, a park, child care centers and schools have been constructed.

The project was to have cost $100 million.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Colds, Respiratory Ailments Man's Main Health Problem

Colds and other respiratory tract infections are the largest single disease problems of man. Every year most of us have one to three bouts of sore throat, sniffles, or bronchitis; each lasts five to eight days.

Recovery is the rule, but complications may be serious. Colds travel in all circles of society and from one person to another within a short period of time. But some people have more resistance than others, and occasionally we hear someone say, "I can't remember the last time I had a cold."

There is good reasoning behind our plea to those with colds to avoid others, cover the nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing, and wash the hands frequently, particularly when handling food.

RESPIRATORY INFECTIONS are contagious and easily spread when the causative virus is inhaled or carried into the nose and mouth via contaminated fingers or food. Stay home when there is fever or symptoms are of more than average severity.

For decades, I have said that we must rely upon established remedies until a preventive or cure is found. There has been improvement in medicines such as the decongestants, expectorants, cough preparations, and products that relieve symptoms. Antibiotics, such as penicillin or erythromycin, have no effect on viral infections, but are helpful when a sore throat or bronchitis is caused by streptococci or other bacteria. Wonder drugs should be reserved for complications such as secondary ear infections or pneumonia.

MOST OF US have to work and cannot avoid people who insist upon going to school or work despite everything. High resistance can be maintained by remaining in top physical condition during the colds season. Get enough sleep and practice moderation. Avoid overheated and dry rooms which make the nasal membranes more susceptible to infection.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, San Rafael, Ca 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

ANEMIA AND ULCER

R. B. writes: My red blood cell count has been low ever since an attack of bleeding ulcer. Will liver pills or injections raise it?

REPLY

No, but iron will help, provided hemorrhage was the cause of anemia. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on anemia.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Heat A Problem For Art School

BOSTON (UPI) —Turning the heat down a few degrees in New England School of Art classrooms would pose a serious problem, administrative assistant William Davis said yesterday.

"When we go to hire nude models, one of the things they always ask is, how warm is the room?"

Davis said last night he was concerned whether the school might be granted an exemption from the 10 degree heat reduction President Nixon called for in commercial buildings.

Sports Complex Plan Defeated

SAN JOSE (AP) — Santa Clara County residents have refused to fund construction of a $25 million sports arena through an increase in property taxes.

By a better than 3-to-1 margin Tuesday, voters rejected a plan to authorize a tax override of up to 5½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation for the next 30 years. The final tally was 50,210 yes votes to 168,885 votes no.

BEST SHOWS FOR TONIGHT

NAMES IN THE NEWS

Sausalitan Gets Rank Of Colonel

William R. Berkman of 33 Atwood Avenue, Sausalito was promoted to colonel in the Army Reserve during ceremonies with the 351st General Officer Command in Mountain View.

Colonel Berkman has been a member of the reserve unit for seven years. He is the commanding general's principal staff officer for operations and training. During two years of active duty in the early 1950's he served as adviser to a Korean Army battalion and as commander of a quartermaster detachment.

HEAD — Donald B. Head, Sonoma County director of public works, has been elected president of the County Engineers Association of California for 1974. Head, who has been department director since 1961, previously served as vice president and secretary.

MUDGE — Coast Guard Seaman Thomas D. Mudge, whose wife, Debra, is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Leon O. Tiemann of 201 San Carlos Way, Novato, has reported for duty to the Coast Guard Station in Petaluma.

GOODRICH — Allen Goodrich of 42 Oxford Drive, San Rafael, is a member of the 150-piece marching band at Oregon State University in Corvallis.

BAUNE — Terrie Baune of Tamalpais High School has been cited as an outstanding student writer by the National Council of Teachers of English. She was nominated last January by her teachers. She will receive a certificate for her award and her name submitted to colleges for scholarships. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth J. Baune of 127 Buena Vista Avenue, Mill Valley.

Pigeons Work For The Church

APPLEDOR, England (UPI) — Rev. Donald Peyton-Jones was concerned about the spiritual isolation of 35 members of his congregation living on phoneless Lunday Island 24 miles out in the storm lashed Bristol Channel.

There was no way the Lundy Islanders could get news back to the Devonshire mainland for publication in the parish magazine until Peyton-Jones introduced his carrier pigeon service.

So far he has conducted four experimental flights. Bird No. 1 arrived with a message from his wife: birds No.2 and No.3 both arrived safely from the island but lost their messages en route, and bird No.4, faced with rough weather, was found four days later still on Lundy sheltering behind some rocks.

49er Ted Kwalick Takes The Stand

They had quite a question and answer session Tuesday night when the St. Raphael's Church Men's Club of San Rafael had 49er tight end Ted Kwalick as its guest speaker at the club's 49er night.

When master of ceremonies Bob Dinsmore, KTIM general manager, introduced Kwalick to the group, he said, "We'll ask Ted some questions and then have the 49er 1972 highlights film; it will be great to see some outstanding action by the 49ers — almost like a trip down memory lane. Actually, we were going to show some 1973 highlights but the projector wouldn't take that small a reel."

And Kwalick smiled through it all.

One of the questions which came up, as it always does, is "Who should be playing quarterback?" The players don't make this decision, but they always get the question. And most of them seem to end up talking about Joe Reed, a young man the 49ers drafted in 1971 (11th round) from Mississippi State.

Joe will be getting his chance to show his talent Sunday against the Washington Redskins now that head coach Dick Nolan has named him the starting quarterback. It's the BIG chance for Reed who has been waiting in the wings for three seasons, singing a lot but playing very little.

Kwalick's answer to the quarterback question won't make any enemies with any of the three Niners who man that position. Said Ted:

"Actually, each of our three quarterbacks has his own special abilities and each is different. (John) Brodie, of course, is outstanding at reading defenses and certainly still can throw the football. (Steve) Spurrier presents a different style and creates different problems for the defense, and Reed has an enormously strong arm along with good maneuverability."

Some of the other Kwalick questions and answers:

Q. Why can't the 49ers run?

A. I think when we're healthy we do have a good running game. I can't explain why it isn't working in 1973. But we are, after all, a pass-oriented team and it's been a successful pattern in the past for us.

Q. Would you like to play for the Rams?

A. Absolutely not. I can't stand Los Angeles.

Q. When Gene Washington was out of the lineup you were consistently being double teamed. Does his presence make so much difference — like against Detroit when you had such an outstanding game?

A. Definitely. With Gene in the lineup the defense has to take an entirely different approach and obviously they can't concentrate that heavily on any one receiver.

Q. What advice do you have for the youngsters who are, for example, just starting to think about playing football?

A. I think football makes an honest man of you. The world is full of phony people these days but you can't be phony and play football.

Q. Who is the toughest player in the league for you to handle?

A. They're all tough, but I'd rather play against the guy who just hits hard but doesn't really have the ability. Guys like Lem Barney of Detroit and Jimmy Johnson of our own team never seem to hit you unnecessarily but they're always right there with you.

A Win Would Push Warriors Into 1st

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors can squeeze into first place in the tight Pacific Division with a win tonight at 8 o'clock, but to get there they have to beat one of basketball's hottest teams.

Chicago brings its slowdown attack and bruising style of play into the Coliseum Arena. The Bulls are 10-2 while Portland and Golden State are both 6-4 and slumping Los Angeles 8-6 in the muddled Pacific battle.

"They are a slowdown team, no question," said the mustachioed guard, "and they like to double team you a lot. But I like to run and I don't let the opponent dictate my style of play."

Chicago is led by veteran Chet Walker, who is hitting 23 points a game to rate 12th in the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors have nobody in the top 20 with their balanced attack led by Cazzie Russell (18.5) and Rick Barry, who has hit 39 of his last 80 shots and is off on another freethrow string, is next at 18.2.

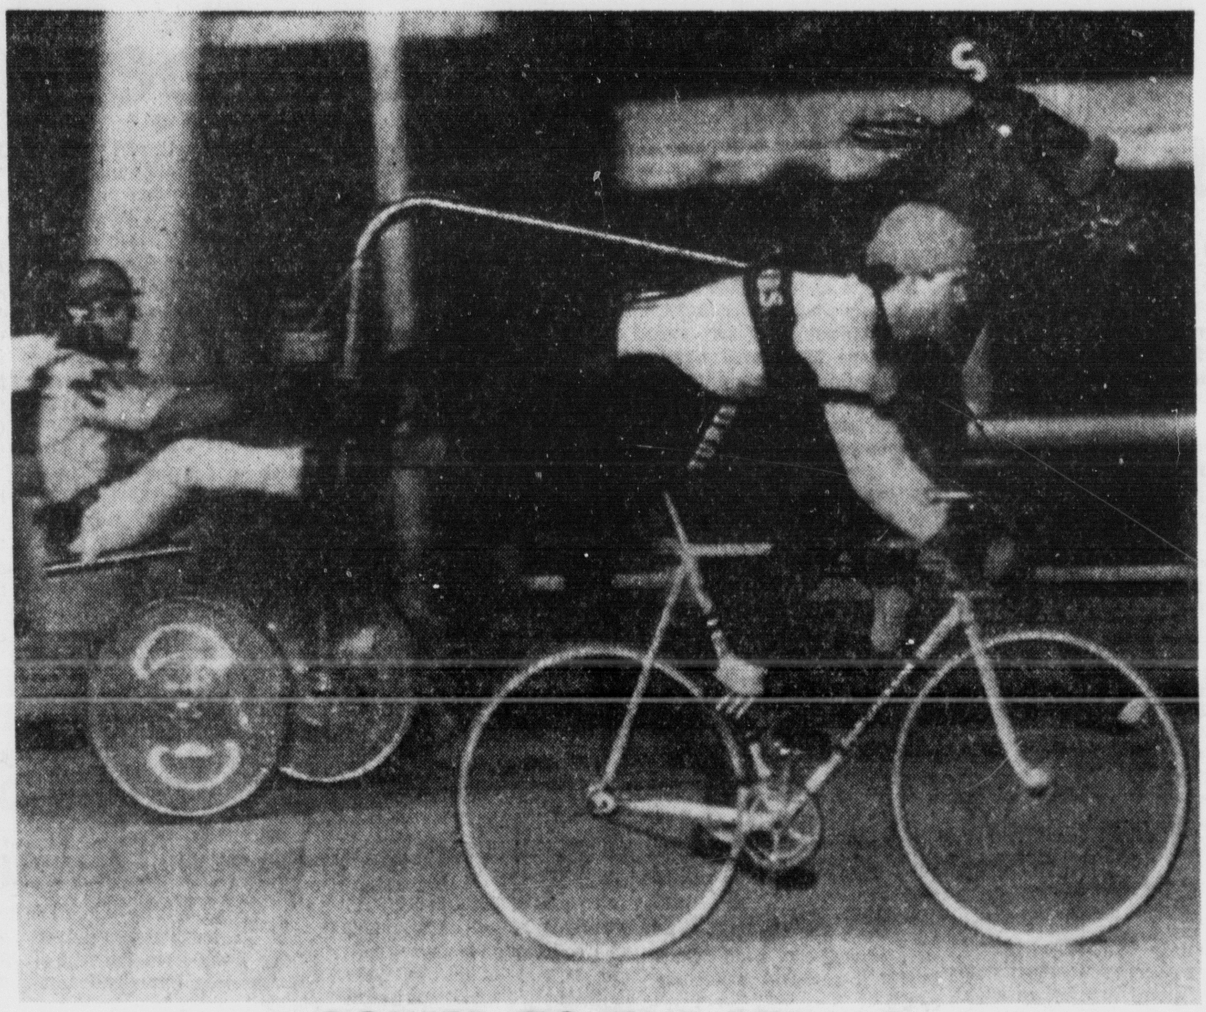

Swingman Joe Ellis, out for three weeks with a leg muscle pull, hopes to be ready to go Saturday night against Buffalo. Coach Al Attles has been playing guard during workouts since his team has only nine healthy players.

DETROIT SIGNS 1ST PICK CASALS

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Loves, one of 16 professional tennis teams in the World Team Tennis League, yesterday signed first round draft choice Rosemary Casals of Sausalito.

POWER TO THE PEDALS

Bicyclist Mike Cavanaugh, 22, of Northbrook, Ill. yesterday bore down on his pedals while racing Worthy Bret (background), a three-year-old bay colt driven by Joe Marsh Jr. They were neck-and-neck until the last turn of the three-mile race when Worthy Bret took a commanding lead and won. "The Great Match Race" was contested at Washington Park in Chicago.

Night For Goalies In Seals' Tie

The Chicago Black Hawks and California Golden Seals battled for 40 minutes without scoring a goal. Each team scored in the final period for a 1-1 standoff that left the Seals winless in their last seven games.

Morris Mott zinged a shorthanded goal past goalie Tony Esposito on a rebound of Rick Kessell's shot with 7:01 remaining to give the Seals the tie. Mott's first point of the season came just 12 seconds after teammate Ted McAneeley entered the penalty box.

Both goaltenders were sharp in the tight-checking game. In a slow-moving first period, the Seals got off only four shots on Esposito but the Black Hawks were twice as bad by firing only two at Gilles Meloche.

However, Esposito made several spectacular saves in the third period as the Seals outshot the Black Hawks 13-10.

The Seals host the Buffalo Sabres tomorrow night in search of their first victory since Oct. 24 when they beat the Detroit Red Wings.

Score by periods:

Chicago	0	0	1	— 1
California	0	0	1	— 1

First period—No scoring. Penalties—None

Second period—No scoring. Penalties—Pappin 4:11, Gilbertson 5:18, Powis 6:06, Weir 8:27, Gilbertson 11:51

Third period—1. Chicago, Koroll 3 (Mikita, Marks) 0:43. 2. California, Mott 1 (Kessell) 12:59. Penalties—Jarrett 4:03, McAneeley 12:47

49ers' Reserve QB Reed Opens Vs. Redskins

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Joe Reed was elevated yesterday from the bench to starting quarterback of the sputtering san Francisco 49ers.

Coach Dick Nolan announced Reed, an 11th round draft choice out of Mississippi State in 1971, would start Sunday against the Redskins at Washington. Steve Spurrier and John Brodie have quarterbacked the 49ers to a 3-5 record and Nolan hopes Reed can regenerate the offense.

"It's a challenge," said Reed. "When you've waited as long as I have for a chance, you've got to be both excited and worried when it finally comes."

Spurrier has been ineffective most of the season while Brodie threw a team record six interceptions in a 30-20 loss to Detroit Sunday. The loss dropped the 49ers into last place in the National Football Conference West.

Despite starting his No. 3 signal caller, Nolan says his club still has a chance to land a playoff berth.

"This is not any indication we've given up," he said. "It's just that I think Reed deserves the chance and I still believe Steve and John can do the job if Reed doesn't come through."

Coach To Talk On Basketball

John Fitzgerald, head basketball coach at Cardinal Newman High School in Santa Rosa, will speak Tuesday, 7-10 p.m. in Physical Education Room 33 at Sonoma State College.

In his 10th year at Cardinal Newman, Fitzgerald was a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals National League baseball organizations between 1949-1952.

Fitzgerald will be speaking on the "Small Players High School Team: The Inside Game" and "Fast Break and Early Offense."

Li'l League May Appeal Ruling

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Little League baseball officials say they will probably appeal a decision which recommended a change in rules nationally to allow both boys and girls to play ball.

The remark yesterday followed the decision by Sylvia Pressler, a hearing examiner for the state Division on Civil Rights, that Little League Baseball Inc. discriminated against girls.

But Anthony Malfitano, attorney for the league, said he was "99 per cent" sure the decision would be challenged in appeals, which could go as far as the U.S. Supreme Court.

"The institution of Little League is as American as the hot dog and the apple pie. There is no reason why that part of Americana should be withheld from girls," Mrs. Pressler said in handing down her decision.

She said, ruling on a suit filed by the Essex County chapter of the National Organization of Women, that both Congress and the state legislature had made sex discrimination unlawful and the Little League would have to abide by those laws as "a public accommodation."

NOW filed the class-action suit after the league refused to allow Maria Pepe of Hoboken, N.J., to play ball because of her sex.

During the hearings, six days of which began Aug. 10, both the league and NOW presented medical reports on the physical fitness of girls to play baseball with boys.

Mrs. Pressler will submit her recommendations within two days to Gilbert H. Francis, director of the division, who has 45 days to issue an order based on the recommendation.

Steelers Can Stop Stabler—Keating

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Defensive tackle Tom Keating, who hopes to start for Pittsburgh against his former Oakland Raider teammates here Sunday, thinks the Steelers can cool off Ken Stabler, the American Football Conference passing leader.

"This defense has a facility for getting the ball," Keating boasted of the Steelers. "We lead the league in pass interceptions with 21. The defensive line gets a good push, forces them into third down passing situations and then five defensive backs sit back there and wait for the pass."

Pittsburgh had three interceptions against Stabler in one first-half last year, when Keating spent his time unhappily on the Raiders' bench. An injury to Ernie Holmes could give Keating a chance to see considerable action in the Oakland Coliseum.

"Of course I've been looking forward to playing the Raiders . . . just playing in Oakland will make me play up to my capabilities," Keating said.

Meanwhile, quarterback Terry Hanratty, whom the Steelers plan to start against the Raiders in Oakland Sunday, worked out well yesterday in a long offensive drill on the grass turf of Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Hanratty, who has sore ribs, threw with zip.

Game Switched

The Junior varsity football game tomorrow between Terra Linda and Tamalpais high schools has been switched from San Rafael to Terra Linda's field. Kickoff is scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Gymnast Sue Hummel Wins Title

Sue Hummel of Miller Creek School was high point scorer of the day and won the overall title in the "Beginner Open" division yesterday at the Marin County Junior High and Middle School Compulsory Girls Gymnastics meet at Miller Creek Junior High.

There will be another preliminary meet today at Tamalpais High involving Davidson Middle School, Kent Junior High and Mill Valley Middle School. Yesterday's preliminary meet included girls from Miller Creek and Vallecito junior highs and Santa Venetia Middle School.

NOVICE

Uneven parallel bars — Kathy McInnis (S.V.). Balance beam — Suni Kang (S.V.). Floor exercise — Teresa Maloney (V). Vault — Helen Hewitt (M.C.). All-around — Miss McInnis.

BEGINNER

BEGINNER OPEN

Terra Linda In Key Soccer Win

Terra Linda High School's soccer team is one win away from undisputed championship of the Marin County Athletic League after yesterday's 5-0 shutout over Drake High.

Yesterday's triumph, at Drake, gave Terra Linda a 10-1 record in MCAL play and clinched no worse than a tie for the title with three matches remaining. The Trojans were co-champs last year with San Marin.

'RESPONSIBILITY'

World Golf Has Issue

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — As the touring pros set chase after the richest prize in their history today, the question of "responsibility" still remains to be resolved.

In this case, the question of responsibility refers to the obligation the pro golfers owe the people who will have put up $8.6 million for the 47 Professional Golfers Association tour events on this year's calendar.

For example, the World Open Golf Championship, which started its two-week run over the No. 2 and No. 4 courses at Pinehurst today, is offering a total purse of $500,000 with the winner's share standing at $100,000. Both figures represent new highs, yet for varying reasons five top stars —Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Johnny Mille and Dave Hill —are missing from the field of 240.

"This is a new step for golf and it's important that we work hard to make it a success," said Deane Beman, who has announced his candidacy to replace Joe Dey as Commissioner of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA. "We can't take lightly the challenge of seeing that it is successful."

Yet, the pros are reluctant to give up their independent right to pick and choose where they will play. Many of them aren't quite sure where the solution lies.

"I find it hard to believe that some of the biggest names don't support the biggest money tournament," said Bob Murphy, who along with Beman is a top contender to take home a lot of loot. "If I were putting up $500,000 for a tournament, I'd figure that every pro golfer who could put on his shoes would shoot for it.

"But I also feel these guys are being unfairly criticized for not playing just because there's big money here. If you come down to it, it's just another golf tournament with a different format. We should have the right to pick and choose where we want to play."

Even with those missing, there is still an exceptional international field competing here, and there is a good chance that the top money will go outside the United States. There are 44 foreign entries, including Australia's Bruce Crampton, currently the second leading money winner on the tour with $273,351, and South Africa's Gary Player, always a threat and a man who has been playing well lately.

"This is one of the strongest international fields I've ever seen in one place and it truly has the flavor of a world championship," Player said. "These are two exceptionally fine golf courses and it's unbelievable that we have a chance to win $100,000."

With the tournament being played this late in the year, cold and windy weather is a definite possibility and Player predicted that "the scores are going to be quite bad. But I've been playing well and I'm feeling confident."

Both the No. 2 and 4 courses, which will be used for the first four rounds, play to par 71, but No. 4 appears to be tougher. In the Joe DiMaggio World Celebrity Pro-Am on Wednesday, no one was able to break par on No. 4 and only Jim Jamieson could equal it.

On No. 2, both Jerry Heard and Charles Coody were three-under-par at 68 and Arnold Palmer, Sam Snead, Miller Barber and Bobby Nichols all shot 70.

The field will be cut to the low 70 and ties after Sunday's fourth round, and the survivors will go at it again for another 72 holes on No. 2 next Wednesday to Saturday.

SHOULDER BETTER

Namath May Start Sunday Vs. Pats

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joe Namath, who six weeks ago was thought to be out for the year, could well be the starting quarterback for the New York Jets Sunday when they face the New England Patriots at Shea Stadium.

Namath, who suffered a separated shoulder on Sept. 23 when he was decked by Baltimore linebacker Stan White, has been throwing seriously the past two days. Jets Coach Weeb Ewbank said if Namath is ready, he will be activated and will start. Ewbank, who said he will probably make his decision Saturday, added that Namath would not be activated if he could not start.

"First of all, I wouldn't want to rush him, get him before he's ready," Ewbank said. "And secondly, it's not fair to the guy who's in there if Joe is suited up on the bench. The fans start yelling for him and it doesn't help a guy's confidence when he's trying to do a job."

Namath has been throwing lightly for two weeks but took part in practice drills for the first time on Tuesday.

"Joe was throwing to his receivers for the first time Tuesday," Ewbank said yesterday, "and for the first time he was getting some zing on the ball. He came in today and said his arm felt fine but we'll still wait until the end of the week to make a decision. We have to see how far he comes."

Namath, who seems to have reopened his war with the New York press after a two-year truce, refused to speak with reporters about his playing status. He spent most of Wednesday morning soaking in a whirlpool and sent Ewbank out to tell the press, "I'm trying to get ready and it's a day-to-day proposition."

Ewbank said Namath's arm was still not at peak performance.

"He was throwing about 35-40 yards but mainly he was sticking to the sideline patterns and short stuff. I don't want him to throw too much since it's cold and his arm might stiffen up."

"I want to make one thing clear," Ewbank said. "Joe will not be activated unless he can play. We want to make sure there won't be any setbacks. There is no problem with Al (backup man Al Woodall). We're pleased with him. But any time you've got your star, you have to go with him. You have to play the No. 1 man. Having Joe in there should help the team, give them a big lift."

Utah Speedster Odom Is First Shrine Grid Pick

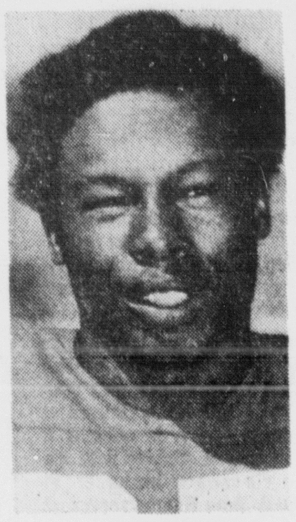

Combined AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Odom of Utah is the first player selected for this year's shrine East-West football game, which will be played at Candlestick Park Dec. 29.

The 5-foot-9, 165-pound speedster was personally scouted by Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf, chairman of the West Selection Committee, who called him "one of the most exciting players I have ever seen."

Waldorf says Odom has 9.4 or 9.5 speed and has scored eight toughdowns this year, only one from closer in than 42 yards.

Odom has averaged 19.9 yards every time he has touched the football in seven games this year — via pass, run punt and kickoff return.

Rancho Harriers Finish Third In Loop Meet

SANTA ROSA — Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park sloshed to a third-place finish in the Sonoma County League Cross Country meet yesterday at Piner High School, giving the Cougars second place in the final league standings.

Analy High School of Sebastopol won the meet and the league title with nine points. (The final standings are based on a point system combining league wins and the final meet.) Rancho Cotate finished second with six points, Piner and Healdsburg tied for third with four points and Sonoma came in last with three points.

Rancho Cotate's Stan Plyler was the individual meet winner, turning in a 13:56, 20 seconds faster than the next runner. Ken Wong placed sixth for the Cougars, as Analy dominated with five men finishing in the top 10.

UCLA Kicker Makes Amends For A Miss

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Seven years ago Mexico-born Efren Herrera didn't know whether a field goal was something you kicked under the uprights or over the bar. Today, as a member of the UCLA Bruins, he is college football's top scoring placekicker.

But last Saturday, while other Bruins were rejoicing over their 62-13 romp over Washington, Herrera sat alone in the dressing room.

"I just don't feel I'm part of this team and I don't think the coaches think I'm part of the team either," the 22-year-old senior blurted to a reporter. "I missed that last extra point on purpose because I was so upset."

There were rumors in the days following that Herrera would leave the team. He huddled with coach Pepper Rodgers and the team's seniors and vented his feelings.

Herrera, UCLA's No. 2 all-time scorer with 175 points, who trails only Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban on the list, then apologized for his public dissatisfaction over not being able to kick more field goals and he was back in good standing.

"It is clear to me now that Efren realizes what he did," Rodgers said. "He also made his feelings known to the team, and I am satisfied the team is satisfied."

"I feel pretty bad about not being able to kick too many field goals and I wish I had more chances from anywhere," he said. My main goal is to kick a 55-yard field goal because I know I can get that and the coaches know that. It's just a matter of time when it will be my chance."

Herrera's longest field goal so far is 45 yards but he is trying to beat Zenon Andrusychyn's school record of 52 yards.

After a day of running cross country, Herrera found a basketball lying on the football field and started kicking it through the goal posts, just as he would in soccer, underneath the bar.

"At first the coach told me I was no good, then he pointed up. I thought, wow, this guy's crazy, you want me to kick it up there? Then the coach said 'alto' in Spanish, which means high. I kicked it over and that's how I started in football."

A Night To Forget For NBA Lakers

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It was a night the Los Angeles Lakers would rather forget.

The Milwaukee Bucks took advantage of several Laker shortcomings last night and cruised to an easy 109-92 victory over Los Angeles.

Elmore Smith, Wilt Chamberlain's replacement at center this season, never really was in the battle of seven-footers against the Bucks' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Smith, who suffered a broken cheekbone last week, saw limited action and scored only seven points and had eight rebounds.

Smith's subpar performance allowed Jabbar to score 22 points and grab 22 rebounds as the Bucks took an early lead and gradually pulled away. The Lakers also were hurt by the absence of Jerry West, who had a strained stomach muscle, and the ineffectiveness of Gail Goodrich.

Bobby Dandridge added 14 for Milwaukee while Happy Hairston was high man for Los Angeles with 19.

In other National Basketball Association action, the Capital Bullets beat the Houston Rockets 111-97, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Phoenix Suns 122-115 and the Seattle SuperSonics overwhelmed the Buffalo Braves 130-113.

Mike Riordan's 29 points, 15 in the third period, carried the Bullets over Houston. Kevin Porter had 13 assists for Capital as it rallied from a 13-point halftime deficit. Rudy Tomjanovich had 36 points for the Rockets.

Fred Carter had 32 points and Tom Van Arsdale 29 to lead the 76ers over Phoenix.

Andrews Seems Forgotten

Andrews, 30, is looking for gainful employment so that he won't be remembered only as a trivia question about the 1973 World Series.

The seven-year veteran second baseman was a little-used pinch hitter for Oakland last season after coming over from the Chicago White Sox. But Andrews, used as a late inning replacement in the second game of the Series, made consecutive errors that allowed the New York Mets to win the contest.

That was when A's owner Charles O. Finley made Andrews sign a release form stating that he had a sore arm and could not play. A chain reaction of events brought Andrews into the limelight and eventually back into uniform to finish the series.

"There is absolutely nothing wrong with my arm," Andrews said the other day from his home in Peabody. "But I have to prove it."

Andrews became a free agent last week. In making the announcement, Finley reiterated that the rangy infielder had a sore throwing arm.

"Those remarks hurt my value as a ballplayer," said Andrews, who has not been contacted formally by any club. "With people saying that something is the matter, no one wants to mess with me. My services are not as marketable now."

Andrews refused to air personal feelings about Finley but did say, "Finley is a man who strives for perfection. He wants to win; I can't think of anything he wouldn't do to win but I think he goes too far sometimes.

"You can't knock the guy for his way," said Andrews. "He's brought a lot into the game with colored uniforms, shoes and baseballs. I admire him for that."

"I think I have major league ability and I want to play. But I don't want to go with just anybody just to sit. If I think I can start or play a lot, that's okay but I won't sign with anyone just to be a utility man."

Andrews said he has been contacted about managing in the minor leagues and has thought about expanding a string of submarine sandwich franchises, called Hawk Shops. "But it's hard to get away from baseball since I've been in the game all my life and I'm only 30. I've even kicked around the idea of managing but I hate to start now since I still think I can play."

ABA Q's May Seek New Home

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (UPI) —The San Diego Conquistadors may be looking for a new home city, officials of the American Basketball Association team said after voters rejected a proposal to build a 20,000-seat arena.

An official said team owner Dr. Leonard Booom would decide next week on the Q's' next action.

With 19,000 votes cast, Boom's proposal for construction of the arena, a regional shopping center and a residential development was defeated by 294 votes.

A team spokesman said the Q's could either seek another location in San Diego County, move to another major city or negotiate for use of the San Diego Sports Arena.

ABA ROUNDUP

Colonels Stretching East Division Lead

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Off to the best start in the history of the league, the Colonels stretched their Eastern Division lead in the young season to 2 ½ games last night when they downed Memphis 113-89 while Carolina was losing to Indiana 109-100.

Kentucky is now 11-1 and the best previous start in the league was 9-2. That mark was posted by Oakland in 1968 and Utah in 1970.

In the other games, Virginia downed New York 111-107 and San Antonio nipped San Diego 105-104.

Kevin Joyce and Bill Keller combined for 45 points as Indiana downed Carolina. Joyce scored 23 points and Keller added 22. Billy Cunningham had 27 for the losers.

George Gervin scored 26 points, 17 of them in the final period, as Virginia handed New York its seventh straight loss. Julius Erving paced the losers with 25 points.

Ski Program, Film Tomorrow In Marin Gym

A program and film show on snow camping and cross country ski touring will be held at the College of Marin gymnasium tomorrow, beginning at 8 p.m.

Speakers will include Frank Quinn, director of the snow training program of the Sierra Club, and Wayne Merry, director of mountaineering and ski touring in Yosemite National Park.

Quinn will show pictures and talk on safe winter camping practices, while Merry will discuss cross country skiing techniques, show films of ski touring and show slides of his recent winter crossing of the Brooks Range in Alaska.

The free program is sponsored by the Alpine House ski shop of Kentfield.

The Sport's Growth Causing Problems

By CHARLIE COANE

Did you ever think about having to make reservations through your local "ticketron" agent for lift tickets because your favorite area may be sold out?

Well, you'd better think about it. It's going on right now at some areas in the East.

Skiing has been a booming sport over the past few years — in fact, it saw an 18 per cent national growth last season. To simplify a complicated situation — someday, there are not going to be enough new facilities in California to handle the hordes of new ski enthusiasts. There are basically two reasons for limited expansion plans for ski areas in California and Nevada: The incredible amount of red tape involved in having a new lift approved is mind-boggling. It sometimes takes years of paperwork. Add to that the rising costs. For example, helicopters to install lift poles go for approximately $3,500 per hour!

"I look for some sort of a reservation system in California within two years," says Cal Gunn, president of the Sierra Ski Areas Association, which includes every major area in the state except Squaw Valley. "I don't know what areas will be included, but I believe it will happen fast — at least for weekends and holiday periods."

Crowded weekends have prompted many skiers to maneuver their plans so that they can ski during the week. Areas have also promoted mid-week skiing and that aspect is growing. But the weekend and holiday situation looks grim, and a few areas limit attendance right now.

So much for the bad news. On the good side of the ledger comes the fact that eight new chairlifts in the Sierra have battled their way through the red tape and are now waiting for skiers to ride on them. Alpine Meadows opens up a new steep slope with the Scott Chute chairlift. Kirkwood has added two new chairs which provide for much more advanced skiing, and Boreal Ridge has two new chairs in the Cedar Ridge area. Bear Valley has a new addition in the Snow Valley section, which is mostly intermediate skiing. At Badger Pass in Yosemite, out went two T-bars and in went two chairs.

New lifts were not the only things that happened at areas over the summer. Heavenly Valley has solved their problem of how to get people down the mountain without having a chairlift take them out of the Creek Valley stations. It's now possible to ski down Maggie's or Waterfall and continue to the bottom via Roundabout. A little earth movement and a few less trees did the trick.

Sugar Bowl has rebuilt the Disney chair and major lift improvements will be noticed at Slide Mountain and Squaw Valley.

An inevitable question always concerns lift ticket costs. "Most resorts went up somewhat," reports Gunn. Well, you didn't expect costs to go down, did you?

Key Soccer Tilt For Mount Tam

DANVILLE — Mount Tamalpais School of Ross defeated Athenian School yesterday in a Bay Counties League soccer match, 3-2, to set up a showdown match tomorrow.

Mount Tam (5-1-1) will be taking on Marin Academy (5-2) with first place at stake, at 3 p.m., on the academy field in San Rafael.

NFL STATISTICS

Wagner's Love For Ball

The Pittsburgh Steelers' safety had six interceptions for the entire 1972 National Football league season.It galled him a little bit that Jack Ham, a linebacker on the Steelers, had seven.

Wagner is making up for that in a hurry. He's already got six interceptions this season, tops in the league according to NFL statistics released today. And Ham is nowhere to be seen on the thievery list.

Buffalo's O. J. Simpson, held in check last Sunday by New Orleans, still commands the American Football Conference in rushing with 1,104 yards, well ahead of runner-up Larry Csonka's 659 for Miami. The National Conference leader is still Dallas' Calvin Hill with 701 yards.

The league continues to rate John Hadl of Los Angeles and Ken Stabler of Oakland as the passing leaders in the National Football Conference and AFC respectively. In receiving, Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia tops the NFC and the league with 41 for 608 yards. Fred Willis, whose game-winning touchdown against Baltimore enabled Houston to snap an 18-game losing streak, is the AFC leader with 37 receptions.

Other NFL leaders include Nike Mike-Mayer, the Atlanta place-kicker whose five field goals carried the Falcons past Los Angeles 15-13 and gave him the league scoring lead with 74 points, and Jerrel Wilson of Kansas City, the top punter with a 44.9-yard average.

Cross Country Title

Mount Tamalpais of Ross was first and Marin Academy of San Rafael second in the Bay Counties League cross country championships last Friday at Marin Academy. Race winner was the academy's Drew D'Annel.

Leg Feeling Fine, Claims Dick Allen

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Chicago White Sox first baseman Dick Allen took batting practice here yesterday and said he didn't think the broken leg suffered last June would affect his play.

"I don't think I'll be affected in any phase of my game," Allen said. "Right now it (the leg) feels fine."

Allen worked out lightly in the batting cage and did not face live pitching.

He said he wants to do some infield practice and will stay here a few more days before returning to his home at Wampum, Pa.

He stayed in the game for a couple of plays and was then helped off the field. He came back four weeks later but only for three games.

White Sox Manager Chuck Tanner and General Manager Roland Hemond were in town for a White Sox organizational meeting and watched Allen work out.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

The Two-Way Wedge

By LEE TREVINO

No lofted club can lower your score (and blood pressure) like a well-struck wedge. The way you hit it depends on your lie, so there are two basic ways to play a pitching wedge.

When you have a fluffy lie, or the ball is sitting up on good turf, it's best to position your feet with the ball opposite the left foot. If your lie is bad, the best results come from placing the ball back toward your right foot.

Usually there'll be a quarter-inch mat between your ball and club on a good lie. The result is you'll get a quick loft on the ball, and that baby will have lots of backspin.

In Arizona, Texas and Florida we play some courses with fairways as hard as parking lots. I play the ball back more so the club doesn't bounce off the turf and into the ball, causing a "skull" shot.

On this type of lie, hit down and through the ball firmly. It'll take off quail high unless you open up the clubface to compensate for the downward impact.

Changes Needed For 3 Unfair Grid Penalties

By LEW CODDINGTON

Football is a game played under clearly written, strictly enforced rules. When the penalties for breaking the rules are poorly chosen, the game suffers, and in my opinion, three such situations exist now at the high school level.

The unfair penalties are for illegal fair catch signal, contact after a fair catch, and defensive pass interference. Each could crop up in the Marin County Athletic League at any time.

The fair catch rule requires that the receiving player raise his hand in the air and wave it from side to side. Violation of it is considered unsportsmanlike conduct, which is a 15-yard penalty from the original line of scrimmage, 40 yards or so upfield. Usually, this results in a first down for the kicking team, and a renewed drive.

The old fair catch rule merely required that the hand be raised. Several penalties have been called this year when a player raised his hand, but failed to waive it adequately. While it's difficult to crawl into the heads of the players, it seems to me unsportsmanlike intent is pretty rare, and players usually make the error because of simple forgetfulness or confusion.

Recommendation: make it a five-yard penalty, just like offsides or other minor procedural violations. Step it off from the spot of the infraction, and let the receiving team keep the ball.

If a player demonstrates unsportsmanlike intent by running with the ball after the opponents have been frozen by a phony fair-catch signal, then drop a flag and step off 15.

The second objectionable penalty concerns fair-catch contact. If a player signals validly and is tackled anyway, a 15-yard penalty is assessed from the line of scrimmage, but the kicking team keeps the ball. If the receiving team wants the ball, it must decline the penalty, so the violation goes unpunished.

The third bad penalty is the one for defensive pass interference, which is 15 yards from the line of scrimmage, plus an automatic first down for the offensive team.

This rule encourages a defensive back to commit pass interference when he is beaten deep and is about to give up a long gain or a touchdown.

True, an additional 15 yards may be stepped off if a flagrant or willful infraction is detected, but it is no deterrent to somebody about to give up a score.

Miller and Ingram take a telephone headset to the highest point in the stadium, and call down their brainstorms to head coach Dean Lazzarini. Last week's 39-yard touchdown pass from Terry Fahey to Corky Ingraham was one. The 40-yard bomb from Fahey to Matt Elliott which beat Novato was another.

BOOT — Kevin Murphy, the running back from Tamalpais who also handles punting chores, will get some specialized instruction Monday from San Francisco's Tom Wittum at the 49ers' camp in Redwood City.

It all started when assistant coach Fred Mack wrote Wittum a letter asking him to provide a few tips for Murphy, who is averaging 40.9 yards per kick and is considered a college prospect by the Tam staff.

Wittum phoned back and said yes, so Murphy and center Tom Hunt will go to Redwood City, kick a few, and get a critique and some pointers from the pro.

PREP ROUNDUP

Petaluma, Tomales To Play Key Games

Petaluma High School can clinch a tie and Tomales High School can win it outright this weekend, as both teams will be shooting for their second consecutive league football championships.

With just two North Bay League games left, Petaluma (5-0) is just one-game ahead of Vallejo High School (4-1) and needs a victory tomorrow night at 8 o'clock to ensure a tie for the title.

To get the needed win, the Trojans will be traveling to Vallejo to play a streaking Hogan High School (3-2) team that has won its last three league games to move into a tie for third with Ukiah and Napa high schools.

Tomales, which has made a remarkable comeback to win four straight games after dropping its first four non-league affairs, clinched a tie for the North Central League II crown last Saturday with a 20-6 victory over Kelseyville.

Saturday at 2 p.m., the Braves can finish their season with an undefeated league championship with a win over visiting Calistoga (2-2), which fell out of league contention after dropping two straight games.

In other high school football games this weekend, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park completes its Sonoma County League schedule tomorrow night at 8 o'clock versus Analy in Sebastopol, Casa Grande of Petaluma visits St. Helena in a non-league game tomorrow at 8 p.m. and St. Vincent of Petaluma hosts Kelseyville at Durst Field for its final NCL II game, 8 p.m. Saturday.

Coaches', Officials' Applications Sought

Applications for coaching and officiating positions in the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department youth basketball program currently are being accepted at the department office, 1400 Fifth Avenue.

The program involves fourth through eighth graders and will run Nov. 26-March 9, with practices after school Monday through Friday and games Saturday.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Portfolio Possible At Discount Price

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Years ago I inherited 50 shares of Pennroad Corp. which is now Madison Fund (NYSE). What kind of a fund is this? Is it worth holding and reinvesting dividends? — J.L.

A. Madison, a closed-end investment company, is currently trading at more than a 20 per cent discount from its net asset value. Unlike open-end mutual funds which continuously sell shares directly to investors, most closed-ends are listed on the NYSE and are traded in the same manner as common stocks. The share price is therefore determined primarily by supply/demand rather than solely by the value of the fund's underlying portfolio. This is apparent in the above-mentioned discounted trading price for Madison's shares.

In the decade to mid-1971, the shares, for the most part, traded at a premium over net asset value, reflecting the fund's above-average performance. As the full impact of the declining market hit investors, the premium, which had been as high as 35 per cent above NAV, gradually narrowed and finally the share price moved below NAV. Certainly if Madison's performance continues the showing of recent months, there is a good possibility that the shares would once again command a premium.

For the present, the trading price provides an opportunity to acquire a participation in a high-grade portfolio at a discounted price. The yield is generous and dividend reinvestment is a painless method of building up your assets.

GARDEN AT EDEN

A new indoor plant shop called Eden will hold its grand opening Saturday at 1331 Fourth Street in San Rafael. The interior has been transformed into a garden of tropical plants arranged along the tatami floor and hanging from redwood beams. Owner Marc L. Sloper and an employee, Beth Grey, are preparing a polypodium fern for display. The garden setting replaced a former title company office next to The Art Center.

Redwood Bank Gets Permission For San Francisco Office Move

Redwood Bank, now headquartered at 1447 Fourth Street in San Rafael, has received all necessary approval to relocate its main office to San Francisco's financial district.

President Byron W. Leydecker announced that interior remodeling of the new headquarters at 735 Montgomery Street are now underway, and the target date for moving is early January, 1974. The new office will be the headquarters for both Redwood Bank and its parent company, Redwood Bancorp. The San Rafael office of Redwood Bank will remain at Fourth and E Streets.

The change of the headquarters location from Marin to San Francisco was approved at the annual meeting of Redwood Bancorp shareholders last March 22.

"Redwood Bank increasingly is attempting to establish its position as a regional bank for smaller businesses — those with annual sales volumes ranging up to $5 million," said Leydecker. "Relocation of the bank's headquarters to the financial district of San Francisco should prove helpful in further penetrating this market throughout the Bay Area."

Redwood Bancorp's board of directors declared a five per cent stock dividend payable Nov. 30 in capital stock to shareholders of record Nov. 2.

Good Rally Recorded On Market

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks rallied across a broad front today on the New York Stock Exchange, a reflection of Wall Street's apparent pleasure with President Nixon's energy message and signs of improvement in the Middle East situation.

Trading was heavy.

Buying was among the most spirited in weeks, with noon volume reaching approximately 10,000,000 shares, against yesterday's 7,640,000 in the comparable period.

Analysts said the list, already technically poised for a short-term climb, took off in response to Nixon's proposals to deal with the current energy crisis. Oils, rails, coal mining issues and stocks of companies involved in development of atomic energy power generators were particularly responsive on the Big Board. The market also was helped, observers said, by news the Israeli cabinet approved a U.S.-backed Middle East peace plan.

Prices also moved ahead broadly on the American Stock Exchange in moderate activity. Federal Resources led the actives, up ⅝ to 3 ⅞ on 45,200 shares.

Among Big Board stocks directly benefitting from Nixon's energy proposals, Norfolk & Western added 3 3/3, and Chesapeake & Ohio 2 ⅛. Both railroads gained on news coal —a major rail freight item — will be used more freely as an energy resource.

Restaurant Chain Plans First Marin Location In Larkspur

Victoria Station restaurant chain, which converts old railroad stations and railroad cars into attractive prime-rib steak houses, plans to open its first Marin County outlet next year in Larkspur on the east side of Greenbrae Bridge where a go-cart race track is now located.

The nationwide chain, headquartered at 150 Chestnut Street in San Francisco, hopes to start construction of the Victoria Station in Marin about April of next year and open for business in September.

Daniel L. Ohlson is director of real estate for the corporation, which operates three restaurants in San Francisco including a Victoria Station on Broadway, Thomas Lord's on Union Street and the Royal Exchange in the financial district. Quinn's Lighthouse in Oakland, specializing in seafood, is also operated by the firm.

"CONCORDE" fiberglass yachts, ranging in size from 27 feet to 54 feet, have been reintroduced to Marin after an absence of about four years.

A new corporation called Marin Boats Inc., formed last April, is planning a grand opening of its Concorde outlet at 115 Third Street in San Rafael, in the same building complex as Marin Boat House.

Robert Horvath of Ignacio, president of Marin Boats Inc., announced that two Concordes, a 41-footer and a 47-footer, have been delivered to San Rafael and are now on display. Vice president of the corporation is Charles Fillingame of San Rafael.

Marin Boats Inc. also handles Fjord, Seabird and Slikraft boats. Horvath, who sold Fjord boats for the past three years, has been in the business for seven years.

Marin Boats Inc. is the first Concorde dealer in Marin since 1969, when the boat was last sold by a dealer in Sausalito.

CALIFORNIA FURNITURE in San Rafael, celebrating its 57th year in business, will open its anniversary sale tomorrow at Third and B Streets.

Owner Pete Bolgia announced that the sale, throughout the rest of November, will offer items at 20 to 50 per cent reductions. California Furniture carries furniture from all periods as well as accessories like lamps, foot stools, butcher tables, and pictures. It has a complete sleep department.

THREE-PLAYER CHESS games are being sold in San Rafael by a new partnership called Interface, whose mailing address is Post Office Box 3089, San Rafael.

The principal in the business is Kenneth Mobert of San Rafael, who invented the chess game which is played by three persons instead of two. His partners in the venture are Ollie Thornton and Arlene Martin of San Rafael and John Harper of Terra Linda.

The three-player chess game employs a Y-shaped chess board 26 inches wide and 30 inches long, and plastic chess pieces in three colors. Complete instructions are included with each set. The game is distributed from San Rafael by mail order and through several retail stores.

FIREMAN'S FUND American Insurance Company in San Francisco moved another division into Northgate Industrial Park in San Rafael this week.

About 35 employees of the systems administration and data management division, headed by Donn Eaton, division manager, moved into 70 Mitchell Boulevard in a building formerly occupied by Sta-Power Industries.

Fireman's Fund also occupies buildings at 68 Mitchell Boulevard and on Mark Drive. These are being used temporarily until completion of the company's giant new computer center, which is under construction across the highway, at Highway 101 and Lucas Valley Road.

KENNETH A. SAMUELSON, president of Ray Schultz Insurance Inc. of San Rafael, was awarded the professional insurance designation, Chartered Property Casualty Underwriter, by the American Institute for Property and Liability Underwriters.

Samuelson joined the Schultz firm in 1947 and is an active member of the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Marin, serving as its president from 1963 to 1965.

F. LOWELL ZELLERS of Mill Valley, an agent for New York Life Insurance Company's financial center office in San Francisco, won membership in the company's 1973 Star Club. Membership is based on 1972-73 sales records.

R. LEONARD GARRISON of San Rafael, Northern California program director for the International Council of Shopping Centers, announced that a one-day Idea Exchange will be held on Friday at the Jack Tar Hotel in San Francisco.

Shopping center professionals from California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah and Idaho will discuss such topics as financing of shopping centers, leasing trends, rents, size of stores, and expansion plans of chains.

What Happens Now On Spending, Water?

Californians had a chance Tuesday to put constitutional brakes on state spending, but a majority of those who went to the polls said "no."

The hotly debated Proposition 1 undoubtedly was handicapped by being too long and complicated for the average voter to wade through and interpret. This made it possible for opponents to incite fears in various quarters — fears of school fund cutbacks, of increased property taxes, of local sales taxes, etc. Most of the fears were unfounded, but once raised they would not go away.

LEGISLATORS campaigning against the measure, which was put on the ballot as an initiative backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, went about the state declaiming that they believe in holding down state spending but this was not the way to go about it.

Spending limits might be appropriate in the statutes, some of them suggested — but not in the state constitution.

When the legislature resumes, it will be interesting to watch whether these lawmakers, by their votes and by the bills they introduce, show that they meant what they said.

PERHAPS Californians should have attacked capitol wastefulness in a simpler way — as did those in the state of Washington.

There, an initiative to roll back legislators' and state officials' pay and limit it hereafter was passed overwhelmingly, 4-to-1.

The initiative was started by Bruce Helm, co-owner of a furniture store in the little town of Ballard. It "caught fire" quickly, was qualified for the ballot by a volunteer signature-getting campaign.

Helms started it after the Washington Legislature, in a quickie last-day vote, gave its members boosts from $3,600 to $10,500 per year and hiked the pay of top state officials by amounts ranging up to $14,800 for the governor.

The California Legislature acted similarly last November, although not voting itself such a big raise since it was precluded from doing so by a voter-approved law. California legislators already are paid nearly twice as much as those in Washington, and have much larger staffs and bigger expense accounts.

TUESDAY'S voting in Marin also saw the not-unexpected turn-down, by nearly 2-to-1, of Marin Municipal Water District's proposed $7.5 million Russian River water bond issue.

Attacked from one direction by the Committee to Save Marin (with undercover help from at least one of the water district's directors) and from another by the Irate Taxpayers, this scarcely had a chance.

Since the proposed Russian River link was rejected, the water district should proceed immediately with construction of the North Marin Intertie — which already has been approved by the voters.

It also should investigate means of increasing the water supply from sources within Marin itself.

What the water board should not do is sit on its hands and say, "Well, we tried, but the people don't want any increased water supply so we won't plan for any." If the members do that, they will be guilty of failing to perform the duties of their offices.

Unidentified Objects Undersea As Well

It is difficult to resist being cautious when lending credence to the numerous U.F.O. sightings of late, there are just too many. Still, reason tells us this reoccurring phenomonon is no less fantastic then the occasional sightings of U.U.O.s, or Unidentified Undersea Objects.

Seemingly unaware or unafraid of smaller boats, these unworldly, large, and bottle shaped craft have been sighted often near our coasts by bass and salmon fishermen, a group not only renowned for impeccable honesty, but a clear sober eye as well. Further, one recent sighting was officially confirmed by a highly placed and reliable source who viewed one of the strange craft from a crow's nest commanding a clear, unobstructed field of observation. Regretably, fishermen refuse to divulge this source by name, even when threatened by subpoena.

Nevertheless, a clue exists in exhaust fumes captured from one strange craft, and analyzation disclosed the fuel to contain a high content of the atomic structure of the hydroxol group, or C2H50H, and eminating a strong scent similar to that of charred oak.

Unfortunately, there are non-romanticists who approach all sea sagas with a grain of salt, and admittedly, one discrepancy does exist. This is in the reported size of the celestial craft, and is due merely to the notorious but unique measuring system used by fishermen when describing objects caught in the sea.

President Victim Of 'Guilt By Assumption'

In the midst of the hysterical demands for the Impeachment or Resignation of President Nixon, I should like to make this observation:

In this country, one is supposed to be presumed innocent until proven guilty by means of due process of law, including deliberation of his case by a jury of his peers. The McCarthy "guilt by association" concept was a tragic and dangerous thing and it robbed a great many people of their reputation and right to earn a living.

Today, "guilt by assumption", such as John Dean's statement that he "assumed the president knew about the Watergate cover-up" is being considered by many to be evidence of the president's guilt. They forget that no factual evidence has been produced; there has been only testimony from those guilty of the Watergate break-in and cover-up who have been granted degrees of immunity for their willingness to "tell what happened". Who knows what the rest of the agreement may be? Perhaps, to help to get rid of Nixon??

I believe that President Nixon is guilty of only one thing: he placed his faith in the wrong people . . . I'd like to ask those who are screaming for impeachment and resignation the following:

1. Where and when did the trial of the People vs. Richard M. Nixon take place?
2. Who was the presiding Judge?
3. Name the attorneys for the prosecution and the attorneys for the defense.
4. Show factual evidence proving his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.
5. What was the verdict of the jury and when was it rendered?
6. What sentence was handed down by the judge?

If the President of the United States can be presumed guilty because of accusation; if he can be tried and convicted by the press and by radio and television commentators. (aided and abetted by those who seek to weaken the office he holds), and subsequently removed from office, then may heaven help the rest of us if we should ever be accused!!

The Time To Kiss And Make Up Has Gone By

Last August, Nixon appointed U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackman, who said, "Under the pall of the Watergate scandal, the very glue of our ship of state seems to be about to become unstuck." Coming from a man of his stature, I found his opinion to be profoundly disturbing.

Over the past year and a half, President Nixon has made numerous statements in regard to his Watergate posture. Two weeks ago came another statement on one of the most devastating days in American domestic history. We saw a laughing, smiling President step up to the White House podium to say a few words of praise for his Administration, a quib about the 25 years that his nominee had spent in Congress as he put forth Mr. Ford's name (probably a good man) . . .

What he skipped over lightly as if it were a matter of no consequence was the departure of his twice hand-picked vice president, Agnew. At that precise moment Agnew stood before the American people as a convicted felon on his way to join a company of criminals and moral bankrupts recruited from the White House staff and/or the Committee to Reelect . . .

As a small boy, my father hoisted me on his shoulders to see and to hear President Theodore Roosevelt speak. Father said, "This man is a great American, listen carefully to what he has to say." On that day I became a Republican and have been a reasonably good one ever since. However, in 1952 I did have difficulty in swallowing the Checkers speech and keeping it down. I gagged, but finally made it.

Maybe, as history slowly comes into focus, it will develop that President Nixon's troubles will be shown to have been medical. For the moment, however, there have been too many untruths, too many half truths, too many red herring crises, too wide a credibility gap, too little desire to level with the American people, too careless a selection of key White House Personnel, too inept a control of his staff. The time to kiss and make up has gone by! . . .

Professional Handling Of Dog Show Praised

I want to take this opportunity to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Greer of the Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders Association and all their members on the fine professional handling of the dog show on Oct. 28, at the Marin County Civic Center.

The large crowd enjoyed the various events that were presented throughout the day.

In respect to the county grounds, the head groundsman stated that "the grounds were left in the best condition of any outdoor activity held so far."

I believe Mr. Greer deserves a personal commendation for leaving the county grounds in such fine shape since he took personal charge of coordinating all activities.

Solution To The Missing Tapes: Just Make Them Over Again

WASHINGTON — The solution to the two missing presidential tapes is simple. The president should do them over again with the same cast. It would be no problem for the White House to rent a recording studio and hire a producer to make tapes as good as the original.

This is how it would go:

PRODUCER: Okay, Mr. President, do you have your script? Now on this tape you're getting a call from John Mitchell. It's right after Watergate and Mr. Mitchell is giving you a fill-in. Mr. Mitchell, you hold the phone over there at that mike. Are we ready? Roll 'em. This is the Nixon-Mitchell telephone conversation tape one. Go!

MITCHELL: Hi, Mr. President. John Mitchell here.

NIXON: Hello, John. How's Martha since you tied her up in Newport Beach?

PRODUCER: Cut. Mr. President, you sound too relaxed. Now you have to remember, this is right after Watergate, and it looks like the Committee for the Re-Election of the President has been involved. Could you get some more anxiety in your voice?

NIXON: I never show any anxiety.

PRODUCER: Well, pretend you were just awakened or something. We want to make this thing sound real. Okay, roll it again, tape two.

MITCHELL: Do you want to start from the top or where I tell the president I can't tell him anything about Watergate because it will only upset him?

PRODUCER: All right, start from there.

MITCHELL: Mr. President, I know something you don't know.

PRESIDENT: What is it?

MITCHELL: I'm not going to tell you because you'll go through the roof.

PRESIDENT: But as president, shouldn't I know everything you know? It isn't nice to keep secrets from me, John.

MITCHELL: Someday you'll thank me for not telling you about it.

PRESIDENT: Why on earth did you bring it up, if you can't tell me?

MITCHELL: In the future I may have to testify that I didn't tell you about it and I want it on the record.

PRESIDENT: Well, what did you call for then?

MITCHELL: Just to tell you I couldn't tell you anything about the Watergate break-in or who was involved.

PRESIDENT: I appreciate that. And, John, have a nice day.

ASSISTANT: He's sitting over there being guarded by two Secret Service men. He says he doesn't want to do it.

PRODUCER: Why doesn't he want to do it?

ASSISTANT: He says he has a contract with Columbia Records, and he can't make tapes for anyone else.

PRODUCER: Get him over here to this mike.

PRODUCER: Take off the handcuffs. Now, John, the presidency of the United States is at stake. How you read these lines could affect the history of the country. Do you understand?

DEAN: I guess so. But this script doesn't sound like me.

DEAN: The president didn't say these things to me.

PRODUCER: Look, John. Don't worry about what the president said to you. Let him worry about his own lines. Okay, let's roll. Everyone in the studio, quiet. Tape one Nixon-Dean in Oval Office alone.

PRESIDENT: I'm glad to see you, John. Do you have anything of importance to tell me?

PRESIDENT: But that would be dishonest.

PRODUCER: Cut. Mr. President, would you show more surprise in your voice when Dean brings up the million dollars?

What Nixon Said Last Autumn Gave Tone To Administration

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — President Nixon was so confident of re-election a year ago that he gave an advance interview to Garnett D. Horner of the Washington Star-News telling what he would do in his second term.

Normally a successful candidate is conciliatory, often excessively so. Mr. Nixon seemed to be in a different mood. He authorized direct quotation and the interview was published two days after the election.

HE THRUST AT HIS old target "the liberal establishment." He said Senator McGovern had been too liberal — "this election was decided the day he was nominated." He declared that even "up in the Northeast — which is considered to be the playground of the limousine liberal set" a majority rejected the "far left." This was rather brusque, but the president felt he had got a mandate at last.

Mr. Nixon said he was not on the far right himself, but in the "center," and he outlined some of his views — he would trim the government, diffuse federal power through the country, reject any and all tax increases. "There will be no solutions of problems that require a tax increase," he said. Some journalists had speculated that Mr. Nixon would now come back to his Family Assistance Plan which he had dropped.

Mr. Nixon said that "nothing could be further from the mark" than the idea of "massive new social programs"; rather, he said, "we are going to shuck off those programs" of the '60s which had proved to be a "failure."

MR. NIXON CALLED himself a "Disraeli conservative." He would combine a "strong foreign policy" with reform — "reform that will work, not reform that destroys." He continued:

"I think that the tragedy of the '60s is that so many Americans, and particularly so many young Americans, lost faith in this country, in the American system, in their country's foreign policy."

How was this faith lost? Mr. Nixon reflected that, yes, Vietnam had something to do with it, but he added that "in many cases it was only an excuse rather than a reason." He continued,

IN A CELEBRATED passage he said, "The average American is just like the child in the family. You give him some responsibility and he is going to amount to something. He is going to do something. If, on the other hand, you make him completely dependent and pamper him and cater to him too much, you are going to make him soft, spoiled and eventually a weak individual."

Mr. Nixon promised not to do this. What he said would be "tut-tutted" by the "Georgetown cocktail set," he said. But, after all, he had won the election.

And so a year ago, in the moment of triumph, he boldly announced his program — more law and order, less permissiveness, more conservative judges who would impose stiffer penalties, no new taxes, a strong foreign policy, defenses second to none, and a more disciplined America.

This was all a legitimate statement of a triumphant candidate, of course, but in its aggressive tone, its lack of conciliatory gestures, and its undertone of resentment against critics it outlined a departure.

In the White House, his aides set about making it so.

HE DEVELOPED a favorite thought. ". . . The enormous movement toward permissiveness which led to the escalation in crime; the escalation of drugs in this country, all of this came as a result of those of us who basically have a responsibility of leadership not recognizing that above everything else you must not weaken a people's character."

The courts were too lenient, he thought, and he promised to "continue to appoint conservative judges" to halt the movement: "I think we have got to continue to reverse that trend in the whole field of law enforcement."

Another thing this election is about," he said, "is to make the public more disciplined."

State Solon Seeks End To Indefinite Sentences

By EARL G. WATERS

Should California abandon its "indeterminate sentence" approach to penology and return to fixed prison terms? State Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, thinks so and has announced he will sponsor legislation in January to do just that.

Richardson has been a severe critic of the state's penal system. He has roundly condemned prison officials for lax administration of the parole program and security failures with resultantly high escape incidents. He has also levelled at the courts for their "soft" attitude and excessive use of probation.

His almost single-handed effort to compel more stringent policies has been credited with turning the tide in the soaring crime rate. Since he commenced his attacks, risking an open break with Governor Reagan, prison escapes have levelled off, fewer paroles are being granted, and more parolees are being returned for violations. Prison populations are again climbing.

ACCORDING TO Richardson, serious crime is being reduced "because they are not turning the offenders back on the streets to repeat". His view is that "if you keep the people in prison who commit the crimes it stand to reason the number of crimes will diminish."

It is this view which has prompted him to advocate fixed terms.

"What is now needed is to remove the discretion of the courts in certain cases," he said. "My bills will require mandatory prison terms upon conviction for specified crimes and eliminate the ability of the judges to grant probation."

Oddly enough Richardson, who is regarded as a conservative, now finds himself in bed with the liberals. For they, too, have complained about indeterminate sentences, arguing that they result in injustices. They say some prisoners are kept for much longer periods than others whose crimes are more serious.

While state prison officials have expressed no opinion on Richardson's plan, it is known that many feel it would make their jobs easier.

First, since it contemplates reduction in terms for good behavior inside prison, it provides the wardens with a disciplinary tool they do not now have. It would also make rehabilitation programming simpler by knowing how long each inmate would serve.

From the inmate standpoint it would relieve the uncertainty of not knowing release dates. Under the indeterminate program, many prisoners lose heart when their parole bids are denied. Often this turns a good prisoner into a bad one.

THE INDETERMINATE sentence was intended to permit surety of rehabilitation. Under the system a prisoner can be held until parole authorities decide rehabilitation has been effected. Mistakes in judgement turn poor risks loose sooner than would be provided by fixed terms. It also keeps some in for periods longer than their offenses would seem to warrant.

Under Richardson's plan the parole system would be drastically reduced. However, those released on good behavior would still be subject to parole supervision.

A Delay On Final Nod To Pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Final congressional action on a bill to allow construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline has been delayed until next week.

A parliamentary maneuver by opponents of a provision giving broad powers over the project sent the bill from the House floor back to a House-Senate negotiating committee where it must wait at least three days for further consideration.

The provision would give the Federal Trade Commission subpoena powers and authority to seek injunctions if the Justice Department does not act on complaints of deceptive business practices.

President Nixon has urged speedy action by Congress on the bill to help bring Alaskan oil to market. But budget director Roy L. Ash recently told key congressmen that he would recommend a veto if the FTC amendment remains in the bill.

Opponents of the provision forced the bill back to the negotiators yesterday because of a small printing error after the conference committee rejected a move by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., to knock out the FTC provision.

A Skeptical View On Energy Proposals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The conservationist Sierra Club says President Nixon's proposals on the energy crisis are "likely to fall short of what will be required."

"The President's statement did not go far enough in proposing effective measures to reduce demands for energy and went too far in proposing relaxation of environmental standards without proper safeguards to insure that the relaxation is both temporary and necessary," Laurence I. Moss, Sierra Club president, said last night.

"He has apparently rejected the idea of imposing an emergency tax on the use of energy, especially gasoline, to encourage conservation," Moss said.

"The conservation measures he does propose are mostly voluntary and likely to fall short of what will be required."

Quoting Nixon as saying America's energy requirements are "essential," Moss said they only seem essential to everyone because Americans have become accustomed to tremendous waste of energy because it is so cheap compared to other resources.

"The price is artificially low because of subsidies going to energy industries—the depletion allowances, the write-off of intangible drilling costs, the foreign tax credits for oil royalties masquerading as taxes and the tanker subsidy program," Moss said.

Moss said social and environmental damages are paid by the victim or by the taxpayers, rather than by industry or users of energy.

As examples, he cited the $1 billion paid this year from the U.S. Treasury to compensate victims of black lung disease and the higher medical costs imposed on the population because of air pollution.

"The President has failed to address himself to these issues," said Moss. "He proposes no remedial measures."

Bolinas Group Picks Officers

Lydia Tacherra is the new vice president and Bea Heady, second vice president. Rose Tacherra was elected treasurer and Pearl Williams, secretary.

The group has set 10 a.m., Nov. 17 at the Bolinas Laundromat for a bake sale.

Hotline Is Opened For Death Clues

OAKLAND (UPI) —Police today manned a special telephone hoping for citizens' tips on the apparent assassination of the city's popular black schools superintendent.

Detectives setup the phone in the Oakland School Administration Building where the slain Dr. Marcus A. Foster, 50, maintained his offices.

Foster and Robert Blackburn, 38, a white deputy schools superintendent, were attacked Tuesday night in a parking lot by three young men. Blackburn was seriously wounded but was reported recovering at a hospital after emergency surgery.

Police said they still have not pinpointed a motive but were certain it was not robbery. Evidence, they said, showed it was a premeditated assassination.

Deputy Police Chief Tom Donohue told reporters yesterday that interviews with witnesses have resulted in "varying descriptions" on the number of assailants, their physical descriptions and their nationality or race.

Police also disclosed new details on the attack. The assailants, they said, apparently hid behind a car and waited for Foster and Blackburn.

Two Men Hunted For Mass Slayings In Lodi

LODI, Calif. (UPI) —Two men wanted for a double slaying in Mesa, Ariz., last month are now being sought by authorities for questioning in yesterday's "execution" of nine persons in an expensive, rambling ranch home in California's wine country.

It was the sixth mass murder case in California in the last four years.

"We want to talk to them because of the similarity of the execution-style killings," said Sheriff Michael M. Canlis. He said he has issued no warrants.

The bodies of Walter Parkin, 33, his wife, their two children and five friends—all bound and gagged—were found yesterday inside Parkin's new $65,000 ranch home in the sprawling vineyards in north-central California. All had been shot in the head at close range with a revolver.

Parkin owned the only grocery in the town of Victor, a community of 270 persons three miles east of here. A safe at the store was opened normally and emptied of all cash, reportedly around $4,000.

The two men wanted for questioning were identified as Luther Steelman, 28, Lodi, and Douglas E. Gretzler, 22, New York state.

Steelman was convicted in San Joaquin County of forgery, escaping from the county jail and possession of marijuana and glue sniffing.

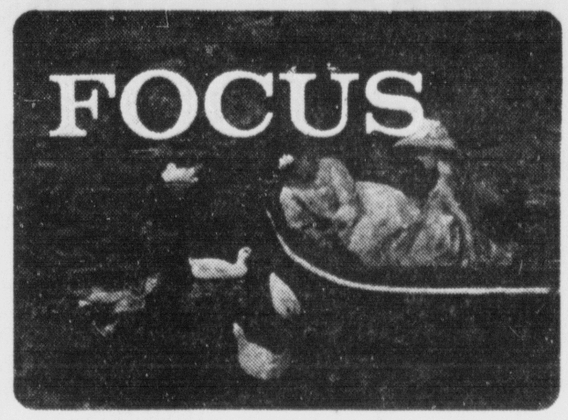

In addition to Parkin, the other victims found inside the master bedroom of his home included his wife Joanne, 31; their two children—Lisa, 11, and Robert, 9; Debbie Earl, 18, a babysitter; Richard A. and Wanda Earl, parents of the babysitter; Ricky Earl, 15, Debbie's brother, and Mark Lang, 20, the babysitter's boyfriend.

Anti-Nixon Papers Being Circulated

Petitions urging the impeachment of President Richard M. Nixon are being circulated by the Sonoma County branch of the Community Union of Working People.

Spokesman Jerome Gunderson said more than 1,000 signatures have been gathered. Persons interested in circulating petitions should write to the organization at P.O. Box No. 1432, Santa Rosa.

American In Paris

"Summertime" is one of the paintings in the exhibition "American Impressionist Painting" that is touring the country. It was painted in 1894 by the only American ever to exhibit with the French impressionists in their group shows. Born in 1844, she spent almost half her adult life in France working with the impressionists. Nevertheless, she always considered herself a distinctively American painter. She died in France in 1926. She is regarded as one of the best of the American impressionists, and her work had a quality of strength and confidence rarely found in women artists of the time.

DO YOU KNOW — What was the name of this famous American painter?

Battle Won To Delay Trade Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House has won its battle to delay House action on sensitive trade legislation, but it may lose the war and find the bill killed for this session of Congress.

Speaker Carl Albert agreed yesterday to a personal request from President Nixon to delay action on the bill, which contains sanctions against the Soviet Union because of Moscow's emigration policies.

At the White House, a spokesman said Nixon asked for the delay because House action—certain to approve the Moscow-oriented sanctions — would pose a "serious threat" to the administration's Middle East negotiations.

"When intensive and delicate negotiations are under way toward a durable peace in the Middle East, the President was concerned that possible approval could involve a serious threat to the success of these crucial negotiations," the spokesman said.

But Rep. Al Ulmann, D-Ore., acting chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he was "extremely unhappy" with the delay and indicated it might kill the bill. The bill had been scheduled for House action next week.

Thebill is primarily aimed at giving Nixon broader, more flexible power over trade negotiations with other countries. But it also contains a section which would deny the Soviet Union "most favored nation" trade status until Moscow allows free emigration.

In addition, Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, is pushing for a floor amendment which would also deny U.S. loans and loan guarantees to the Soviets and other Communist countries until they allow free emigration.

The denial of credits, which is given a good chance of passage, is a far more serious blow to the Soviets than the most favored nation status, a largely symbolic act which would put Moscow on the same basis as most of other U.S. trading partners.

Alaska Declared A Disaster Area

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has declared a major disaster for the state of Alaska which suffered heavy rains and flooding beginning Oct. 25. Heaviest damage was in the Ketchikan Gateway area.

The president's action yesterday triggers the federal mechanism for providing disaster relief assistance in the form of public funds for debris removal and the repair of public facilities such as roads, bridges, sewers and water systems.

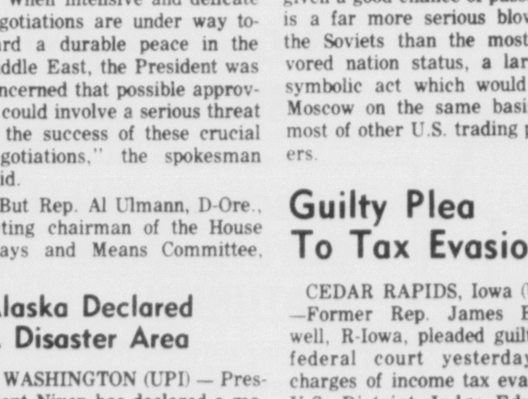

Guilty Plea To Tax Evasion

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI) —Former Rep. James Bromwell, R-Iowa, pleaded guilty in federal court yesterday to charges of income tax evasion. U.S. District Judge Edward McManus delayed sentencing pending further investigation.

The charge is punishable by up to one year in prison and a fine of $10,800.

Bromwell, a Cedar Rapids attorney who represented Iowa's 2nd congressional district between 1961 and 1965, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Des Moines Aug. 22 for failing to file federal tax returns for 1968, 1969 and 1970.
